Washington Quick to Make Inferences from the Tone of His Telegram to President.

HE SORROWS OVER LOUVAIN

But the Conduct of the Belgian People Impelled His Generals to Severity.

COMPLAINS OF THE ALLIES

Whom He Charges with Violating Rules of War—Tried to Avert Conflict—Text of Message Withheld.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A movement for peace in Europe seems to be in the air, although no definite action has been taken that would lead to real encouragement among those who hope that the great world strugle can be brought to an end through amicable means in the very near future.

President Wilson has received a personal message from the German Emperor, which, while it relates to other things connected with the war, is said to be susceptible of the interpretation that the Emperor would not insist on a continuance of hostilities if he found his enemies willing to discuss a settlement.

On the other hand, it is understood that Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador in London, has informed the State Department that in a conversation with the British Minister for Foreign Affairs, Sir Edward Grey pointed out that, if there should be any effort for peace, Great Britain would become a party to it only with the understanding that the negotiations would contemplate reparation for the German violation of Belgian neutrality and compensation for the damage done by the German troops in Belgian territory. This attitude is a decided indication that Great Britain would not consider a peace proposal unless Germany were willing to acknowledge that Belgium was entitled to redress.

Officials tonight were very reticent as to the contents of the message from the German Emperor to President Wilson. They acknowledge that such a message had been received through the medium of the State Department, and that it related to alleged violations of the rules of war by the Anglo-French Allies and contained a defense of the actions of the German troops destroying the Belgian city of Louvain and other acts done by the German forces in Belgium and France. It is said, but there is no official confirmation of this, that the tone of the Kaiser's message is such that it might be construed as meaning that Germany would not resist a movement to bring about peace.

As this phase of the message is understood here, the inference mentioned is drawn from the fact that Emperor William, in defending his forces from the charges made against them, points out that Germany did not seek to go to war with the countries with which it is now engaged in hostilities, but sought in every way to preserve the peace. Probably the inference is far-fetched, and it is not claimed that it is based on anything more than the "tone" of the Kaiser's communication.

The first intimation that Emperor William had sent a message to the President of the United States came in a press dispatch from London that the North German Gazette of Berlin, declared to be the official organ of the German Government, had published a statement that the Emperor had sent an important message to President Wilson. A press dispatch from Copenhagen said that the message was forwarded to Washington on Sept. 4.

Officials of the Government denied today that any such message had been received, but it was admitted tonight that a communication from the German Emperor had reached the White House through the State Department. The impression was given from what officials said that the message had not been laid before the President until this evening.

President Wilson's offer to use his good offices to bring about peace between the European combatants is a standing offer. It was so worded as to leave any and every belligerent European nation in a position to approach the United States at any time the belligerent was ready to utilize the services of this Government in the direction of bringing about the ending of the war.

All the combatants have responded to the President's tender in cautious terms, and none of them has given any indication that it is willing to take advantage of the proposal.

Since the President's tender was made, Secretary Bryan has lost no opportunity to discuss the prospects of peace with diplomatic and other callers who might be in a position to aid a movement for the ending of hostilities. But nothing has come to light to indicate that Mr. Bryan has received any encouragement from those with whom he has talked. His idea in initiating such discussions appears to be to keep alive the knowledge that this Government is extremely anxious that peace shall be restored and is ever ready to exercise its good offices toward that end.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—"My heart bleeds for Louvain," is one of the phrases which the Emperor is understood to have used in his message to President Wilson. He declared, however, that the population of Belgium had offered such resistance that his Generals had in many cases found it necessary to administer severe punishment.

The message was closely guarded. Persons who knew its contents, however, declared it did not ask the President to take any action, but simply laid before him the Emperor's contentions in connection with the controversy that has arisen over the alleged atrocities by the German Army in Belgium.

THE KAISER'S MESSAGE.

Tells President That British Troops Are Using Dum-Dum Bullets.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—"There has been published in Copenhagen a telegram which Emperor William sent to President Wilson under date of Sept. 4," telegraphs the Copenhagen correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph. "In this message Emperor William protests against the use by the English of

RUSSIAN AND FOE DIE IN AIR FIGHT

Nesteroff, Czar's Aviator, Rams Austrian's Aeroplane and Both Drivers Are Killed.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Capt. Nesteroff, one of the most daring of Russian aviators, the first of his countrymen to loop the loop, has sacrificed his life in a successful attempt to destroy an Austrian aeroplane, says a Petrogad dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company.

According to a report from the front, Capt. Nesteroff was returning from an aerial reconnoissance when he saw an Austrian aeroplane hovering over the Russian forces, presumably with the intention of dropping bombs.

The Russian aviator immediately headed straight for the Austrian machine at full speed, and although he must have known that victory by such tactics could be gained only at the cost of his own life, he dashed into the Austrian aeroplane. The force of the impact caused the collapse of both machines, which plunged to the earth, the two aviators meeting instant death.

ZANGWILL URGES JEWS TO SUPPORT ALLIES

Has Sir Edward Grey's Assurance That He Will Seek Emancipation of Russian Jews.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Israel Zangwill has sent to The Standard an appeal to the Jews of neutral countries to support the Allies against Germany. Mr. Zangwill appeals especially to the Jews of America. He says:

"Although the most monstrous war in human history was 'made in Germany,' and although Germany's behavior in the war is as barbarous as her temper in peace, I note with regret that a certain section of Jewry in America and other neutral countries seems to withhold sympathy from Great Britain and her Allies.

"In so far as these Jews are German born their feeling for Germany is as intelligible as is mine for England, but in so far as they are swayed by consideration for the interests of the Russian Jews, to whom Germany and Austria are offering equal rights, let me tell them that it is better for the Jewish minority to continue to suffer, and that I would far sooner lose my own righs as an English citizen than that the great interests of civilization should be submerged by the triumph of Prussian militarism.

"And in saying this I speak not as a British patriot, but as a world patriot, dismayed and disgusted by the inhuman ideal of the Gothic superman. I am well aware that Germany's press agent paints Germany as the guardian of civilization and as an angel fighting desperately against hordes of savages imported from Africa and Asia, but if we are using black forces it is for white purposes, while she is using white forces for black purposes.

"But it is not even certain that the Jews of Russia will continue to suffer, once England is relieved from this Teutonic nightmare. Assurances I have been privileged to obtain from Sir Edward Grey that he would neglect no opportunity of encouraging the emancipation of the Russian Jews mark a turning point in their history, replacing, as it does, windy Russian rumors by a solid political basis of hope. Nor is this a mere utterance of a politician in a crisis.

"I am in a position to state that it represents the attitude of all that is best in English thought. It is with confidence therefore that I appeal to American and other 'neutral' Jews not to let the shadow of Russia alienate their sympathies from this indomitable island, which now, as not seldom before, is fighting for mankind and which may yet civilize Russia and Germany."

RECASTING EUROPE'S MAP.

Russian View as to the Final Division of Territories.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 8, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—The declaration of London continues to be subject of favorable comment. The Retch argues that the war must be terminated in such a way that it shall leave no vangeful associations on either side. The change in the map of Europe must be final and no nationality must be opposed in the satisfaction of its legitimate ambitions.

This ideal is, however, irreconcilable with the existence of an empire like Austria-Hungary. It is also irreconcilable with the hegemony of Prussia in Germany. Further, it is irreconcilable with the division of Poland and the Treaty of Bucharest.

The unifications of Russia, Italy, Germany, Rumania, and Servia must be completed. France must recover what has been taken from her and Bulgaria also.

A hundred years' fight for the principle of nationality must finish with a decision free from all compromise, and therefore final.

These ideas seem to have many advocates in this country.

ROADS MINED IN BELGIUM.

Germans Said to Have Prepared for Their Retreat.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OSTEND, Sept. 8 (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Information has reached me from Brussels that the Germans have mined the roads in the north of Belgium.

It is the first hint I have had of this terrible danger to an advance on the part of the Allies, for what has been done there has certainly been done all over the line of possible retreat.

RUSSIA CLEARED OF AUSTRIANS

Another Series of Defeats Puts Their Main Armies in a Precarious Position.

MANY GERMANS CAPTURED

Rome Hears Russians Have Won Great Crucial Battle Near Rava-Russka, in Galicia.

AUSTRIA MAY ASK PEACE

Move by Vienna Government Expected Within Fifteen Days in Petrograd Diplomatic Circles.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 9.—The following announcement was issued today by the General Staff of the Grand Duke Nicholas, Commander in Chief of the Russian forces:

"On Sept. 5 and 6 we attacked the Austrian army at Zamost, situated northeast of Krubessiow and southeast of Rava-Russka. The Austrian army is retiring in disorder, pursued by the Russians.

"Near Frampol the Russian cavalry rushed big convoys of the enemy in the direction of Lublin.

"The Austro-German troops, having been dislodged from the fortified positions they were occupying, retired in a southerly direction.

"The troops and convoys which were moving in the direction of the road leading from Josefow to Annopol (government of Volhyma) have been dispersed by the Russian artillery on the left bank of the Vistula.

"A big battle is being fought on the front extending from Rava-Russka to the Dneister River, where the Austrian Army has received reinforcements.

"Detachments of the Fourteenth (Tyrolese) Army Corps attempted an attack near Rava-Russka during the night of Sept. 7, but were repulsed. They left in our hands one regimental flag and 500 prisoners.

"Near Zamost we took a German aeroplane.

"In Eastern Prussia small skirmishes continue."

Practically all Austrian troops have been driven from Russian territory.

ROME, Sept. 9.—A dispatch from Petrograd to The Messagero declares that the great battle at Rava-Russka, in Galicia, thirty-two miles northwest of Lemberg, is over and that the Russians have won a complete victory.

The Austrians are said to be retiring everywhere. Among the prisoners taken by the Russians are a large number of Germans.

The Austrians have evacuated Russian Poland.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 8, 11 P. M. (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—A Petrograd special telegram to The Politiken says that, according to a report to the War Ministry from Galicia, the Russian attempt to cut off half a million Austrians who were advancing on Lublin is on the point of succeeding. A very extensive battle is going on.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—In well-informed circles here the opinion is that Austria is in a desperate plight, viewing matters from military, political, and financial points of view.

A telegram from Petrograd says that both in Russian and foreign diplomatic quarters there it is believed that the Vienna Government will have sued for peace within fifteen days, this being the only means of averting the complete breaking up of the empire.

The Temps states that the Austrians are responsible for many atrocities, and it gives a list of their officers who ordered the massacre of non-combatants and the burning of villages.

RAVA A VITAL SPOT.

Its Capture Said to be the Key of Present Tactical Position.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 8, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The entire interest of the war on the Russian front now centres in the conflict which must shortly terminate in either the destruction or capitulation of Austria's main armies. This consummation has apparently been somewhat delayed by the appearance in the field of strong German forces, which have hurried to aid Austria's last efforts.

I am in position to say that the relative situations of the opposing myriads have not been effectively altered. The inevitable result has been merely delayed, probably for not more than a couple of days.

The Russians crossed the Vistula to meet a German division, which was

GERMANS FALL BACK, BRITISH ADVANCE 25 MILES; MAUBEUGE AND 40,000 MEN TAKEN, SAYS BERLIN; BRITISH ARMED CRUISER OCEANIC IS WRECKED

GERMANS CLAIM MAUBEUGE

Wireless from Berlin Says the French Fortress Has Been Taken.

ALSO 40,000 PRISONERS

Four of These Are Generals, the Report Adds—400 Guns in the Booty.

EMBASSY HAS GOOD NEWS

Hears That 1,000 Men of the Russian Imperial Guard Have Been Captured.

BERLIN, Sept. 9, (by Wireless to The Associated Press via Sayville, L. I.)—Official announcement was made today at Army Headquarters that the French fortress of Maubeuge, on the Sambre River, had fallen.

The Germans took 40,000 prisoners, including four Generals. Four hundred guns also were captured.

Dr. Ludwig Frank of Mannheim, a prominent Socialist member of the Reichstag, was killed on Sept. 3 during a charge against the French at Lunéville.

Prince Frederick William of Hesse has been wounded.

Maubeuge is a French fortress of the first class. It is situated in the Department du Nord, about six miles from the Belgian frontier.

The German onslaughts on this position have been determined, and judging from incomplete reports they have been going on for a week or more. Dispatches received from London under date of Sept. 5 said that part of the British expeditionary force in France was at Maubeuge assisting the French garrison in its defense.

The German General Staff in Berlin on Sept. 6 announced that two of the Maubeuge forts had fallen, and that the fire of the German artillery was on that date being directed against the town, which was then in flames. On the same day an official communication given out in Paris said that the Maubeuge fortress continued its heroic resistance.

The French War Office announcement of Sept. 7 contained the following reference to the defense of Maubeuge:

"The Minister of War has telegraphed to the Governor of Maubeuge, expressing the Government's admiration for the heroic defense, and saying: 'You should stop at nothing to prolong resistance until the hour of your approaching deliverance, which I hope will be soon.' The Commander in Chief has placed the name of the Governor of Maubeuge in the Order of the Day for his splendid defense."

GERMAN EMBASSY'S NEWS.

Wireless Tells of Fall of Maubeuge and Capture of Russians.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The capture of the French fortified city of Maubeuge was announced by the German Embassy here this evening on the basis of an official message received from the Berlin Government via the Sayville wireless route. The message asserts that four Generals and 40,000 prisoners were captured. Here is the announcement:

Following message from Berlin: General Headquarters reports that Maubeuge is fallen; 400 guns, 4 Generals, and 40,000 prisoners captured.

Ludwig Frank, prominent Socialist of the Reichstag, fell in storming charges near Luneville, Sept. 3.

Prince Friedrich Wilhelm of Hesse wounded.

An earlier dispatch received by the German Embassy alluded to the capture of Maubeuge and denied the current reports that the Spanish Government contemplated entering the war on the side of the allied forces. This message read:

Spanish Ambassador in Berlin strongly denies rumors of Spanish unfriendly attitude against Germany and Austria, all Spanish party leaders being for strict neutrality. Joint papers emphasize importance of capture of Maubeuge, German military lines now being free; also captured 40,000 men, high number meaning important weakening of enemy. Strassburg session of court-martial officially states:

"French authorities organized two months' mobilization franctireuer bands by distributing arms to civilians."

The embassy late this evening received a third wireless message from Berlin dealing with the situation at Louvain and charging that the Allies were using dum-dum bullets, many of which have been received at Berlin in original packages from the front. Allusion is made in this dispatch to the five American newspaper correspondents, (Roger Lewis, Irvin S. Cobb, Harry Hansen, James O'Donnell Bennett, and John T. McCutcheon,) who have been detained at Aix-la-Chapelle. The full text of this message follows:

Frankfurter Zeitung reports, that German officers, while Louvain (was) burning brought pictures from cathedral to town hall for protection. Stampa at Turin reports that French confidence in General Staff has vanished. Parisians know that France is flooded with wounded and that a great part of army are prisoners.

In Aix-la-Chapelle five American reporters are detained who had followed German Army through Belgium secretly under great difficulties. They are full of indignation against Belgian lies and praise human conduct of German troops.

Yesterday, Sept. 8, at Foreign Office in Berlin, dumdum bullets in original package, among them parcels with English stamp, were shown to thirty foreign journalists. Pointed copper projectiles for Lebel rifle, points deeply nicked either side so as to break upon impact. Package of steel-mantled bullets of later model, still in original packing, have noses cut squarely off, holes of 5 millimeters diameter, 7 deep, drilled perpendicularly.

Two German cuirassiers fired upon approaching automobile with officers. Russians surrounded village, separated males above fifteen years into two groups of unequal moiety despite Magistrate protestations that civilians unparticipated in shooting.

German war loan announced one milliard. Treasury bills unlimited. State loan 5 per cent., given out at 97.50.

Breslau Silesian Landwehr captured 17 officers, 1,000 men of Russian Imperial Guard.

BERLIN NEWS IN LONDON.

Wireless Messages Picked Up There Do Not Mention Fighting.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 10.—The newspapers here point out that the official German wireless news received at Marconi House yesterday contained no reference to the French battle or to the Austro-Russian battle. This is the third day on which the operations in France have not been mentioned.

German wireless reports received here, via the Sayville station, and also those given out through the embassy, do mention fighting in France and Austria and Russia.

DENIES NORTH SEA IS MINED.

Von Bernstorff Adds That German Ports Are Open for Trade.

Some of the statements made last night by Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, at the Ritz-Carlton, were that the war outlook was more hopeful for Germany; that the North Sea was not mined, as the British said it was; that German ports could be entered in safety by vessels flying the flags of neutral nations, and that, according to a letter he had received from his son, who is at the front with the German armies, bombs were planted and water poisoned in Belgian villages.

Not only is it possible for neutral vessels to find a way into the harbors of Germany, but those vessels will also find it possible to coal in those ports, the Ambassador said.

Referring to the much-printed guess that it was a peace proposal that took Oscar S. Straus and himself to Washington on Sunday night, the Ambassador called attention to the Government denial that any such suggestion had been submitted to Secretary of State Bryan or other high official of the Government in Washington.

The Ambassador read that part of his son's letter which told of the alleged use of bombs and the poisoning of drinking water by the Belgians.

"In every village there are bombs, and we have to make the people drink the water that they offer to us. They are trying to poison us," the Count read from his son's letter.

Asked concerning a report that Emperor William had sent a communication to President Wilson, the Ambassador replied by reading the text of a wireless message that had been received by the German Embassy yesterday. That message was as follows:

"North German Gazette publishes the text of a message from Kaiser Wilhelm to President Wilson concerning British and French use of dum-dum bullets, and Belgian atrocities on nurses, women, and soldiers."

Of his statement that it was possible for vessels of neutral nations to enter German ports, Count Bernstorff said:

"The rumor that the German ports are blockaded and that the shipping of Germany is paralyzed is not true. As a matter of fact, no German ports are blockaded, and there is nothing to prevent neutral vessels entering those ports. Neutral ships desiring to enter German ports in the North Sea must go to a point ten miles north of Heligoland, where they will find German pilots, who will guide them into the harbors. Harbors on the Baltic can be approached directly, and there are pilots before every port.

"I should also add," continued the Ambassador, "that the prohibition of the exportation of coal from Germany does not apply to bunker coal. The supply of coal for neutral merchant ships is assured.

"As for the report that the North Sea is mined, that report is untrue."

When seen yesterday morning Ambassador von Bernstorff was asked about a story, of European origin, to the effect that in the event of a great German defeat the Kaiser might flee to the United States and make this country his home. The story said that the Kaiser had large land holdings in this country and in Canada and had also invested in American securities.

Count von Bernstorff was greatly amused by the story.

"I really do not think it is true," he said jestingly, "and if it were, I don't think the Kaiser would be investing money through me. There are so many men who know more about investing money than I do. I know nothing about money. I never made any in my life."

At the Ritz-Carlton it was said late last night that Count von Bernstorff was not in, and it was understood that he had gone out of town. On Tuesday night he was the guest of Jacob H. Schiff at the latter's home near Seabright.

Summary of War News

The French War Office announces that the British forces have crossed the Marne and that the Germans have fallen back twenty-five miles at that point. On the left the Germans have failed in several attempts to break through the French lines, while in the centre and on the right the situation remains the same.

The German Army headquarters in Berlin reports by wireless that Maubeuge, a strong French fortress, six miles from the Belgian frontier, has fallen. Forty thousand prisoners, including four generals, and 400 guns were taken, it is said.

The Russian General Staff reports that Austro-German troops have been forced out of their fortified position in Lublin. The Austrians have been reinforced at Rava-Russka, northwest of Lemberg, and a fierce engagement is now taking place all along the Dniester.

The British Press Bureau announces that the armed cruiser Oceanic, of the White Star Line, has been lost off the north coast of Scotland. All of the officers and crew were saved.

Emperor William has sent to President Wilson a message protesting against the use by the English troops of dum-dum bullets and against the participation in the war of the Belgian population. England has already officially denied the charge of using dum-dum bullets.

England is cheered by the attitude of India, where native rulers are offering substantial aid in cash, jewels and men.

Rumania will soon throw her 200,000 troops into the conflict, according to a dispatch from Bucharest, which reports a strong sentiment throughout the country in favor of Russia.

Italy has warned two classes of her reserves not to leave the country.

Holland has proclaimed a state of siege in a great number of towns on the coast, and is refusing to violate her neutrality by sending food supplies to Germany.

Japan has landed 20,000 troops at Lungkow on the northeastern coast of the Shantung Peninsula. This force is now advancing toward Chaoyuan, which is eighty miles north of the Kiao-Chau forts.

LINER OCEANIC LOST ON ROCKS

ALL ON BOARD ARE SAVED

British Press Bureau Announces That the Big Vessel Is a Total Loss.

NOTED AS MILLIONAIRE SHIP

Years Ago the Favorite Vessel of J. P. Morgan, Philip Armour, Wm. C. Whitney and Other Wealthy Men.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Press Bureau announces that the armed merchant cruiser Oceanic of the White Star Line was wrecked yesterday on the north coast of Scotland and has become a total loss. All of the officers and crew were saved.

James Parton, European manager of the White Star Line, when called on the telephone by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent and asked if he had any particulars of the loss of the Oceanic, was much agitated.

"I have no news to give," he said and hung up the telephone.

The official announcement gave no details of the loss of the vessel, nor any information as to what mission she was engaged in. The Oceanic was reported in the navy list published yesterday as having been taken for Government service.

This month's Navy List gives the following officers for the Oceanic: Capt. William F. Slater, Commander Harry Smith, R. N. R.; Lieut. Commander M. F. Stokes, Lieutenants of Royal Navy Reserve V. L. Wiles, G. E. Warner, R. Mortimere, C. H. Greame, C. H. Lightoller and D. Blair.

The Oceanic was the second steamship of that name, built by Harland & Wolff of Belfast in 1899 for the Oceanic Steamship Company of Liverpool, and was for many years one of the most popular vessels in the Atlantic passenger trade. She was designed when Thomas H. Ismay was Chairman of the company, and he took a personal interest in the decorating and furnishing of the ship.

No expense was spared on the Oceanic, and the cost of gilding her dining saloon was said to have been nearly $200,000. All her public rooms were finished in the same luxurious manner, and for years after she came out, in September, 1899, the Oceanic was the favorite ship of J. P. Morgan, Cornelius Vanderbilt, W. C. Whitney, Philip Armour, and many other wealthy men. Her May sailing to Liverpool up to ten years ago was called "the millionaires' trip," because a large number of the richest men in the United States made a practice of sailing together on her and giving special dinners and luncheons on the voyage.

Refurnished Three Years Ago.

Three years ago the International Mercantile Marine Company spent about $250,000 on the Oceanic in refurnishing her, building a new companionway, with heavy carved bronze gates at the saloon entrance. The saloon also was regilded. J. Bruce Ismay, who was President of the company at that time, wished the ship to be kept up to her original standard because she was the last that his father saw launched and was his pride among the fleet.

The last time the liner left New York was on Saturday, Aug. 1, at noon. She carried passengers and mails for Southampton via Plymouth, and was in command of Capt. Harry Smith, R. N. R., the senior Captain of the White Star Line, who was navigating officer on her when she went ashore. Upon her arrival at Southampton on Aug. 8 the passengers were hurried ashore and a naval crew took charge of the vessel. In twenty-four hours they had put eight 6-inch guns on her upper decks and had hung ropes around the bridge to protect the officers from rifle fire. the cabins were taken down and she made her first trip to Havre on Aug. 12 with a load of British troops. At that time she was flying the white St. George ensign of the Royal Navy and had a naval Captain, officers, and crew on board.

Graceful as a Yacht.

From a sailor's point of view the Oceanic was one of the most graceful vessels that ever entered New York Harbor. She had yacht-like lines, and there was a jaunty rake to her funnels and masts. For years she maintained a speed of 21½ knots, and up to her last Atlantic voyage she could make 20½ knots.

Her dimensions were 706 feet long, 68 feet beam, 50 feet depth of hold, and 17,274 gross tonnage. She was a twin screw ship, schooner rigged, and carried a crew of 385 men. When the Oceanic was taken over by the navy in Southampton her funnels and hull and superstructure were painted black.

The White Star Line officials said last night that they had no knowledge of the movements of the Oceanic after she was taken over by the British Government. It is surmised that the liner might have been on her way to Archangel to carry Russian troops to Belgium or to protect unarmed transports coming from that port.

The original cost of the Oceanic is said to have been about $4,500,000.

NOORDAM CAPTURED BY BRITISH CRUISER

Holland-America Liner Was Carrying German Reservists and Cargo from New York.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Exchange Telegraph Company announces that the Holland-America Line's vessel Noordam, bound for Rotterdam from New York with German reservists and a general cargo, also destined for Germany, has been captured in the Atlantic and taken to Queenstown by a British cruiser.

The prisoners will leave Queenstown, accompanied by British guards, en route to a place of detention.

The Cronicle naval expert, referring to the Noordam, says the intelligence that a British cruiser has brought into Queenstown a Dutch vessel with German reservists on board should cause no surprise. "We are empowered," he says, "by the conventions of international law to arrest contraband destined for the enemy and by an order in council to arrest it at whatever port it may be landed. Reservists for the German Army are certainly liable to capture and detention as an extreme form of contraband. The Dutch Government can have no cause of complaint about an act which evidently is within the rights of a belligerent power."

The Holland-America line steamer Noordam sailed from New York for Rotterdam on the morning of Sept. 1. She departed with some secrecy, and very few persons other than those having business there were allowed on the pier at Hoboken just before she sailed. It was said at the time that one of the reasons for taking these precautions was that the vessel had on board a number of German reservists.

The company's officials have indignantly and repeatedly denied that reservists of any country were returning to Europe on any vessel of their line. This denial was made in the case of another steamer of the line, but was, they said, equally applicable to the Noordam. The Noordam is said to have carried several hundred passengers.

The liner was built at the yard of Harland & Wolff at Belfast. She was launched in 1902. She is of 12,531 gross tons, a twin-screw vessel, propelled by reciprocal engines of 1,285 horse power. The Noordam is 560 feet long, has 62 feet beam, and has a depth of 34 feet. She flies the Dutch flag, and her port of registry is Rotterdam.

GERMANS STILL RETIRING

COMMUNICATIONS IN PERIL,

FRENCH CENTRE ADVANCING

BORDEAUX, Sept. 9.—This official announcement was issued tonight:

"On the left wing all the German attempts to break the French lines on the right bank of the Ourcq River have failed. We have taken two standards.

"The British Army has crossed the Marne and the enemy has fallen back about forty kilometers (twenty-five miles).

"On the centre and right wing there is no notable change."

This bulletin was given out in the afternoon:

"On the whole the Germans appear to be beginning a movement of retreat.

"The strategic position of the French troops is improving, but one cannot judge of a battle extending over 100 kilometers, (over 62 miles.)

"The Germans seem to experience certain difficulties in provisioning.

"In general the French troops seem to be gaining the advantage."

PARIS, Sept. 9.—An official communication, issued this afternoon, said:

"First: On the left wing, although the Germans have been reinforced, the situation remains satisfactory. The enemy is retreating before the British army.

"Second: At the centre our advance is slow, but general.

"Third: On the right wing there has been no action of the enemy against the great circle of Nancy. In the Vosges and in Alsace the situation remains unchanged."

Another announcement in the afternoon said:

"On the banks of the River Ourcq two German flags have been captured in the course of a great battle. One was taken from the enemy by force by a reservist named Guilmard, who has received the Military Medal from Gen. Galiieni. This flag is of the Thirty-sixth Regiment of German infantry, which was decorated in 1870 with the order of the Iron Cross."

Drove Germans Into the Marne.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—I heard from a French officer last night that British cavalry had driven several German squadrons into the Marne. He was sure of his news.

60,000 MORE GERMANS COMING.

Advancing Into France in Three Columns, One Report Says.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 10.—German reinforcements, estimated at 60,000 men, are advancing into France in three columns, according to a Reuter dispatch from Ostend.

Another Reuter dispatch from Ostend says that the German troops, which were waiting in East Flanders to receive the levy demanded from Ghent, were urgently ordered this morning to proceed to France.

They immediately took the road for Lille or Valenciennes.

Still another Ostend dispatch says that a German army corps seems to be marching to the south, passing between Oudenarde, East Flanders and Grammont. It is probably intended to reinforce the German right wing.

Since Monday, adds the dispatch, many German fugitives from the battle in France have been seeking refuge in Dottignies forest, between Courtrai and Herzeaux.

German right been cut? The question is suggested in two ways by the hurried retreat of this portion of the enemy's army and by a phrase in the French official communiqué, which records violent and fruitless attacks on the Allies occupying the right bank of the Ourcq in an attempt to protect their communications.

"There is more than one indication in the news from France of the remarkable development in the Allies' attack on the German right. Possibly the first of Lord Kitchener's surprises is making itself felt."

Three Armies Moved from the North on Plains of Champagne.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Tonight's bulletin indicates a continuation of the great battle between Meaux and Verdun.

The Liberté says:

"It is easy to figure that the Germans directed at least three armies toward the plains of Champagne.

"One from Belgium via the Sambre and Oise and Compiegne, after suffering immense losses, probably crossed the Marne near Château Thierry.

"The second must be that against which we fought before Mézières and in the Porcien district.

"The third was concentrated in Luxemburg and seems to have slipped across the Argonne and the upper Valley of the Aisne, after furious fighting when traversing the Meuse further north.

"The situation of the allied forces is not revealed."

The Liberté prints the details of the fighting Sunday near La Ferte Gaucher, gathered from a wounded Sergeant. He said:

"We received orders to hold the position south above town until the Allies, operating near Meaux, had repulsed the attempted turning movement by the enemy. Early in the afternoon the enemy retreated to the northeast disordered and opposing feeble resistance. We pursued two German infantry regiments, supported by cavalry and artillery, 30 kilometers, and captured seven cannon, two quickfirers, and many prisoners. One of the latter, a sergeant of Prussian infantry, admitted that his men were almost without ammunition and had received formal orders to husband them as much as possible.

WEST OF ALLIED ARMIES, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—I have been all over the present battle ground since the beginning of the war, and from my knowledge of the ground I can say that the Germans certainly now hold the worst position.

The Ourcq and Montmirail are the limits of their western line and form a circle of heights, occupied by the French.

The Germans, on the other hand, east of the Oise from Sezanne as far as Vitry-le-François, are on an absolutely level plain, with no protection whatever.

FIRST SUCCESS FOR ALLIES.

Evidence Plenty That Big Fight Will Be at the Centre.

By G. H. PERRIS.

NEW YORK TIMES-London Daily Chronicle War Service.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Where are the jolly boys whose march out to the firing line I watched Monday evening?

Some are dead, others wounded, and a few lost, perhaps. The remainder are happy in their victory. How great a victory or what is its bearing upon the position in the whole wide field of battle it is still too soon to say.

The official records of the series of actions on the French left and the German right wings to the east of Paris are brief and not too clear, but their main purport is unquestionably cheering.

The major facts, which are clear in the official notes, are that the German right in its southward advance has been stopped both on the west and the south, has been compelled to retire, and is being ceaselessly harried, a fact even more important for its consequences further east than in its local effects.

It would be altogether premature to suppose that the main German movement which, I am persuaded, is aimed at a concentration in the east of France for the purpose of a junction of all the German armies, is yet decisively checked.

That may yet take some time, and it involves a departure from the temporizing tactics of which Gen. Joffre has proved himself a master.

The above generalities may be supplemented by some details, given by soldiers wounded in the fighting on the French left wing near Meaux, Coulommiers, and La Fertegaucher, who reached Paris last night and today. A Sergeant of infantry gave the following account of his experience:

"We had been ready since Friday. That evening and during Saturday the sound of cannon came ever nearer without our being engaged. On that evening we had orders to fall back beyond C——, but during the night we advanced afresh and our regiment gathered on a hillside.

"At dawn on Sunday we came in touch with the enemy, who were attempting a turning movement on our left. We were told to hold firm until our British allies, who were acting in the neighborhood of Meaux, had repelled the German force on the side. There was no difficulty in doing so, for from the beginning of the afternoon the enemy fell back in disorder toward the east.

"There was, however, a very lively engagement to the north of La Fertegaucher. This continued all night and was at its height on Monday morning.

"Thenceforward the Germans offered only a feeble resistance. We chased two German regiments, supported by a party of cavalry and a detachment of artillery, for nearly twenty miles. During this precipitate retreat not a single shot was fired on the German side, while we kept up a hot fire all the time with deadly effect."

Says Two Corps Were Defeated.

An officer of the infantry expressed the opinion that the defeated Germans of this two-day battle comprised two army corps. He said:

"They had enormous losses. I saw more than 800 corpses in a single trench. Our men were superb. Despite orders, one of our battalions charged a German battery, breaking the enemy's lines, although they were well placed. We noticed that many of the Germans had run out of ammunition. They retired as fast as they could, passing through the villages without firing a shot. They seemed tired out.

M. Dausset, an active member of Paris Municipal Council, happened to be near Coulommiers yesterday, and thus describes a visit to one of the villages whence the Germans had retreated:

"I shall never forget the spectacle we saw. The place was practically deserted. Only three women and a boy remained. They told us that the Germans came in large numbers on Sunday. They occupied the whole village and the neighboring farms. They looked harrassed as if they had been marching for days without a stop.

"Nearly all the houses being shut up, they broke open the doors, but they respected the few cottages that were still inhabited.

"I went to the Mairie to see for myself, and found it in indescribable disorder. In every room there were mattresses, sheets, and bundles of straw on which men had been sleeping, remnants of food, half-empty bottles, drawers piled on the floors, chests open in the yards, and eiderdown mattresses, pillows, and the like in the village square.

"In the church was more straw where men had been sleeping, and the remnants of rabbits, fowl, and pieces of meat.

"We entered some of the houses. In the more comfortable chalk marks showed that such a room was allotted to a Lieutenant and such another to a Captain.

"In a large but not very luxurious country house which they call the château, all the rooms have been occupied by the higher officers. In the large dining room the table was covered with fine white cloths, vases full of fresh cut roses, and dishes showing that several courses had been served.

"There even remained two serviettes folded in mitre shape before two chairs that had not been occupied. An oil lamp was still burning and a number of candles guttered over empty bottles into which they had been stuck. The invaders had drunk champagne from the cellars of the house—a good deal of it.

"Women who accompanied me said that nearly all the officers spoke French. They did not hurt any one, but took away all the provisions they could lay hands on.

"The first thing the officers asked for was a bath. They had certainly intended to remain, and in the bedrooms which I visited they had carefully drawn the blinds as though for a long sleep.

"At 2 o'clock in the morning they received a sudden signal to leave, and the district was evacuated immediately. There must then have been stiff fighting, for on our return we passed the bodies of thirty horses and some fresh-made graves."

TOO SOON TO CLAIM VICTORY.

But Standard's Critic Says "Balance of Success" Is with Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 10.—The Standard's military correspondent, Capt. F. S. Poutney writes:

"The general engagement which has been proceeding for at least three days in France continues with varying fortunes, but a considerable balance of success seems to rest with the Allies. That is about the extent of the claim that we ought to make at this stage. The British Army has been in action from the beginning of this great battle, in an offensive rôle at last, and it is satisfactory to know that it has been continuously successful in driving back the enemy. The last official message from Paris says the enemy is falling back before the British Army.

The battle front has a length of very nearly 200 miles stretching from the River Ourcq forty miles northeast of Paris, through Montmirail and Fere Champenoise to Vitry-le-François on the upper waters of the Marne, twenty miles south of Chalons; thence it runs eastward and northward past the southern end of the Argonne ridge to the line of the barrier forts between Verdun and Toul. The continuation follows that line through Toul to Nancy and Lunéville. The position with regard to the section of line that lies between the Aisne and the Meuse is not clear, but the French field armies must be a good deal south of Verdun, and that fortress must be taking care of itself for the moment, at least.

"The Allies are supposed to be on the offensive along the whole line, and the sections on which the interest is focused are the left and centre. The left may be said to run from the Ourcq to Vitry-le-Francois and the centre from Vitry to the Meuse. On the left the British Army and two French armies are making a most important attempt to envelop and crush the German right, and a considerable amount of success has already attended their efforts. The British with the Fifth French Army, acting on the right, have thrust the enemy back some twenty miles, first over the Grand Morin, then the Petit Morin, and finally the Marne.

"That was the result of the first two days' fighting, and yesterday's news tells us that the Germans are still falling back, possibly in a northeasterly direction.

"The right flank of this retreating army or armies is evidently gravely menaced by the Sixth French Army, posted on the right bank of the Ourcq, for we had strong reinforcements rushed across from the centre, and a number of fierce attacks were delivered against the French on the Ourcq, with a view to at least preventing aggressive action on their part against the exposed German flank.

"These attacks seem to have been successfully repulsed, and the German right remains in danger—a danger that will become acute if the successful advance of the British and Fifth French Army continues. If all goes well with these two armies, we ought to see the German right, if it be not beaten and broken, thrown back at right angles to the rest of the German line and so cut the enemy's own lines of communication. The allied force employed in this work is good enough for anything.

"The key to the situation, however, seems to lie in the centre between some point west of Vitry and the Meuse south of Verdun, where the German armies have been brought close in together to burst by main force through the allied line and break it into two halves to be destroyed separately. We knew that a number of fiercely contested battles have already been fought in this section, and there is reason to believe the French have held their own. They must continue to do so, for the attack on the German right to have any prospect of success. But the successful development of the flanking movement will naturally exercise an influence beneficial to the French in the centre because the enemy will have to continue to draw troops from that section to support the right.

"We may take it that the French in the centre are fighting with certain solid advantages in their favor, such as a terrain to their liking and quick, easy, lateral lines of communication for conveying well placed reserves to any part of the line.

"Gen. Joffre's long and strategic retreat has certainly not been made for nothing. We may also be certain that the French Army will fully maintain the best fighting traditions and come out of it with honor and credit.

"Complete success in this portion of the field would have a vital influence on the fortunes of war in the west, and might lead to a big German disaster in which the enveloping movement of the Anglo-French armies referred to above would play a great part.

"Non-success, on the other hand, need not mean disaster to the Allies; only further retirement and a prolongation of agony from which France now suffers."

Spencer Wilkinson, writing in The Morning Post, says:

"A German advance along the line of the Laon-Rheims-Chalons-Chaumont, if it could be carried through, must break the French left wing and bring the German Army which accomplished it on to the rear of the French right wing, spread out from Verdun to Belfort. Then a vigorous attack from Alsace and Lorraine would drive back the French right wing, which would be taken in the rear by the victorious German right wing. That is evidently the plan, and if it succeeds the positon of the French Army will be desperate.

"I find it hard to believe that the Germans can have sent any troops away from France to Russia before the decision of the battle now raging. I think it much more likely that the troops, moved by rail from Belgium, have been sent round to Alsace and Lorraine for an attack on the French right wing, which ought not to be delivered until the battle round Chalons has been decided.

"If the Germans have really sent a considerable number of troops to the eastern frontier, this plan of trying to break through between Paris and Verdun has the advantage that, in case of failure, their retreat across the Meuse to Luxemburg is much shorter than would have been a retreat from the Seine below Paris.

PARIS SEES TURN OF TIDE.

Believes Germany Has Expended Her Entire Strength.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The opinion now prevails that Germany has expended her entire strength in invading France, and that the tide is rapidly turning in favor of the Allies.

According to every one returning from the battlefield, the morale of the French and English troops is excellent. They are in a strong position, and the odds are in favor of their driving the Germans into a retreat.

The big question of war, "What can the Allies do against the German heavy artillery?" was answered today by a prominent military authority, who spent yesterday on the field under shell fire nearly the entire time. He said: "The French are now so accustomed to the enemy's heavy guns that they no longer mind them, but go right on with the bayonet.

"I never saw such courage, such dash, such discipline, such patriotism, such faith in certain victory. It is undoubtedly true that the Germans' heavy guns as well as their greater numbers facilitated their rapid advance from Belgium against our left wing.

"Their shell fire is very effective, but the French seventy-fives are causing tremendous havoc. I saw great mounds of German dead. They had fallen on top of each other in a charge, so sweeping was the French fire. The district visited was due east of Paris beyond Meux."

From the same source came an explanation, probably nearer the truth than many already reported, for the Germans' sudden move into the Southeast last week instead of continuing their march against Paris. It was that their line of communication was threatened or cut by a flanking army advancing from Ostend, the Germans being thereby compelled to join their army to the east. Latest reports, however, are that the Crown Prince's army advancing from Luxemburg has been pressed back severely.

The fighting has been so close to Paris that numbers of prominent persons have been allowed to go near in automobiles. They include Assistant Secretary of War Breckenridge, Robert Bacon, and a number of American army officers. They are all enthusiastic in their reports of the vigor shown by the Allies, a common remark of the soldiers being, "They have come this far, but here is where we finish them."

The American ambulance is now actively engaged. There are already fifty wounded at the Lycée Pasteur, where two hundred and fifty beds have been installed. The hospital arrangements are so perfect as to bring forth the highest praise from the French. One official unhesitatingly declaring: "There is nothing in France to equal it." In fact, the French are reserving it for difficult cases.

There have been ten ambulances during the last two nights, each machine in charge of an American doctor and nurse. They have been picking up wounded on the battlefield and speeding into Paris in the early morning.

I visited the hospital this morning and found a majority of the cases were British Tommies, who were overjoyed to find themselves where English is spoken. Other cases were Turcos, happy but bewildered, to find themselves in sanitary white beds between clean linen sheets and tended by efficient American trained nurses. A number of minor cases will be sent back to the fighting line in a week, but as one cheerful Tommy remarked: "If I didn't want another go at those Germans I would never leave this blooming place."

Today's issue of the Patrie presents a curious appearance with numerous gaps in the final column of the front page, where passages have been expunged. Strangely enough, some copies of this identical edition have this column—which describes the experience on the battlefield of an ambulance assistant—quite intact, from which it is seen that the parts expunged refer in the vaguest terms to the association of the writer with Turcos and proceed to give details about the latter's fighting power and subsequent withdrawal of the Germans.

Throughout the article there is nothing which could possibly give a clue to the locality where the troops are moving. Compared with it the laconic official communiqués appear mines of verbosity and information.

The Paris Midi states that Léon Mirman, Prefect of the Meurthe-et-Moselle, in which the fortress of Nancy is situated, gave recent orders that until further notice from Sept. 2 no lighted windows would be permitted after nightfall, and that any citizen contravening this order would be liable to arrest.

Denis Cochin, Deputy for the Eighth Arrondissement of Paris and chief of the Conservative Party, informed The Petit Parisien on his return yesterday from Bordeaux that for forty-eight hours he held a ministerial position, though without portfolio. Not considering that such a post gave sufficient scope for his energy, M. Cochin asked to be allowed to take a more active under-secretaryship. This being impossible, he promptly resigned and returned to Paris as official inspector of powder factories.

Among the remarkable changes produced in Paris by the war one of the greatest is noticed at Montmartre, known to the majority of visitors as the scene of innumerable gay night resorts. An edict issued the second day of mobilization ordering the cafés shut at 8 P. M. and restaurants at 9:30 effectually closed the district; while the departure in flight or to fight of their habitués rendered it hopeless to attempt to do business till the small hours of the morning.

It is surprising how many Montmartre "boites" bear the notice that the proprietor and personnel have gone to the front. Considering their foreign clientèle, one would never have thought they were all French-owned. The Moulin Rouge has become a cinematograph show. The Rat Mort, the Cigale, the Bal Tabarin, the Royale, and the cafés Hell and Heaven are all shut, but the Abbaye de Thélème, the most famous of these resorts, is distributing relief to needy women and children living in the neighborhood. A few others are similarly devoted to charities, but after nightfall Montmartre follows the example of the rest of the city and retires respectably to bed.

GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS UP.

But the Allies Are Vigorously Pressing Their Advantage.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9 (Dispatch to The London Standard).—The main feature of the fighting the last four days has been the vigorous offensive assumed by the British and French armies in co-operation, by means of which the Germans have been driven back at many points and compelled to withdraw, partly in a northerly and partly in a northeasterly direction.

In many parts of the battlefield the German retreat assumed the character of a disorderly flight, in the wake of which the allied armies pursued the enemy and captured prisoners, ammunition, food supplies, and other material of war.

At every point of contact between the British and Germans the British troops revealed the fighting qualities and military efficiency which they had previously shown in the withdrawal from Mons. They outmatched the Germans in accuracy and steadiness of aim in artillery fire and in dash and resourcefulness.

At some points the German onslaughts were delivered with all the formidable weight resulting from numerical strength. They concentrated men in such a way as to hurl dense columns at numerically inferior bodies of the allied forces.

The British and French have driven back with tremendous losses a large part of the opposing German forces and repelled attacks on other parts of the lines. Nowhere have they suffered reverses.

The balance up to this point is distinctly in their favor.

The invincibility of the Germans has become an exploded theory, but the Germans are bringing up reinforcements and the battle continues with unabated fury.

MASS ON ALLIES' CENTRE.

Germans Are Striking Hard, but Pau's Troops Are Advancing.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The allied armies in France continue to have the advantage in what are thought here the preliminaries of a great battle.

The Germans, who have brought up reinforcements, are striking at the Allies' left and centre between Montmirail and Vitry-le-Francois, a front of 50 to 60 miles, but have been driven back.

This does not surprise military men, as the Germans have been compelled to advance through the swamps of the Petit Morin and over bare uplands. It seems their only chance, however, and it is expected that they will strike and strike again. They are bringing reinforcements down from Chalons on the roads, leading to Fere-Champenoise, Sommesous, and Sompuis, in the face of French artillery posted on the heights.

Gen. Pau, who commands the French centre, is reported to be advancing north of Sezanne toward the plateaux, which command the centre of the battlefield.

In the east the Germans have failed in their attempts to break across the rivers and through the hills of Argonne between Vitry-le-François and Verdun on the right wing of the Allies.

It is thought here that the Germans may be trying to draw the Allies into an attack upon the high ground between the Marne and the Aisne, about Rheims, and while it is believed that some of the edge has been taken off the German defensive, it is not probable that it has all been removed.

Some observers say that if the Allies' attack on the German centre and to the left of the centre, where the battle is raging, should be successful, a wedge will be driven between the German right and left that will put the enemy's right in a dangerous position.

Attention is called to the fact that another great conflict of arms is taking place on the plains of Chalons, where Attila, called the "Scourge of God," was defeated by the allied Visigoths and Romans, and where Napoleon once conducted the most brilliant defensive campaign of his career.

The report that a great Russian force had gone to join the Allies in France seems to have risen from the fact that Russian reservists from England, the United States, and other countries, who could not get to their own country, had at the desire of Emperor Nicholas, joined the French Army.

India is sending 70,000 troops. They include the army of occupation and the native forces, who are to be commanded by their Princes and Chiefs.

The official bureau has denied the report that Dominion troops have arrived, and while no statement has been issued regarding the movements of the Indian contingent, except that some of them left India several weeks ago, the opinion is general that they have joined Gen. French's force or are about to do so.

GERMANS REST FIRING FORCE.

Rush Up Fresh Men in Motor Cars and Relieve the Line.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Daily Standard publishes an interview with a wounded soldier home from the front, who describes German methods of fighting.

"It is very hard," he said, "for us to get any real grasp of their scheme of fighting, and it is not always possible to realize how much depends on our resistance of a particular point, but as a rule we fight for all we are worth and take a chance of losing more than the game is worth. The impression we got was that the Germans had so many men available at any point where they delivered an attack that as soon as one body got tired or showed signs of losing their nerve under fire it was recalled to the rear and replaced by fresh men, who were brought up in motors and all sorts of vehicles.

"The used-up men were then taken away, and very likely came on again after a rest.

"That is altogether a new way of fighting, but I fancy the Germans go on the principle that enough is as good as a feast in what they get from our rifle fire.

"I heard it said many times by our lads that the Germans were using expanding bullets of the dumdum pattern, but I have had no personal experience. My wound was a particularly clean one from an ordinary rifle bullet, and I did not know I was hit until three hours after I must have got hit. Many of our men go on fighting for hours after being hit, simply because in the excitement they do not feel the bullet going into them. I saw a case where a bullet passed through two men in succession and then glanced off a cavalryman's saddle."

TANGLED GERMANS IN DENSE FORESTS

English Manoeuvre Was a Large Factor in Breaking Up von Kluk's Forces.

WOODS THEN SET ON FIRE

Report Says That a Whole German Army Corps Was Destroyed in the Encounters There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—I came to Paris with the object of beating up the country in the rear of our troops to find out as much as I could of the real reason for the sudden change of aspect which had come over the line of battle.

The change appears to have two direct causes. In the first place the Germans have been led into a thickly wooded country, constituting the area comprising Compeigne, Chantilly, and Senlis. These forests are particularly dense and cut through by glades, roads, and railways, forming excellent ground for infantry with a liking for the bayonet, but hopeless for the Germans, who prefer to rely upon long distance artillery practice and rapid movements of cavalry, supported by infantry in motor cars.

Here it was hand to hand work after the battle of Compiègne, and it was altogether favorable to the British. The latter, nevertheless, executed a strategical retreat further into the forests and then fell upon the enemy south of Senlis with such terrible results that he was confirmed in his eastward movement out of the dangerous country.

It is well to note also that the road to Paris from the northwest by Meulan and Conflans presents similar difficulties, and would have to be fought inch by inch in a hand-to-hand conflict. At the same time the opposite bank of the Seine has ridges of hill with open country in front, which would render a crossing of the river extremely hazardous.

On the other hand Gen. Von Kluk was anxious to join hands with the army under the Crown Prince, advancing southward from the Belgian-Luxemburg frontier. This junction has been made somewhere about La Ferté-sous-Jouarre, east of Meaux, and in the battle, now preceeding and distinctly audible in the Paris suburbs, the Germans form an unbroken line, now extending via Lisy-sur-Lourcq through La Ferté-sous-Jouarre and Sezanne eastward.

Thirdly, although a battle is in progress, the Germans appear to be inclined to mark time. It may be that this is due to the effort being made to reduce Maubeuge, which is the only strong place menacing their Belgian rear, and is occupying the bulk of their siege artillery, so that if they attempted an attack in strength upon Paris they have not the necessary backing.

However just these appreciations may be, one fact stands out clearly. The British on the left wing have altered the entire aspect of affairs. The forests of Chantilly should rank with the plains of Waterloo. The sterling work done in the shadow of these ancient trees should go down in history. Despite the sentimental French advice, they fired part of the woods and slew the Germans concealed therein as they scuttled forth.

In the glades mentioned the cavalry executed some telling charges. The Scots Greys and Twelfth Lancers particularly distinguished themselves.

The Germans had not expected this form of attack in the depths of the forest. It was stirring but risky work, and among the notable incidents was a narrow escape by Gordon Highlanders, who, by finding a sandy ditch, just missed a galling fire from machine guns commanding a glade. In the burning of the wood and its results a full German Army corps is stated to have perished. The British, advancing from the line between Senlis, Fontaine, and Ermenonville, drove the Germans back in disorder upon Nanteuil-le-Haudouin.

Alighting in Paris in the early hours of the morning, I met some prisoners taken in this engagement. They were absolutely dropping with fatigue.

I was told that all the German prisoners had the same tale to tell, because they had not been allowed by the Allies to rest, either day or night, and this had been going on for weeks.

AMONG 'MISSING OR WOUNDED.'

Names of Several Distinguished British on Midnight List.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 10.—Many distinguished names appear on the roll of casualties issued at midnight.

Among the officers of the Royal Guards reported wounded or missing are Viscount Castlerosse, Lord Alastair Robert Edward Innes-Kerr, brother of the Duke of Roxburghe. Capt. Lord Desmond Fitzgerald, reported wounded, is the heir presumptive of the Duke of Leinster.

Lieut. C. N. Champion de Crespigny of the Queen's Bays, killed in action, is a member of a family descended from the Crusaders. The Hon. W. D. Sclater-Booth of the Royal Horse Artillery, among the wounded, is a brother of Lord Basing.

Lord Alastair Innes-Kerr married in 1907 Miss Anne Breese, daughter of the late W. L. Breese of New York. He was born in 1880, and gained distinction in the South African war. His elder brother, the present Duke of Roxburghe, married Miss May Goelet of New York.

Commander of German Post Near Luneville Tells of Slaughter.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DIEPPE, Sept. 10, (Dispatch to The London Standard.)—Two trains are now running with regularity between Paris and Dieppe and the latest news from the capital is excellent. In Paris there is undoubtedly confidence in the approaching success of the Allies' tactics, and the British forces have taken up positions, which will allow of converting any reverse of the invaders into rout and disaster.

From the outset we have had very sketchy information of what went on in Alsace, but it is certain that the Germans bought the temporary victories they claim there very dearly. A German commander who was taken prisoner and is now interned at Cette said: "We were 5,000, posted to the north of Lunéville when we were surprised by superior French forces converging upon us and forcing a fight. Their artillery began it and the infantry joined in till we were inundated with an awful avalanche of lead, and our men fell like flies.

"After two hours of this fearful struggle, there were only a few hundreds of us left, and as I saw that all further resistance was useless and we had done our duty as long as possible, I called together the eleven officers and the non-commissioned officers surviving and asked if they did not think it better to surrender. They all agreed, and a soldier gave me his white shirt, which I hoisted on a rifle bayonet.

"The batteries in front of us ceased firing, but another which could not see our white flag continued for another half hour, smashing up everything, heads, bodies, and limbs.

"At last the cannonade ceased, but there were only 280 of us alive."

dum-dum bullets and against the participation of the Belgian population in the war.

"Emperor William adds in his communication to Mr. Wilson that his Generals have in certain cases been compelled to punish the Belgians, and he expressed his deep regret at the destruction of Louvain and other interesting places."

ROME, Sept. 9.—The Messagero, commenting upon the message which Emperor William sent to President Wilson, says:

"The Emperor understood that the barbaric destruction of Louvain had aroused the indignation of the civilised world. Therefore he tries to justify the brutal violence perpetrated against the laws of humanity and the rules of war."

The paper adds that the German version concerning the attack on Louvain is contradicted by documentary evidence in the possession of the Belgian Government.

The British Government made an official denial on Sept. 5 to the German charges that dum-dum bullets had been found on English and French prisoners. The statement which the British gave out to this effect was as follows:

"Neither the British nor the French Army has in its possession or has issued any but approved patterns of rifle and revolver ammunition, which do not infringe in any respect on the provisions of The Hague Convention."

moving to protect the Austrian left flank.

For some twenty-four hours the effect of the German move was felt. It delayed the encircling movement of the Russian armies, but this obstacle has been overcome and the Russian armies are moving forward, driving the Germans before them on the left or western bank of the Vistula.

The retiring Germans have Cracow, two or three marches behind them, on which to rally. Cracow is about on the same meridian as Königsberg, and the Russian forces are already almost leveled up to this meridian, with their armies in East Prussia 200 miles north of the present centre of interest.

The sole obstacle now to the completion of the grandiose strategic scheme of the Russian commander is the Austrian main army fighting its last fight with its back to its last fortress, Przemysl, and the Carpathians.

Until Austria is disposed of Russia will not begin her westward march on a front 200 miles wide that will sweep many millions strong like a tidal wave across the present German Empire from east to west.

Whether Germany has played the game fairly by her only ally historians will decide. At present Austria is badly in need of those heavy siege batteries and that army corps which she sent to help Germany on the French frontiers, while all we hear of German help to Austria is the one German division now retreating toward Cracow before the pressure of the Russian advance.

Such being the strategic scheme for the future we must now turn to the strategy and tactics of the conflict with the Austrian main armies assisted by the German division. The Russians, moving from north to south from Lublin and Kholm, are steadily driving back the Austrian centre into the fatal aceldama that awaits them in the impracticable marshy ground about the San and its confluents.

The Russian armies moving east to west are threatening the rear of the Austrian main armies to prevent this movement, and if successful this obviously means the utter destruction of Austria's armies.

A desperate struggle is in progress at Rava-Russka, the key to the whole tactical situation at the present moment. The Austrians are officially reported to be fighting there with large forces. It is the last stand of an out-manoeuvred army conscious that defeat means annihilation.

The Russians, while attacking the Austrian forces at Rava-Russka in sufficient strength to insure an Austrian concentration at that key of the tactical position, are also attacking Gorodok or Grodek. This place is 32 miles south of Rava-Russka and 18 west of Lvov. It has been strongly fortified and is being held with the courage of despair by the Austrians.

Its fall, which is momentarily expected, will bring the Russians in strength upon the rear of the Austrians at Rava-Russka. Presumably, therefore, the Russians are content in the meantime to hold the Austrians fast at Rava-Russka and compel them to concentrate on this point until the Russian forces, composed chiefly of the victorious armies of Gens. Ruzsky and Broussiloff, have time to come upon the Austrian rear. The loss of either Rava-Russka or Gorodok equally means annihilation to Austria.

Ten of the heavy calibre guns taken from the Germans were brought to Petrograd today, the crowd cheering the soldiers in charge as the guns were drawn through the streets to the arsenal.

The condition of that well-known figure, Maxim Kovalesky, the member of the Council of the Empire, who is detained as a prisoner of war by the Germans, is causing great anxiety. Maxim Kovalesky is a recognised European authority as a scholar apart from his public activity as a legislator. He was at a German resort, being in a poor state of health, and according to the story told by a lady who escaped thence is destitute even of common comforts, the Germans refusing all facilities and treating him with extreme harshness.

Col. Knox, the British Military Attaché, who has returned from the front for a few days, was with Gen. Samsonoff, who was recently killed with others of his staff while looking over a map by a German shell which pitched right in the middle of the group of staff officers around the map.

Col. Knox saw a Zeppelin airship brought down.

GERMANS HEAR OF VICTORIES.

Are Told Austro-German Forces Win All Along the Line in Poland.

BERLIN, (via Copenhagen and London,) Sept. 9.—Major Moraht, the military critic of the Tageblatt, writes:

"Yesterday's news that the Silesian landwehr have taken 1,000 prisoners from Russian and Caucasian corps and the news from Vienna that German troops occupied Radom, (Russian Poland,) on Aug. 29, together with earlier reports of a German occupation of Lodz and Petrikau, throw a welcome light on a hitherto ignored section of the battle front and indicate that the Germans marched in a broad front over the Silesian and Posen frontiers into Russian Poland and are in touch with the Austrian column advancing through Kielce, (a Province in Russian Poland bordering on Galicia.)

"The Germans must now be, or immediately will be, before Ivangorod, and if the columns at Lodz and Petrikau advanced they also must have reached the Vistula, with their left wing touching the fortress in the district of Warsaw.

"If indications do not deceive, we are in the presence of a German offensive across the Vistula River which will cooperate opportunely and strongly with the Austrian offensive at Lublin."

Special to The New York Times.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 9.—German agents are spreading alarmist reports in the Balkans.

The Ikdam of Constantinople learns that a big revolt has broken out in Caucasia against Russia and that it is rapidly spreading and assuming great proportions. The rebels have blown up a bridge on the River Araxe, on which was the only railway line joining Russia to Persia. The Russian troops, with their arms and baggage, are flying toward the Turkish frontier. A large number of soldiers have already crossed the Turkish frontier and are taking refuge in Turkish territory. In Caucasia the prices of foodstuffs have quadrupled. It becomes more and more difficult to quell the rebellion.

There is not a word of truth in the whole story.

Dr. Alexander Nuber von Pereked, the Austro-Hungarian Consul General, who arrived from Europe last Monday, complained yesterday of what he termed exaggerated reports of Austro-Hungarian losses in battles with the Russians. He said he did not believe that any large numbers of Austrians had surrendered to the Russians, and criticised reports cabled to the newspapers from Russia, France and England which told of German and Austro-Hungarian losses and military reverses.

"In my opinion," said Dr. Pereked, "the reports are highly colored and in many instances grossly exaggerated. I met newspaper men in Vienna recently who complained that they could not get their reports through to New York, and that the reports that did get through went by way of London, where they are cut and changed, the result being that the Americans are not getting the news fairly stated."

VIENNA FULL OF WOUNDED.

Losses of Austrians and Germans on Russian Frontier Enormous.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The Vienna hospitals are insufficient to contain the wounded conveyed from Galicia and Poland. Even the schools, convents, churches, and other public buildings are overcrowded, and the wounded are now being sent to other cities.

The newspapers say that most of the wounds are only slight, and that recovery is certain, but admit that the Austrian losses have been heaviest.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 10.—The correspondent of The Central News at Petrograd sends the following:

"The Slavonic natives of Austria arriving here as prisoners of war declare they were placed in front of the battle line purposely by the Austrians.

"It is proposed to lodge the wounded Austrians and Germans in the empty German and Austrian Embassies.

"Trains filled with large numbers of Russians and Austrians, wounded at Lemberg, and also with prisoners, have arrived here."

The extent of the losses during the first six weeks of the war places all previous casualties far in the background, according to the Petrograd correspondent of The Times. Not fewer than 10,000 dead Germans were counted in the trenches after one engagement in East Prussia.

"On the fateful Sept. 1," he continues, "when two Russian corps came to death grips with four German corps north of Soldau, the losses of both sides totaled between 60,000 and 70,000, the majority being Germans."

LEMBERG WELCOMED RUZSKY.

People Hailed Russian General as Deliverer and Strewed Flowers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 8 (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle).—In the Lublin Government the Russians continue to force back the Austrian armies and to take prisoners, guns and stores. The Austrian left is now thrown back as far as Rava-Russka, in Galicia, where heavy fighting is proceeding.

In Eastern Prussia the opposing forces are preparing for another struggle and in the meantime patrol skirmishes are taking place daily. The Germans have brought up reinforcements to the number of 100,000 and Landsturm forces are being forwarded from Schleswig toward the Russian frontier.

Gen. Ruzsky and his army have covered themselves with glory in the taking of Lemberg. The inhabitants of Lemberg welcomed the Russians as deliverers and strewed flowers before them as they passed. A deputation came to Gen. Ruzsky and requested him to make known to the Czar the readiness of the whole Slav population of the city to be loyal sons of Russia.

The enthusiasm aroused by the war in all classes of the Russian people has not flagged. Nearly all the prominent public men are working day and night in the Red Cross and other relief organizations. M. Homiakov, former Speaker of the Duma, has infused into the Red Cross in Kiev new energy by undertaking himself the humblest work, such as bearing stretchers with wounded and even washing floors and windows in the temporary hospitals.

The Finns are not liable to military service, but a number of them now are volunteering and the Czar has ordered that all facilities shall be given for their reception into the ranks of the army.

TRADE IN RUSSIA GOOD.

Business at Nijni-Novgorod Fair Little Affected by War.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The London Times says that the results of the fair at Nijni-Novgorod provide conclusive evidence of the comparatively small effect the war has had upon internal trade. Business was suspended for only two or three days at the beginning of mobilization, but afterward it was normal.

There was a brisk demand for goods from Central Asia, Persia, the Caucasus, and the Volga regions. A majority of firms are ready to extend credit to regular customers. The State bank, too, by active discounting, supports the fair. Furs alone suffered through the interruption of foreign trade.

CZAR VOWS TO GET BERLIN.

Even If It Costs Him His Last Moujik, He Is Credited with Saying.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Evening News publishes a dispatch from its Rome correspondent, who says that Emperor Nicholas is reported in Rome to have made the following declaration:

"I am resolved to go to Berlin itself, even if it costs me to lose my last moujik."

The Japanese Ambassador at Petrograd, the correspondent of The News continues, having expressed to the Emperor a wish to see the soldiers of Japan fighting side by side with those of Russia, the Emperor replied:

"I shall do my best to realize your wishes."

INDIA SUPPORTS BRITAIN—SIR JOHN FRENCH REPORTS ON THE CAMPAIGN.

INDIA EAGERLY SUPPORTS EMPIRE

Germany Had Counted on a Revolt, but There Is a Wave of Patriotism.

MEN AND MONEY OFFERED

One Ruler Gives $1,600,000—Other Princes Even Offer England Their Famous Jewels.

MESSAGE FROM THE KING

He Thanks the Dominions for Their Aid and Says the Conflict Was Not Sought by Britain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The German Kaiser's most astonishing miscalculation in regard to the present war was based on the supposed disloyalty of Great Britain's Indian Empire. Yet, amid all the demonstrations of imperial unity that this crisis has evoked none has been more splendid than the spontaneous proffers of help in men and money showered on the Imperial Government by the Indian potentates.

Parliament was roused to the most intense enthusiasm today as a Government official detailed a few examples of the lavish offers coming from India, where, the Kaiser had been advised, Great Britain's entanglement in a European war would be a sure signal for a repetition of the horrors of the Indian Mutiny.

The Gaekwar of Baroda, one of India's most powerful Princes, has volunteered to fight at the head of a native contingent. Another Prince has offered thousands of horses, another 10,000 men fully equipped and to be maintained in the field, while yet another has placed his vast collection of jewels at the service of the State " to wage this war in the interest of civilization."

Even in England some fears had been entertained about the loyalty of certain of the Indian Princes and people, and the House of Commons cheered itself hoarse as the stirring catalogue of these great and timely gifts, marked by an opulence truly Oriental, was unfolded.

A. Bonar Law, the Opposition leader, said he wished that the great tidings be published to the whole world.

Troops All Want to Serve.

These demonstrations are not confined to the Princes. Everywhere throughout India the people are equally united and enthusiastic, and so great is the emulation among the native troops to go to the front that those unavoidably left behind have to be placated with all manner of diplomatic apologies.

These were the troops on whose indirect support the Kaiser's advisers had taught him to reckon in his scheme for disrupting and destroying the British Empire.

In the preparation of his trumpet call to the British people and dominions, issued today, King George was, according to a well-informed authority, assisted by Winston S. Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—In the House of Commons this afternoon C. Roberts, one of the Under Secretaries of the Colonial Department, read a message from the Viceroy of India, which said that the rulers of the Indian native States, nearly 700 in number, had with one accord rallied to the defense of the empire with personal offers of service as well as the resources of their States.

One Indian chief, Sir Pertal Singh, 70 years of age, had demanded the right to render military service, together with his nephew, a youth of 16, who was now with the expeditionary force, it was added. Offers of troops, horses, money, and even jewels had rolled in, the Viceroy said.

The Dalai Llamo of Tibet had offered a thousand soldiers to aid the empire, and thousands of Llamas were praying daily for the success of the British forces and for the repose of the souls of the dead. In addition to giving men and money, some of the native rulers of India were equipping a hospital ship.

The House was deeply moved by this message, and its reading was greeted with cheer upon cheer.

The Force from India.

Speaking of the expeditionary force from India, Mr. Roberts said it contained, besides units of the regular army, contingents of the Imperial Service troops maintained in the larger States of India. From twelve of these States the Viceroy had accepted contingents of cavalry, infantry, sappers, and transport, besides a camel corps from Bikanir. The Maharajah of Mysore had placed fifty lakhs of rupees (about $1,600,000) at the disposal of the Government in connection with the expenditure for the expeditionary force.

Mr. Roberts said that in addition to the gift of the Maharajah of Mysore the Maharajahs of Gwalior and Bhopal had contributed large sums of money and provided thousands of horses as remounts. The Maharajah of Rewa had offered his troops and treasure, even his privately owned jewels, for the service of the King-Emperor. The Maharajah (Holkar) of Indore had made a gift of all the horses in the army of his State.

A similar desire to help the Government had, it was added, been expressed by committees representing religious, political, and social associations of all classes and creeds. Chiefs who were at present in Europe, like the Gaekwar of Baroda, had placed the whole resources of their States at the command of the Government.

King's Message to Colonies.

The Official Information Bureau today gave out a message from King George to the British colonies. It is as follows:

"During the past few weeks the peoples of my whole empire, at home and overseas, have moved with one mind and purpose to confront and overthrow an unparalleled assault upon the continuity of civilization and the peace of mankind.

"The calamitous conflict is not of my seeking. My voice has been cast throughout on the side of peace. My Ministers earnestly strove to allay the causes of the strife and to appease differences with which my empire was not concerned. Had I stood aside when, in defiance of pledges to which my kingdom was a party, the soil of Belgium was violated and her cities made desolate, when the very life of the French Nation was threatened with extinction, I should have sacrificed my honor and given to destruction the liberties of my empire and of mankind.

"I rejoice that every part of the empire is with me in this decision.

"Paramount regard for a treaty and faith in the pledged word of rulers and people is the common heritage of Great Britain and of the empire. My peoples in the self-governing dominions have shown beyond all doubt that they whole-heartedly indorse the grave decision it was necessary to take. My personal knowledge of the loyalty and devotion of my oversea dominions had led me to expect that they would cheerfully make the great efforts and bear the great sacrifices which the present conflict entails. The full measure in which they have placed their services and resources at my disposal fills me with gratitude, and I am proud to be able to show to the world that my peoples oversea are as determined as the people of the United Kingdom to prosecute a just cause to a successful end.

The Dominions' Aid.

"The Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, and the Dominion of New Zealand have placed at my disposal their naval forces, which have already rendered good service for the empire. Strong expeditionary forces are being prepared in Canada, Australia, and New Zealand for service at the front, and the Union of South Africa has released all British troops and undertaken important military responsibilities, the discharge of which will be of the utmost value to the empire.

"Newfoundland has doubled the number of its branch of the Royal Naval Reserve, and is sending a body of men to take part in the operations at the front. From the Dominion and Provincial Governments of Canada large and welcome gifts of supplies are on their way for use both by my naval and military forces, and for the relief of distress in the United Kingdom, which must inevitably follow in the wake of the war.

"All parts of my oversea dominions have thus demonstrated, in the most unmistakable manner, the fundamental unity of the empire amid all its diversity of situation and circumstances."

A message similar to the foregoing has been addressed by King George to the Princes and peoples of India.

SIMLA, Sept. 9.—The Viceroy of India in council today announced that India was contributing £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) toward the cost of the Indian contingent in the war. This was in addition to applying the gift of the Maharajah of Mysore of fifty lakhs of rupees to the cost of transport.

The Viceroy outlined proposals for the consideration of the Indian people by which the Government of India proposes to negotiate reciprocal arrangements with other British colonies to meet the present difficulties regarding the emigration of Indians.

Under this plan a limited number of passports will be issued. It is similar to the present arrangement between Canada and Japan, which permits of temporary arrangements for the movements of students and tourists, but which strictly limits the right to settle permanently.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 9.—Reports received here today from Hongkong say that the British Cornwall and Gloucestershire regiments have been ordered to Marseilles.

The troops will leave Hongkong on Sept. 14, the Pacific Mail Line steamer Nile being used as a transport. She will be accompanied by the hospital ship Delta, and the two vessels will be convoyed by a British cruiser.

PRAISES BRITISH TROOPS.

Belgians Say That They Fight with Both Heads and Hearts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DIEPPE, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Standard.)—The most interesting and picturesque sight in Dieppe today was the entry about 1 o'clock of some eighty motor cars of Thirty-four Company from Namur.

The Belgians say that the English fight with both heads and hearts and that the Germans are afraid of them. They never give way or lose courage.

The French fight like tigers, too. They would back any British or French regiment without artillery to beat twice or three times as many Germans.

It is the tremendous mass of shot and shell poured in all the time by the Germans, they say, that gives them the advantages.

Among the German prisoners they took were many lads of sixteen, who could hardly lift a rifle and never fired from the shoulder.

A large proportion of the best German troops, he said, were left dead in Belgium and their places had been taken by the fruit of a levy en masse. The rest of the flower of the German Army is now near Paris, but there was probably no longer a single army corps of picked men.

WILL OFFER GERMAN LOAN.

Government Reported About to Seek $250,000,000 at 5 Per Cent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—From German newspapers just received, the London Times says, it appears that the Government is about to offer the loan authorized before the outbreak of the war. The Reichstag authorized borrowing up to $250,000,000. It is probable, however, that the Government will not fix the amount of the first issue. The loan, it is said, will be issued in the form of 5 per cent. Treasury bonds and Government notes. Both will be issued at 97.50.

The bonds and notes will be divided into five sections of $50,000,000 each, redeemable at intervals of six months, beginning Oct. 1, 1918.

ISLAM CONDEMNS BRITAIN.

Seizure of Turkish Warships Spoliation, New York Protest Declares.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A protest against Great Britain's seizure of the two battleships being built in England for Turkey, adopted at a meeting of Ottoman, Indian and Persian Mussulmans and Hindus in New York, has been sent to Congressmen here and members of the Cabinet.

"Great Britain may have had the right, strickly speaking, to take over those ships," says the protest, "but, since she was not at war with Turkey, nay, was on friendly terms with her, she was legally and morally bound to pay for them on the spot. She has not settled the account yet.

"What is the meaning of this attitude? Surely it can only be that Great Britain is secretly striving to destroy at any cost, that of her good fame included, the Ottoman Empire, the bulwark of Islam. Therefore, we, Ottoman, Indian and Persian Mussulmans and Hindus inhabiting New York, invite the world of Islam in its entirety to join in our protest."

GEN. FRENCH'S STORY OF LONG RETREAT

British Commander Pays Tribute to Men for Successful Issue of Hazardous Operation.

FOUGHT FOE INCESSANTLY

Often Unable to Intrench His Soldiers Still Battled Stubbornly Against Great Odds.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 10.—The London Gazette, issued last night, contains a report from Field Marshal French, commander of the British forces in France, on the doings of his forces.

The British took possession on Aug. 22, the report says, of a line from Condé, on the west, through Mons and Bianche, on the east. Gen. French understood that at the most two army corps were in front of the British position.

At 5 o'clock on the evening of Aug. 23 he received a most unexpected message from Gen. Joffre, the French Commander in Chief, that three German Army corps were moving on the British and that another corps was engaged in a turning movement from Tournai. Gen. Joffre also stated that the French Army on the British right was retiring.

As a result of this information he determined to retire to a position which he had previously reconnoitred, extending from Maubeuge, west of Jenlain, southeast of Valenciennes.

There was a certain amount of fighting along the whole line of the right. The retirement was carried out successfully throughout the 24th, amid continuous fighting.

Avoided Trap at Maubeuge.

"As the French troops were still retiring," Gen. French continues, "I had no support except from the fortress at Maubeuge, and determined attempts of the enemy to get around my left flank assured me that it was his intention to press me against that place and surround me. I felt not a moment must be lost in retiring to another position.

"This operation was full of danger and difficulty, not only owing to the very superior force in my front, but the exhaustion of my troops. The retirement commenced early in the morning of the 25th to a position near Le Cateau.

"Although the troops had been ordered to occupy Cambrai, Le Cateau, and Landrecies, and that the position and ground had, during the 25th, been partially prepared and intrinched, I had grave doubts, owing to information I received, regarding the accumulating strength of the enemy as to the wisdom of standing there to fight.

"Moreover, the retirement of the French troops on my right continued, and I determined to make a great effort to continue the retreat till I could put a substantial obstacle, such as the Somme River or the Oise River, between the British and the enemy, and afford the former some opportunity for rest and reorganization.

"Therefore, the corps commanders were ordered to retreat as soon as possible to a general line from St. Quentin to Ribemont."

Gen. French then describes the march through all that day and until late in the evening, during which time he was incessantly harassed by the enemy, who continued the attack late at night on the exhausted British. Gen. French continues:

"Gen. Sordet, commanding three cavalry divisons, whom I had called to my assistance, though he rendered valuable aid later, was unable to give any support on the most critical day, the 26th, owing to the exhaustion of his horses.

Assailed by Four Corps.

"At daybreak on the 26th it became apparent that the enemy was throwing the bulk of his strength against the left of our position, and the guns of four German army corps being in position against it, Gen. Smith Dorrien reported that he was unable to retire as ordered.

"In the face of such an attack it was impossible for me to support Gen. Dorrien, as the first corps at the moment was incapable of moving. There had been no time to intrench properly, but the troops showed a magnificent front to the terrible fire.

"Finally it became apparent that if complete annihilation was to be avoided, a retirement must be attempted, and an order was given to commence it at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The movement was covered with the most devoted intrepidity and determination by the artillery, which had still suffered heavily, and the fine work of the cavalry assisted materially in the completion of the most difficult and dangerous operation. Fortunately the enemy had suffered too heavily to engage in energetic pursuit.

"I cannot close this brief account of this glorious stand of the British without according deep appreciation to the valuable services of Gen. Smith Dorrien. The saving of the left wing of the whole army would have been impossible unless a commander of rare and unusual coolness and determination had been present to personally conduct the operation.

"The retreat was continued far into the night of the 26th and throughout the two following days, when the troops were halted on the line of Noyon, Chauny, and La Fére, having thrown off the weight of the enemy's pursuit. During these two days I was indebted to Gen. Sordet's cavalry division for assistance in repelling the enemy. Gen. d'Amade, also from the neighborhood of Arras, relieved the pressure on the British rear from the enemy's right flank."

In conclusion Gen. French pays a tribute to the scouting service of the army's flying corps.

JOFFRE CONFIDED IN MEN.

Had Officers Tell Soldiers Reason for Retirement and New Advance.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9 (Dispatch to The London Standard.)—The success achieved during the last day or two has produced a feeling of buoyant optimism in the capital.

Under orders from the Commander in Chief the French officers took their men into their confidence before starting the general offensive movement against the Germans which is now proceeding on the lines between Paris and Verdun. They explained to their men that the withdrawal from the extreme north of France had been purely strategical in character and that the plans of the General Staff, having now been carried out up to the present position, the moment had come for aggressive movement against the enemy.

Many of these patriotic speeches to the soldiers were extremely eloquent and excited tremendous enthusiasm among the French troops, whose spirit is truly remarkable.

Wounded soldiers from the front give vivid descriptions of the terrific fighting which has been going on each day from dawn to sunset. The British and French troops rest at night in the positions which they have gained during the day.

The silence of the night is occasionally disturbed by artillery fire or by collisions between patrols of cavalry belonging to the opposing armies or by skirmishes between outposts.

Notwithstanding the great strain on the men, owing to the heavy fighting all day, many movements have been carried out under the cover of darkness for the purpose of gaining more favorable positions. When the troops, moving for this purpose, come into contact with the enemy, there ensues sharp fighting in the darkness, the results of which are extremely difficult to ascertain until daybreak.

Wherever the Germans have yielded ground, the British and French have been eager to pursue them and have followed up relentlessly every advantage. The British cavalry has been especially active in driving back the retreating enemy.

All accounts agree that the slaughter of the Germans has been enormous. German prisoners who have been captured are depressed, disheartened and utterly exhausted by their forced marches.

A number of corpses dressed in the familiar gray uniform of the German Army have been seen floating down the Seine. Doubtless they come from the River Marne, which flows into the Seine to the eastward of Paris.

THE WAR SITUATION.

Allies Gain in Strength Daily—Efficient Scouting by Aeroplanes—Russians Prepare for Great Advance.

BY THE NEW YORK TIMES MILITARY EXPERT
(Associate Editor of The Army and Navy Journal.)

The position of the opposing armies in France is practically unchanged. The extreme left flank of the Allies' line has made a slight advance and has successfully driven back the counter-charges of the Germans. The centre of the Allies' line at Vitry is reported to be holding fast. While there is little change in the military positions of the forces, yet every day marks an appreciable gain by the Allies.

Like the campaign of Fabius against the Carthaginians, the position of the Allies is close to their districts of supply and reinforcement, so that they can readily maintain their strength and even increase it. The supply and reinforcement of the German Army across the hundred miles of hostile territory is a much more difficult matter. Every day that the Allies can hold their present position should result for them in a gain in relative strength.

The battle now raging between Montmirail and Vitry-le-François can well take five days to a week for its decision. The battle of Gettysburg, in 1863, required three days, when the forces were less than 100,000 on each side. The final result in this great battle in France must hang in the balance until after the Germans have brought up their last reserves and have made their last desperate charge.

An interesting point in recent dispatches has been the elision by the censors of reference to some army whose position is not allowed to be made public. This has been referred to once as an allied army, once as a French and British Army, and once as an army whose position must remain veiled in secrecy. If it is a force of any size its position should soon be developed by contact with the Germans.

The absence in this war of the battles of air fleets is noticeable, especially so in view of the many forecasts and imaginative descriptions of such warfare that were published a few years ago. The dirigible ballons seem to have proved much more vulnerable than was expected. The artillery of the Allies has been especially effective in stopping their raids.

The descriptions from the battle lines show that the aeroplanes have been most effective in their special scouting service. They have solved the question that throughout history has always puzzled the commanding General. With the aero corps now attached to his headquarters, he can quickly cover all of the country within thirty miles with a number of scouts, who can report to him the presence of any large bodies of the enemy. His dispositions of his slow-moving line troops can then be made accordingly. This explains the reports of aeroplanes continually hovering or passing over the battle line and following the movements of columns.

The operations of the Germans in Northern Belgium seem to have been largely guided by such aerial reconnoissances. By their dirigibles and aeroplanes the headquarters at Brussels has been constantly kept informed of the movements of the Belgian troops in the vicinity of Antwerp, and also of the movement of troops at Ostend. As long as conditions were not serious, the Germans devoted all of their efforts to forwarding troops and supplies to the battle line in France. It was only when the movement of troops at Antwerp and Ostend became threatening that the Germans diverted from their main campaign sufficient forces to make the advance to Ghent, where they occupy an interior position ready to strike either at Antwerp or Ostend, as may be most needed.

The Russian forces have now been strengthened until their military front extends in an unbroken line from the Baltic Sea to the Carpathian Mountains in Austria. Much of their official reports about attacking the Vistula forts, invading Silesia, and besieging Przemysl must be set down as due to an enthusiasm which announces the ultimate object instead of the immediate operation. Indeed, so conflicting and misleading are these reports that a man is tempted to distrust all of them. A careful weighing of these statements, similar to the scrutiny of the testimony of an interested person in court, will gradually establish definite facts of their operation.

After the successful Russian invasion of East Prussia, the better organization and supply service of the Germans enabled them to meet the invading Russians with superior force. The Russians have been held for a week to a line running from east of Koenigsberg south through Allenstein to a point west of Warsaw. After his reverse at Allenstein, Grand Duke Nicholas has waited to complete the strengthening of his army in this field before beginning a further advance.

In the south the Austrian Army seems to have quickly recovered from the defeat at Lemberg. The Russians have so far advanced only eighteen miles west to the fortified town of Grodek. In drawing in their forces for this retreat, the Austrians have abandoned all Southern Galicia to the Russians.

The most important fighting in all this theatre, in its influence on succeeding developments of the campaign, is that which for three days has been taking place on the line from Zamosc to Rawa Ruska. The capture of the latter town by the Russians will force the withdrawal of this Austrian force, clearing a way for the further advance of the centre of the long Russian line. The first result of this success is shown in the important defeat of the Austrians south of Lublin.

The Russian dispatches are noticeably silent concerning the German invasion of Poland. This force was mentioned near Lodz ten days ago. A German or Austrian force was later reported west of Radom. A Russian advance against a force in this district is now reported.

The southern half of the Russian line then runs from a point west of Warsaw, southeast through Lublin to Zamosc, and thence south through Rawa Ruska, Grodek, and Stryl to the Carpathians. On this entire front the Russians seem to be present in greatest strength in the portion from Königsberg to Allenstein and in that from Zamosc to Grodek. Seven separate movements have been mentioned, apparently seven different armies.

Their first army, on the north flank in East Prussia, is under Gen. Rennenkampf, one of the noted Russian leaders in the Russo-Japanese war. Between East Prussia and Warsaw is a smaller army that seems to have advanced west of Plock. South of Warsaw is an army advancing against the German and Austrian force south of Radom. East of the Vistula River is an army operating on the front, Lublin-Zamosc. The fifth Russian army, under Gen. Ruzsky, has just captured Rawa Ruska. The sixth army, under Gen. Brussiloff, is attacking Grodek, sixteen miles southwest of Lemberg. A seventh army, largely cavalry, is operating between this army and the Carpathians. A small eighth army has occupied Bukowina. These operations of the Russians over a front of 600 miles exceed in magnitude the battle line in France and form the greatest campaign in history.

1,000,000 BELGIANS MAY GO TO ENGLAND

Sixty Thousand Refugees Expected in Next Few Days.—Will Be Welcomed.

HOMES AWAITING THEM

British Government Extends an Invitation to the War Victims—Special Boats Provided.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Sixty thousand Belgian refugees are expected in England in the next ten days. The British Government today extended a general invitation to all Belgians made homeless through the war to come to England, and the Volunteer War Refugees' Committee, organized by the Duchess of Vendôme, has undertaken to receive and care for these refugees, with Government supervision.

Postmaster General Samuel was loudly cheered in the House of Commons today when he said that British hospitality had been extended to the Belgians. He said the committee was in touch with 3,600 Belgians now on the way to England, and that thousands of homeless persons from Malines, Louvain, Liège, and elsewhere in Belgium, who could not be cared for by their own Government, must seek temporary refuge in the British Isles.

Lord Hugh Cecil, Chairman of the Executive of the War Refugees' Committee, and Lady Lugard, in active charge of the care of the fugitives, have already arranged for the organization of committees in fifty-two towns and cities where the homeless will be sent from London. The committee will also care for refugees from Russia, France, and other allied countries.

Six temporary depots have been established in London, where over 3,000 Belgians will be sheltered and fed until they are placed in the homes of charitable English families. Homes have already been offered for 10,000 Belgians, and the committee is arranging to send refugees direct from Folkestone to Birmingham, Liverpool, and other cities, where refuge awaits them, and persons of all classes are eager to make them comfortable.

Scotch and Welsh towns are especially anxious to entertain the Belgians, and the committee believes it can make provision for 1,000,000 refugees if necessary. Sanitary conditions and lack of food in the Belgian territory fought over and a probable attack on Antwerp will doubtless make it necessary for hundreds of thousands of women and children to leave that country.

The British Government is providing special boats to Ostend for the purpose of transporting the people as rapidly as they gather there. Women and children receive the preference, but many men unfit for military service will also be transferred to British territory, and will later return to Belgium.

The refugee depots are filled with Belgians of all classes, rich and poor, driven out by the war and temporarily stranded here. Priests from the ruined cities often bring scores of women and children from their parishes, and sisters come with large numbers of girls who have been unable to get from the destroyed convents to their homes.

Few of the refugees have any baggage, and their unfamiliarity with the English language makes it necessary for a large corps of volunteer workers and interpreters to meet all trains for protective purposes.

The French and Russian Ambassadors and the Belgian Minister are acting as advisors to the committee, while the Russian, French, and Belgian Consuls are assisting in the collection of food, clothing, and relief funds.

BUELOW OFFENDS ITALIANS.

Papers Say the Dreibund Is No Longer of Value to the Kingdom.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The Corriere della Sera strongly criticises the declaration of Prince von Bülow, the ex-Imperial Chancellor of Germany, that Italian independence depends on Germany's triumph.

Three forces, says the journal, have diminished the value of the Triple Alliance for Italy. These are Anglo-German antagonism, the jealousies aroused by Germany's "weltpolitik," and Austria's Balkan schemes after the Balkan wars, which placed her interests in antagonism to those of Italy.

The Giornale d'Italia adopts similar arguments. A victorious Germany, it adds, would no longer be an element of equilibrium, and a victorious Austria would be even less amicable to Italy than when they were peaceful allies. Italy, therefore, must remain neutral so long as her interests remain unmenaced.

The news from Austria represents the situation as serious. M. Klofacs, leader of the Czech Radicals, has been arrested at Prague. The frequent colloquies between the heir presumptive and Emperor Francis Joseph have aroused comment.

A deep impression has been caused in Trieste by the announcement that 4,000 Italians from that district fell in the Austro-Russian battle before Lvov.

ITALY WARNS HER RESERVES.

Two Classes Are Told Not to Leave the Country.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Telegraphing from Geneva, Switzerland, a correspondent of The Central News says that information has reached him from Lugano, near the Italian frontier, to the effect that all Italians belonging to the 1882 and 1888 classes of reservists have been forbidden to leave the country.

BORDEAUX LIKE PARIS.

But Government Expects Only a Short Exile There.

NEW YORK TIMES-London Daily Chronicle War Service.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 9.—Every day Bordeaux is becoming more crowded. The political and social world of Paris seems to have been transported here bodily. M. Clemenceau and other Parisian notabilities are to be seen in restaurants and cafés, while Bordeaux avenues remind one of the Paris boulevards.

Thanks to the splendid organization of political and municipal officials and the generous grants of the public, all refugees are now provided with some sort of lodging.

It is officially announced that the military authority under necessity is reserving to itself the greater part of the traffic on the various branch railways. Supplementary trains which have been run from Paris during the last few days are therefore discontinued and only ordinary service is being maintained.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 9, (via London.)—Des Armées, a newspaper issued by the Ministry of War, declares there is every reason to expect that the stay of the French Government in Bordeaux will be short.

A committee of Deputies and Senators is organizing lecturing tours through the country districts with the object of explaining the origin of the war and the justice of the French cause.

The Government has authorized the Ministry of Finance to advance $700,000 to the Chamber of Commerce of Nantes in order that sufficient wheat and flour may be imported to feed the population of Nantes during hostilities. The advance is made conditional upon the repayment of the money.

Bordeaux is becoming more and more the centre of the life of the nation. Following the example of the Bank of France, the Rothschilds, and several other great houses have opened temporary quarters here, while the Court of Cassation has established courts. Senators and Deputies continue to meet unofficially daily in two theatres which are being arranged by Government architects with the view of holding a regular session of Parliament in them.

GERMANS WOOING PEOPLE OF HOLLAND

But Dutch, Says English Observer, Are Keeping Their Strict Neutrality.

BAR EXPORTS OF FOOD

Some Places Put in a State of Siege—Substituting Rice for Wheat Flour.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Within the next few days you will probably be regaled with a series of telegrams from The Hague that will make you wonder whether the Netherlands is weakening in her stand for neutrality. Let me say at once that these telgrams will rpresent nothing more than the activities of a staff of Germans who have arrived here for the specific purpose of wooing the Dutch public and getting to America the German case under the guise of a neutral agency.

The importance to Germany of obtaining Dutch sympathy is obvious. Through Meuse and into the Rhine Valley the Dutch used to send an enormous volume of merchandise. The attitude of neutrality still being maintained by the Netheldands has hit the Germans unexpectedly hard. There are some who are suggesting that foodstuffs and other supplies are still finding their way into Germany. There is not a word of truth in this. The Government of the Netherlands is acting with strict impartiality. The exportation of foodstuffs is forbidden, and food in any quantity is not getting into Germany. Of this both the English and Dutch Governments are perfectly satisfied.

The Germans are making endeavors to alienate Dutch sympathy from England and have issued bulletins declaring that the British soldiers are using dumdum bullets. The British Consul here has officially denied the charge.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A Reuter dispatch from The Hague says:

"A royal decree issued here proclaims a state of siege in a great number of towns and villages situated on the coast and rivers in the Provinces of Zeeland, North Brabant, Limburg, Gelderland, Groningen, Friesland, and North Holland.

"The proclamation forbids exportations in vessels bought in the Netherlands for military use by belligerents.

"The towns where a state of siege now exists are Flushing, Harlingen, Texil, Terschelling, Hellevoetsluis and part of the Hook of Holland."

AMSTERDAM, via London, Sept. 9.—A royal decree has been issued forbidding the exportation of rice. The price of wheat is so high that rice flour will be substituted for wheat flour.

REFUGEES CARED FOR IN LONDON—LATE WAR NEWS CHEERS PARIS

GERMAN OFFICERS SHOT IN GHENT

One Killed and Another Wounded When They Enter City After Agreeing to Stay Out.

STRAY THERE BY ACCIDENT

Burgomaster's Explanation of the Tragedy Is Accepted by German Commander—Big Levy on City.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Ghent says that nothwithstanding the agreement of the Germans to keep out of the city two German officers entered the streets there and were surprised by Belgian troops who fired on them with rapid fire guns. One officer was killed and the other seriously wounded. An Ostend dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says the wounded German officer explained that they had lost their way.

The wounded officer has been taken under the protection of the American Consul and will not be held as a prisoner of war. The Burgomaster, after explaining the case to the German commander, made the statement that the agreement with the Germans not to enter the city would not be changed as a result of the incident. The requisitions made by the German forces upon the city of Ghent, following the understanding that in view of the supplying of certain provisions by the municipality German troops should not enter the city, are as follows: Ten thousand litres of benzine, 1,000 litres of mineral water, 150,000 kilos of oats, 100 bicycles, ten motor cycles, and twenty-five compressed air cylinders for motor cars. In addition there shall be supplied a quantity of material for bandages, and 100,000 cigars.

Goods requisitioned by the Germans, says the Reuter correspondent, were forwarded on Wednesday in cart trains to Beirlegem, fourteen miles south of Ghent.

"Near the station of Deynze, twelve miles south of Ghent," the correspondent adds, "an engagement took place between a body of Uhlans and Belgian gendarmes and cyclist riflemen. The Germans took flight in the direction of Cruyshautem and Huysse, leaving behind them fifteen dead or wounded. A German officer was captured."

In a dispatch from Copenhagen the correspondent of the Central News says Gen. Manteuffel, the German military commander at Louvain, has made an official report in which he asserts that an investigation has shown that it was Belgian soldiers who had drawn on civilian attire over their uniforms who fired on German soldiers from housetops of the city.

GRIMLY EARNEST IN BERLIN.

English Observer Says Ban Has Been Put on All Frivolity.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Dr. Poutsma, one of the South African labor leaders, who was among the British subjects to leave Berlin, contributes an interesting article to The Daily Citizen today on his impressions of the German capital in wartime.

"That the Germans were prepared for all eventualities for a considerable time was shown," says Dr. Poutsma, "when the Kaiser's proclamations were posted up in Berlin, and, of course, throughout Germany, ordering the mobilization. Those proclamations were printed in two colors, red and black, and all were dated 1912. The figure 2 had been stricken out with a blue pencil, and the figure 4 added. On every following day additional proclamations were issued, and I noticed that practically every one had been printed two years ago.

"When, later on, the Landsturm mit waffe was called out, again the proclamations showed that they had been printed two years ago. The Germans have two kinds of Landsturms—armed and unarmed. The last named has not been called out yet, and of the Landsturm mit waffe only a very small percentage actually is in the field.

"It is never good policy to despise your enemy, and therefore it just as well to tell the English people about the determination and wonderful enthusiasm of the Germans. They believe that the present war is a defensive war; that their Kaiser is a peace-loving man, and that the country now is brutally attacked by their jealous enemies. Everything goes like clockwork. Every one knows exactly what he has to do, and where he has to be. The women undoubtedly are very courageous. It was seldom that I witnessed a woman sobbing. When a husband or brother or son is departing they all said: 'We know we shall never see them again, but they must go for the Vaterland und Kaiser.'

"The railways in Germany are all State owned, and it was evident that every possible preparation had been made for the transport of troops. The Government has got an enormous amount of rolling stock, more than actually is required, at every station. Hundreds of trucks of all kinds were standing idle. Whether correct or not, I cannot say, but when I left on Aug. 27 it generally was admitted that 6,000,000 troops were under arms. The army's total strength will be eventually 12,000,000 men, not taking into account many thousands of volunteers. They are said to have 3,000,000 above fifty who would be called upon if needed to guard prisoners of war.

"The authorities in Berlin are anxious to keep the capital, so far as possible, as it is in normal times. Nothing is allowed that might dishearten people. When some families had received news that their relatives were killed in battle and the women folk appeared in mourning notices were posted up everywhere practically forbidding women to appear in black. They were advised to postpone such public signs of sorrow until after the war.

"They generally are very much in earnest about the whole affair. For instance, in homes no pianos are heard. They all say that it is not the time to play music of a frivolous nature. All the theatres and the opera have closed. There is much distress, especially among the relatives of those who have gone to the front. The Government is paying 9 marks per month to wives of reservists, and 2 marks for every child. Some of them get in addition a certain amount from the trade union to which the husband belonged."

GERMAN GENERALS SLAIN.

Trainloads of Wounded Taken to Interior Points.

BERLIN, Via London, Sept. 9.—Two more Major Generals, von Gotha and Nieland, have been added to the death list of field officers. Premier von Weizsacker of Württemberg and Finance Minister von Breunig of Bavaria have both lost sons. Prince Frederick William of Hesse was wounded in the breast in the fighting in France.

Long trainloads of wounded are now being brought from advanced hospitals to base hospitals, or forwarded to lazarettos in the interior of Germany. Only the most severely wounded, who are unable to bear transportation, have been left in the advanced hospitals.

The correspondent on a trip to Liège was able to inspect some of the trains for wounded. Such trains are usually composed of coaches from which the seats have been removed, and replaced with beds in two tiers, accommodating eight men in each car. A hospital attendant is assigned to each car, and each train has a coachload of surgeons. Most of the wounded seen were apparently making a fairly quick recovery.

The Official Register of the German army for the year 1913 does not contain any officer of the name of von Gotha, and the only officer of the name of Nieland therein is a Colonel, who in 1913 was in command of the Baden Infantry Regiment 113. It is possible, however, that promotions have been made since the outbreak of the war.

GHENT APPEALS TO UNITED STATES

Mayor of City Joins in Plea Sent to President Wilson by Major Seaman.

The Independent makes public the text of the message in behalf of Belgium sent to President Wilson by Major Louis L. Seaman, together with a message from E. Braun, the Burgomaster of Ghent, as follows:

Office of the Burgomaster,
City of Ghent, Sept. 3, 1914.

Monsieur: I have read with emotion and at the same time with great satisfaction the generous and powerful appeal that you have addressed to the President of the United States of America. I am deeply grateful to you and, in the name of my fellow-citizens, I thank you with all my heart.

I am also glad to learn that you have interested yourself in our Ghent ambulances and our asylums for refugees.

I add my voice to your appeal and I beg you to urge the President of the United States to exert all of his efforts in order that we may soon see an end of the war, and that the inhumanity of the conflict here may be lessened.

The City of Ghent, in which was concluded the Treaty of Peace of 1814, puts itself confidently under the high protection of the American Nation.

Pray accept, Monsieur, assurances of my distinguished consideration.

E. BRAUN, Burgomaster of Ghent.
M. Louis L. Seaman.

The appeal of Major Seaman to President Wilson, to which Mr. Braun refers in his cabled message, is as follows:

The Burgomaster of Ghent, where the treaty of peace was signed a hundred years ago, authorizes me to respectfully request that in case of invasion the city be placed under the protection of the American flag for the safeguarding of its people and its historic monuments.

The German Government holding Brussels, prevents the American Minister from communicating with his Government. Why should the American Government permit the German Ambassador at Washington to have free communication with his Government at Berlin?

Could not the United States join with other neutral nations, such as Italy, Norway, Sweden, Spain, Switzerland, Holland, and the South American republics in demanding a cessation of the atrocities and barbarities now being committed by Germany?

Marquet has offered his luxurious palace hotel at Ostende to the Double White Cross organization to house destitute refugees, victims of German brutality.

LOUIS L. SEAMAN.

MADE TO SALUTE CAPTIVES.

French Soldiers Indignant Over Forced Courtesy to Germans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—In the dreary hours of a railway journey night before last my compartment was invaded by two artillery officers and four privates on their way to Brest to recuperate from the fatigue of twenty-five days of constant work.

What seemed to trouble the men was the treatment given to German prisoners by the French. These men were particularly sore because they had ordered the overwrought fighting men to peel potatoes for prisoners and to salute German captive officers. They stated that they had even seen a German officer slap a French soldier who omitted to salute and be excused with a caution.

With the artillery officers I talked gunnery. They were very fair in their criticism of the German artillery. Its range, helped by aeroplanes, is, they say, usually good and is quickly found, but it has two great faults. In the first place, its powder gives off smoke, and, secondly, there seems to be some defect of balance in the shrapnel shell, more noticeable recently than at the commencement, which argues that they are drawing upon older stores of ammunition.

The final curve of the shell is too sharp, and consequently the bullets rain down almost perpendicularly, with much reduced effect.

VEDRINES WAS ACCUSED.

Paris Newspaper Defends Aviator, Charged with Traitorous Plans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The Bonnet Rouge, a Socialist organ which recently conducted a defense of various victims of calumnious rumors, tonight defends Vedrines, who was widely reported to have been found carrying plans of French movements which he intended to sell to the Germans. It says:

"Our confrère, Edouard Helsey, has interviewed Vedrines for the Journal. He met him recently five or six kilometers from the firing line, where he was doing duty, wearing his cross of the Legion of Honor. He was in charge of an armored aeroplane carrying a small cannon and capable of doing 100 miles an hour. This Vedrines had baptized La Vache.

"The aviator was in perfectly good spirits and apparently ignorant of the slanders, to which he does not refer. He complains of the monotony of scouting.

"Vedrines has undoubtedly made many enemies by his independent behavior, which, perhaps, accounts for the rumors."

GERMAN'S HEAD HIS TROPHY.

Wounded Turco Had It in His Knapsack—Angry to Part with It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. MALO, France, Sept. 9.—(Dispatch to The London Daily Express.) There are many wounded soldiers here and at Dinard, near this port. The houses have been turned into hospitals. Among the patients are a number of Turcos, (Algerians.) One of these warrior's brought back a German's head in his knapsack, and he was angry when it was taken away from him. He considered it the most precious souvenir in the world, and it was necessary to compensate him to keep him quiet.

He was still furious this afternoon when I visited the hospital at which he was being treated and declared that he must have his trophy back.

BOMBARD MONTENEGRINS.

Austrian Adriatic Fleet Attacks Coast Occupied by Enemy.

ROME, Sept. 9.—News from Mount Lovchen, near Cattaro, Austria, to the Giornale d'Italia says that a portion of the Austrian fleet has left Cattaro and bombarded the coast between there and Montenegro, especially the village of Budua, recently occupied by the Montenegrins.

TAKE ENGLISH OFF SHIP.

Swedish Steamer Ganthiod Held Up by German Torpedo Boat.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 9.—The Swedish steamer Ganthiod, which has arrived at Gefle, on the Gulf of Bothnia, from Ramo, reports that she was held up in the Finnish belt by a German torpedo boat, and that twenty-two English passengers, ranging from 20 to 40 years, were arrested.

REFUGEE AID COSTS $100,000 FOR 5 DAYS

London Committee Takes Care of Thousands Released from the Continent.

COMPLAIN OF PASSPORTS

Some Suspicious Persons Posing as Americans, the Embassy Is Told.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Fully $100,000 has been paid out in the last five days to American refugees, according to H. C. Hoover, Chairman of the Committee of Resident Americans. This indicates the destitution of thousands who arrived from the Continent during that time.

There was a lull today, the German trains being held up by troop movements. Mr. Hoover said the relief committee always knew when the Germans were mobilizing because refugees were suddenly held up. He said:

"This delay will not add to the exchequers of the refugees who probably are marooned somewhere in Germany, but no one is able to say where. At least they can't be much more destitute than some who have been coming out."

It helped the situation temporarily to have 2,700 leave today for America, and by the end of the week, if others do not come pouring in before then, the more needy will have been sent on their way.

Mr. Hoover said that the committee had complained to the Embassy here because of the seeming laxity in the issuance of passports by Consuls in Southern Germany and Austria. Many who have had passports have been viewed with suspicion by the committee, as well as representatives of the British Government. It was announced by Mr. Hoover that after Sept. 14 British authorities would not permit any American refugees to land here unless they had passports. Some have come in with certificates of American residence only, and a number of these are hardly able to speak a word of English.

The Embassy has also been asked to investigate complaints that Consuls in different places on the Continent had advised Americans to remain there when it was possible to get out. This was brought to the attention of the committee by an English tourist, who said that Americans were marooned in certain sections of France and Switzerland because told by Consuls that it was impossible to get out.

An American negro came to the committee rooms today to know if Jack Johnson was among the list of refugees. He was told the pugilist was seen in town, but had not registered. Johnson was seen this afternoon in a steamship office, and the report spread that he was inquiring about transatlantic accommodations. Johnson drove away in a big automobile. He poses on prominent corners every day, always drawing a curious crowd.

German-American Arrested.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The American Relief Committee today made an example of a German-American who met the last Flushing boat train at Victoria Station and going through the cars shouted in German for the passengers to hold on to their money, as the American committee was paying hotel bills, steamer passage, and everything else. As a result, the committee waiting on the platform was overwhelmed with applicants for relief. On discovering the cause, they had the man arrested. He was subsequently released on proving his American citizenship.

Several alleged Americans are among the refugees already placed in compounds by the secret service men. The cases of many others are under investigation. While none of the arrested has been shown so far to be a spy many are declared to be unquestionably alien enemies of undesirable type. A large number hold supposed credentials that have been proved false.

Out of 200 of the most recent applicants for passports at the American Embassy only forty received passports, and a number of passports granted by American officials on the Continent have been taken up here when it was shown that the bearers were not entitled to them.

The American Embassy is making an investigation and may advise that the cruiser Tennessee be sent from Havre to Ostend to bring refugees there to England.

The British Foreign Office has resumed the issuance to German girl students of permits to return home, and small numbers are leaving daily for Germany by way of Holland.

William Coffin, the American Consul General at Budapest, arrived in London today from the Hungarian capital, bringing with him his wife, who has been ill. They will start for America as soon as possible.

Americans going to Italy, according to information received today by Robert P. Skinner, the American Consul General in London, from Thomas Nelson Page, United States Ambassador at Rome, must have their passports viséd by Italian Consuls.

PRESIDENT ALDERMAN'S VIEW.

War of Democracy Against Militarism, Says University Head.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—President Edwin Anderson Alderman of the University of Virginia is a refugee from St. Moritz. Like President Hibben of Princeton, he was anxious to get back home before college opened. But Mr. Alderman has had no such good luck as Mr. Hibben, who finally managed to get passage on the Olympic. The best Mr. Alderman can do is the Baltic, sailing Oct. 9, thus missing the opening of the University of Virginia. He had passage on the Rotterdam, sailing Oct. 3, but canceled it on the urgent advice of friends here, who told him Holland might not be a neutral country by that time.

President Alderman, who has been spending the week end with Ambassador Page in Surrey, said:

"I think this war is a fight of democracy against militarism. There can be but one result in the end. I was much struck with the resolution and calmness of the French. All during our trip in small towns, although the Germans were then pressing the Allies back, there was no lack of confidence and none was disheartened.

"One saw thrilling things. One night we were sidetracked at Lyons, when 8,000 Frenchwomen and children serenaded our train with 'The Marseillaise.'

"I have a feeling that out of this war is going to come a great moral opportunity for the United States to hasten the peace of the right sort—peace that will guarantee the spread of democracy in the world."

AMERICAN GIRL'S BRAVERY.

Went to Germany Seeking Captured Kin After Louvain Fire.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Marguerite Uttebroick, a 16-year-old American girl from Millersville, Ill., arrived in London today after an adventurous trip from Louvain, the burning of which she witnessed. The girl was visiting Flemish relatives near Louvain when the village where her relatives lived was burned. They went into Louvain. She said the first sign of trouble was when two German soldiers maltreated and killed several girls. These soldiers were promptly shot by their own officers, but the feeling of the populace against the invaders had grown very intense.

The German soldiers, according to Miss Uttebroick, made no secret of their determination to make the Belgians suffer for the indignities which they said the German residents had suffered at the hands of the Belgians at the outbreak of the war.

The girl described the destruction of Louvain and the firing in the streets that continued for two days as a sight that had been burned into her memory. Her father and a 15-year-old brother who were in Louvain disappeared, and she believed that they had been made prisoners by the Germans. Searching for them Miss Uttebroick made her way into Germany on a German prison train that was loaded with British and Belgian captives. She was unable to find her relatives and appealed to the American Consuls in various cities. The investigations of the Consuls satisfied them that the father and brothers were held at some German concentration camp. The girl then made a difficult trip to Cologne, where she met her aged mother and brought her to London. Mother and daughter are now being aided by the American Relief Committee.

SINK 2 GERMAN MERCHANTMEN

Work of French and English Cruisers—Anxiety for Other Vessels.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—A dispatch from Bordeaux to the Havas Agency says two German merchant ships have been sunk in the Atlantic by the French cruisers Conde and Descartes, aided by the British cruiser Bristol.

The only German merchantmen known to be in the Atlantic are the Graecia of the Hamburg-American fleet and the Kronprinz Wilhelm and the Neckar of the North German Lloyd.

The Kronprinz Wilhelm, largest of the three, sailed from New York Aug. 3, heavily loaded with coal. She has been reported in the Atlantic, coaling German warships. The Graecia sailed from New York Aug. 27 for Cadiz, with cargo and passengers. The Neckar, which sailed Aug. 1 from Havana for Bremen, has not been reported. She had passengers and a large cargo.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 9.—Anxiety is felt over the non-arrival of the Finnish passenger steamer Sveaborg, coming from Raumo, Finland, with many British and Americans aboard. It is feared she was captured or sunk by German warships watching for Russian reserves returning from America.

Anxiety is also felt for the steamer Torne, which left early last Wednesday from this port.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A dispatch to Reuter's from Wellington, New Zealand, says there are still five German cruisers in the Pacific not accounted for—the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Nürnberg, Stettin, and Emden.

Brandenburg Eludes British Ships.

The agents of the North German Lloyd Company announced yesterday that they had received a cable from Drontheim, Norway, that the freighter Brandenburg, which left Philadelphia on Aug. 23, had eluded the British cruisers and reached there safely.

BELGIAN DEFENSE COUNCIL.

King Albert and His Military Chiefs Direct War Board.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A Reuter dispatch from Ostend says a council of defense has been formed under the Presidency of King Albert. Its members are Lieut. Gen. Selliers de Moranville, Inspector General of the Civic Guard; Lieut. Gen. Guiette, commander in Flanders; Major Gen. Bihan, Col. Wellemans, Chief of the Military Cabinet, and Capt. Gillet.

Lieut. Gen. Henri van Sprang, Inspector General of Fortifications, and Major Gen. Vermelen have been placed on half pay.

SAME ERROR AS KRUGER'S.

London Times's Military Correspondent on Kaiser's Mistake.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The London Times's military correspondent, discussing the attrition of the German forces, says:

"We shall raise a million men the first year, two million the second year, and three million the third year. We shall have a very respectable army five years hence, and it is really most tactless of the Germans to talk of peace when it will take us such a long time to get into our stride.

"Poor old Paul Kruger made just the same mistake as the Kaiser has made. He was told by all the staffs of Europe that our army was only 70,000 strong, and when we produced 400,000 he was positively pained and was quite disappointed at being so misled.

"In the same way we began this war with a little army 170,000 strong, but we and America have a talent for turning out immense forces when we are put to it, and our present job is to work day and night for some years in order to prevent all the States with a penchant for hegemony from challenging us in the future.

"Meanwhile we are getting on very well. Trade is reviving after the first shock."

AUSTRIA TO POLISH JEWS.

Proclaims Allied Empires Are for Freedom and Equal Civic Rights.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—German newspapers which have reached London quote the following proclamation issued by Austria to the Jews in Poland:

"The heroic armies of the mid-European States of Germany and Austria-Hungary have entered Poland. Our flags bring justice, freedom, and equal rights as citizens, religious freedom, and freedom to live undisturbed in economic and cultural life.

"Too long you have suffered under the iron yoke of Moscow. We come as friends. The foreign barbarian yoke is gone. A new era begins for Poland. We will use all our strength to put it on a sure foundation of equal rights for the Jews.

"Do not be deluded by the flattering promises of the Czar, which already you have heard too often. Did not the Czar make the same promises in 1905? How did he keep his word?

"Think of the awful banishment of the great masses of Jews; think of the cities of Kishinev, Gomel, Bailystok, and Sedlec and their hundreds of pogroms. Now that the Czar feels himself between the hammer and the anvil he renews his promises. Your sacred duty is to work with us with all your might for freedom."

AIRMEN IN THRILLING ESCAPE.

Nerve Saves French Officers When Shell Cripples Their Aeroplane.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 9 (Dispatch to The London Times.)—Details of a brilliant aeroplane action have been received here.

Lieut. Roecker, with Capt. Sommon as staff observer, left Marville to reconnoitre the enemy's movements in the neighborhood of Longwy, Arlon and Virton. When they were 1,800 meters above Musson Wood, three kilometers northwest of Longwy, an aeroplane-protection battery, guarding a German dirigible, opened fire on them. A shell burst so near them that the machine was completely thrown off its balance. The motor stopped and they began a giddy descent, which in spite of the furious efforts of the pilot was only checked 200 meters from the ground.

The pilot was determined rather than fall into the hands of the enemy to dash down amid the flames of the Longwy citadel, but a descent was finally made 300 meters southwest of Longwy in advance of the French firing line, which was withdrawing at that moment under a heavy rifle and shell fire. Here, after an examination of the motor under a hail of shells and bullets, Lieut. Roecker explained to Capt. Sommon a method of starting the machine, and a quarter of an hour afterward both officers had returned to their posts.

PARIS IS CHEERED BY THE WAR NEWS

"Things Are Not Going at All Badly," the People Are Told by the Press.

MANY REGRET THEIR FLIGHT

Military Critic There Points Out That German Lines of Communication Are in Danger.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The general press opinion regarding the battle on the Marne is expressed in the concluding words of an article in the Echo de Paris, discussing the present situation: "Things are not going at all badly."

The same journal's military critic, Gen. Cherfils, gives additional information regarding the position of the Germans who are served by only four railway lines of communication: First, from Valenciennes, Mons, Louvain, and Hasselt toward Cologne, which he says easily could and should be cut by Belgians near Louvain; second, the direct route, far the most important, through Busigny, Maubeuge, Namur, and Liège, to Cologne, which is commanded by Maubeuge, explaining the fury of the German attack on that fortress and the vast importance of its resistance; third, a single track line, twisting and complicated, runs through Hirson Givet, Marche, and Treves to Coblentz. Apparently the only line uniting with Germany the twelve army corps attacking France through Belgium, he says, is running through Mésières, Montmedy, Thionville, Metz, and Mayence, which is exposed to sudden attack from Verdun. The military critic continues:

"It is evident how hazardous is the existence of the German forces already thus precariously united to their bases, but if the bridges at Cologne, Coblentz, and Mayence were destroyed they would be quite unable to obtain supplies."

The first results of the city census now being held indicate that nearly a million persons have left Paris since the outbreak, though this doubtless includes the mobilized men. Much discomfort is experienced by those traveling south. The roads are congested by a mass of vehicles of all kinds and epochs, including the most primitive and automobiles, while the reservation of the railroads for troop trains has made it impossible to accomplish more than short stages daily. Not the least difficulty is due to the taking of gasoline and similar necessities of travel by the Government, forcing many voyagers to leave their machines in garages.

Midway towns, like Orleans, Tours, and Blois, are hopelessly overcrowded, hundreds eating and sleeping on the open sidewalk. In Blois the genuinely charitable inhabitants have received travelers for five francs, ($1,) apiece nightly, but Orleans is just the reverse, one hotel charging fifty francs, ($10,) for the privilege of sleeping in an armchair. Lack of tires, repairs, gasoline, food, and accommodations has made thousands bitterly repent leaving Paris.

The Nouvelliste de la Sarthe, a leading newspaper, now publishes its first two columns in English for the benefit of the thousands of British troops passing that centre. The heading reads: "Novelist of the Sarthe. Price halfpenny. English edition for the british [with a small b] troops at Le Mans."

Owing to the absence of English papers the new departure is wonderfully successful.

The Figaro publishes another letter from Pierre Loti addressed to the Minister of Marine signed by his real name, Commandant Julien Viaud, pleading for some more active position than Captain of a reserve ship. The writer says that a man with a name so well known as Pierre Loti should be allowed to give an example of service in however inferior a position. The Figaro says the request was refused, and Loti is now trying to join the marines policing Paris.

GRANARD'S BROTHER MISSING.

The Hon. Fergus Forbes Believed to Have Been Wounded.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Hon. Fergus Forbes of the Royal Irish Regiment, a brother of the Earl of Granard, is listed among the missing in the recent fighting in France. He is believed to have been wounded.

It was Sir Arthur Forbes, an ancestor of Lord Granard, who more than two centuries ago raised the Royal Irish Regiment and served with it under Montrose.

Lord Granard was formerly in the Scots Guards, and is one of five brothers who are all army officers, for, although the head of the house resigned his commission when he married Miss Beatrice Mills of New York, he has just been appointed to command one of the Kitchener regiments, which is called the Fifth Service Battalion of the Royal Irish, and is stationed at Dublin.

300,000 BRITISH RECRUITS.

Telegram to Washington Embassy Tells of English Enthusiasm.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The British Embassy today received from the Foreign Office in London the following telegram:

"There is increasing enthusiasm for recruiting in Great Britain. Three hundred thousand men have joined the regular army since the war began. The eagerness to enlist has grown markedly since British troops have actually been engaged with the enemy."

Another message received at the embassy officially denied the reports that the British cruiser Bristol had been disabled in a fight with an unnamed German ship in southern waters.

DISREGARDED MINE WARNING.

Loss of Runo Due to Recklessness—British Capture Mine Layer.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Admiralty announced today that the Wilson Line steamer Runo, which was sunk in the North Sea last Saturday as a result of coming in contact with a mine in a known and specified mine field, had departed from the directions issued by the Admiralty. Had she followed these instructions she would have been assured a safe voyage. The Admiralty wishes to point out the extraordinary danger attending such disregard of its warnings and advice.

According to the Central News, a trawler which arrived today reported that a British gunboat had captured a trawler purporting to belong to Grimsby which had been laying sea mines. There were 200 mines on board.

ROME, Sept. 9.—The Giornale d'Italia says that the Anglo-French torpedo boats in the Adriatic recently have been engaged in removing innumerable mines placed by the Austrians. Three rows of them were found and removed from a point near Volovitza Cape.

Chicago Customs Decrease $325,496

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—The European war has caused a decrease in customs receipts in Chicago during August of $325,496, according to the report today of Rivers McNeill, Collector. Receipts for the first four days of September show a loss of $133,521, compared with last year.

RUMANIA WITH THE ALLIES.

Ex-Minister Knowles Says She May Lead Italy There.

Horace G. Knowles of Wilmington, Del., who was the American Minister to Rumania, Bulgaria, and Servia in 1907 and 1908, is stopping at the Republican Club. He was much interested yesterday in dispatches from the Continent, which indicated that Rumania would throw her weight in the European conflict with the Allies against Germany. Mr. Knowles has kept in close touch with Rumanian affairs, and told of the political reasons which might induce Rumania to side against Germany. He predicted that Italy would also join the Allies, but expressed the belief that Rumania would lead Italy.

"Rumania," said Mr. Knowles, "is, indeed, one of the three factors that Germany and Austria must reckon with. The other two are Italy and Japan. The latter cannot permit Germany to be victorious. They know full well the unsparing punishment that would be meted out to them by a triumphant Germany. The Kaiser would be less merciful to them than to either Belgium, France, Russia, or England.

"The Rumanian situation is most interesting. King Charles is a German, and through his long reign has done everything in his power to Germanize Rumania and his subjects. Under his rule Rumania has made wonderful development. She is today the most powerful, progressive, and prosperous nation in Southeastern Europe. Her population is about 7,000,000, and she has a standing army of more than 200,000 and a ready reserve of 150,000.

"Her army is trained to the highest standard of German efficiency, and her military equipment is the most complete and modern of any army in the world. Her soldiers have been trained for years by German army officers, and that would make them very effective in battle either for or against the Germans. I doubt if any nation in Europe can with the same number of men equal the fighting force of Rumania.

"The force and valor of the Rumanian soldiers was proved in the Turco-Russian war, when King Charles went with his army to the rescue of the Russians at Plevna. Their timely arrival and support saved the Russians from a most disastrous defeat. Today the Rumanian Army is in splendid condition by reason of their preparedness in the Balkan conflicts. When it strikes the blow will be terrific.

"By reason of her strength and readiness and knowing when and how to use it, she was able to add a valuable possession to her territory on the south without firing a shot or losing a man. Now is her great chance to recover three of her lost provinces—Bessarabia, Bukovina, and Transylvania. The former was taken from her by Russia in the Treaty of Berlin at the close of the Turco-Russian war.

"It is not improbable that Russia would be willing to cede it back to Rumania in gratitude for her valuable service at Plevna, and for the great service she can render in the present conflict. Bukovina and Transylvania are now provinces of Austria-Hungary. Gladly the Allies would take them from Austria and give them to Rumania. To Rumania those two provinces are like Alsace and Lorraine to France.

"It is not alone the chance to enlarge her territory that inclines Rumania toward the Allies. The Crown Princess Marie, considered one of the most accomplished and diplomatic members of all the royal families and the most capable and beautiful woman in all Europe, is today the ruling spirit of Rumania. She is English. Her eldest son, Carol, the heir apparent, she has cleverly fianced to the second daughter of the Czar, who is her cousin.

"Thus the tie of blood between Rumania, England, and Russia. Nearly all of the well-to-do Rumanians have been educated in France. They live most of their time in Paris and France. Bucharest is called the 'little Paris.' There is no difference between the society of Bucharest and the society of Paris. French is the language generally spoken.

"King Charles is a German. Princess Marie is English, and with the strongest attachments and leanings toward Russia and France. He is old and feeble and with his life behind him. She is young, beautiful, and ambitious, and with a long life before her. In the present conflict the Rumanians are not in sympathy with him, but strongly with her. He is preparing to let her and his country go their way.

"He can no longer stem the tide. His loyalty to the Fatherland will not permit him to let his subjects turn against Germany. Hence, the first move a few days ago—the announcement that because of ill health King Charles will soon abdicate. That may occur any hour. The second move—the announcement that Rumanians will follow Italy. If Italy does not move quickly she will not lead, but follow Rumania to the front of the battle line on the side of the Allies.

"The present policy of Rumania is largely due to the political leader of the dominant party and to whom much is due for the progress Rumania has made in recent years, and her high standing with the other European nations. He is strongly pro-English-French, and is considered one of the political leaders of Europe."

SERBS DRIVING AUSTRIANS.

Montenegrins Also Pushing On for Heart of Bosnia.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Nish, Servia, says that the Servians are continuing their offensive movements against the Austrians in the direction of Vishegrad. They crossed the frontier on Sept. 6 and continued to advance successfully. Everywhere the Austrians were thrown back to the left bank of the River Drina.

The same agency has the following dispatch from Rome:

"News has reached here that the Montenegrin troops commanded by Gen. Vucotich have occupied important points in Bosnia, south of Sarajevo, the capital.

"The situation in North Albania continues serious."

ROME, Sept. 9.—The Corriere d'Italia prints the following dispatch from Scutari:

"Three columns of Montenegrin troops commanded by Gen. Vucotich occupied after a hot fight an important position at Foca, in Austrian territory south of Sarajevo.

"The Servo-Montenegrin object is to arrive at the centre of Bosnia, in order to raise the Servian population in bands destined to molest the Austrian troops."

RUMANIA EAGER FOR WAR.

Army of 250,000 Concentrated and Anxious to Fight Germans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A dispatch to The Daily Express from Bucharest says the Rumanian Army is concentrated, 250,000 men being now on a war footing. There has been no general mobilization, as Rumania's mission, in accord with the powers of the new Triple Alliance, is to prevent any antagonism on the part of Bulgaria or Turkey.

The successes of Servia and Russia have still further stimulated public opinion toward Rumanian action against Austria at the opportune moment.

A telegram from another source at Bucharest says that the Russian victories in Galicia have aroused the Rumanians to almost fanatic excitement. Two hundred thousand persons demonstrated yesterday in the streets of Bucharest in favor of Russia and France.

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 9.—Dispatches to The Cologne Gazette from Bucharest report that there is a strong sentiment in favor of Russia throughout Rumania. The dispatches suggest that the popular sentiment is so strong it is likely to force the Government to act. Rumania has 200,000 troops ready for war.

FIRST WAR INVALID BACK IN NEW YORK

Belgian Reservist Taking German Bullet Wound Home to Illinois.

IN HOSPITAL FOUR DAYS

More Travelers Tell of Russian Troops—M. L. Schiff and Family Here.

The Red Star liner Lapland arrived yesterday from Southampton, under the British flag instead of that of Belgium, with 640 American refugees. Passengers said that they were told by officials in Southampton that a large force of Russian soldiers had embarked there for Havre on Aug. 30, the day before the Lapland left.

The Rev. Walter Laidlaw, Secretary of the New York Federation of Churches, was at Oos, near Baden-Baden on his way to Constance, Switzerland, to attend the International Peace Conference when war was declared. He said he was arrested while taking pictures of a golf course on suspicion of being an English spy and was detained while the film was developed.

The first man back from the war is Allos van Nieuwenhuyse, a Belgian, living in Kewanee, Ill. He told reporters that he had been wounded in the left thigh in a skirmish near Diest on Aug. 19. He said he was 30 years old and was on the reserve list of the Belgian Army. In July he was sent to Belgium to buy horses, and was near Liège when the Belgian Army began to mobilize. He was sent to join his regiment, the First Guides, at Brussels. Nieuwenhuyse said he saw much fighting before Liège. "The Germans came on like a living wall and were mowed down by the machine guns, but still they came without halting," he said. "The cavalry was not used then, and we sat on our horses watching the attack on the forts from a distance. The slaughter was awful. From Liège we went to Malines, and then to Louvain, and were ordered to protect the people in the country between Diest and Holland. In the retreat on Diest, in the night of Aug. 19, my horse was killed under me, and I was shot in the thigh. I was four days in a hospital at Lier, and then rejoined my command. Later I was invalided out and returned to New York."

Mortimer L. Schiff, the banker, came on the liner with his wife and two children. He had no difficulty getting out of France, he said.

Miss Ida M. Dowling of Toledo said she believed there were Russian troops at Waterloo Station, London, on Sept. 1. The men were very swarthy and wore uniforms different from those of the English soldiers, she said.

Capt. John Bradshaw of the Lapland said there were forty transports in Southampton when he left, waiting for troops and supplies.

Lawrence Hayden of Oakland, Cal., said he shipped in San Francisco on the German ship Barmbek, loaded with grain for Hamburg. The vessel was seized in the Channel by the French auxiliary cruiser Flandre and towed into Brest. As an American Hayden was allowed to go free. The German sailors were locked up.

Among the 125 cabin passengers arriving on the Royal Mail Steam Packet Oruba yesterday from Southampton by way of the West Indies were ten American refugees, who joined the ship at Dartmouth, England, on Aug. 12. The Orube brought eighteen Cuban Students for Syracuse University and six Peruvian students for Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore. Capt. J. G. K. Cheret said that aside from being chased by a French cruiser off Martinique the voyage was uneventful.

GERARD WILLING TO RUN.

But Does Not Wish to Return to Campaign for Senate.

BERLIN, Sept. 9, (via London, Sept. 10.)—James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador to Germany, received several telegrams today asking permission to launch his candidacy for the United States Senatorship from New York State.

The Ambassador is inclined to assent, but only on condition that his candidacy does not involve his return to New York to make a campaign, as he does not wish to leave his post here during the crisis.

SPAIN'S ENVOY IN PARIS.

Hopes His Country Can Hasten Peace for France.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The Marquis de Valtierra, the new Spanish Ambassador, reached Paris yesterday afternoon.

In an interview with The Figaro he said:

"The object of my task here will be to maintain and further to develop the good relations already existing between France and Spain. What I would specially emphasize is that the traditional relations uniting the two nations, which are entirely pacific, are once more closely [illegible] by the common mission which they are carrying out in the north of Africa. "The people of Spain desire ardently that the noble French nation may continue in peace its steady development. May Heaven grant that [illegible] may come at the [illegible] moment."

JAPANESE MARCH TOWARD KIAO-CHAU

Army of 20,000 Men Advancing Southward in Shantung, Peking Reports.

NO CHANGE IN ALLIANCE

Japan Announces She Is Not Affected by New Compact of England, Russia, and France.

PEKING, Sept. 9.—A telegram from German sources says the Japanese landed 20,000 men at Lung-kow, on the northern coast of the Shan-tung Peninsula, and that they are now advancing toward Chaoyuan, which is about eighty miles north of Kiao-chau.

The Japanese censorship is complete. Even Chinese officials in the territory occupied by the Japanese are prevented from free communication with Peking, while telegraphic communication with Tsing-tau has been interrupted for a week.

Mail advices from Tsing-tau dated Sept. 3 say the report that the Germans are compelling Chinese laborers to assist in the construction of defenses is untrue. The Chinese deserted Tsing-tau, expecting a bombardment of the city by the Japanese, but finding a livelihood outside the district of Kiao-chau impossible, returned in great numbers.

Other Chinese reports assert that Japanese dressed as Chinese are spying in the vicinity of Tsing-tau, while German scouts are watching the Japanese approach. At the request of Japan the Chinese Government, being anxious to preclude the possibility of a conflict, withdrew the Chinese soldiers from the Japanese military area.

The Russian Minister at Peking has received the consent of the Chinese Government to the construction by Russian capitalists of a railroad from the Island of Sakhalin along the Amur River to a point opposite Blagovieshtshansk and thence to Harbin.

JAPAN DIVIDED ON WAR.

Elder Statesmen Held Back at the Beginning, Tokio Reports.

TOKIO, Aug. 18, (Associated Press Correspondence.)—Japan's decision to send an ultimatum to Germany was only reached after some division among the public men of the empire. It was the Genro, or Elder Statesmen, who at first opposed Japan's participation. Extensive negotiations also were necessary between Great Britain and Japan before an agreement was reached as to the sphere of Japan's action and the exact programme Japan was to carry out in the fulfillment of her alliance with England.

As soon as war was declared between England and Germany Japan mobilized her fleet, and soon after that several army corps were ordered to prepare for quick mobilization. The Third Japanese Squadron at Shanghai was reinforced by several warships from the home fleet and a patrol was established in the Straits of Tsushima. A flying squadron of seven cruisers was organized at Yokosuka, with Prince Fushimi in command, while the battleship squadron at Sasebo was increased to eight big gun ships, including the dreadnought Kongo and the new dreadnought Hiyei.

Meantime Japan began to feel heavily the results of the war. Shipping was tied up and as many as a hundred steamers of various nationalities were unable to leave port. Foreign commercial exchange practically ceased between Japan and China and Japan and Europe, bringing business to a standstill, while business with America was greatly affected.

All this time active negotiations were going on between Japan and England. Suddenly on Aug. 11, when everybody in Japan had been prepared for a communication from the Government regarding her participation in the hostilities, a halt came in the general activities. This was explained as being due to a hitch in the negotiations between Japan and England concerning the scope of Japan's action and also to Great Britain's desire to calm fears that might exist in China and in America that Japan had any designs upon the integrity of China. Great Britain was desirous that the world should not imagine that a violent and limitless war was to be carried on in the Pacific Ocean.

Japan's status in the peace congress of Europe to be held after the war also came up for discussion. Another important factor in the situation was that the Japanese themselves were not in harmony as to Japan's attitude, but after a series of deliberations they reached unanimity. Something of a flurry was caused in Tokio by a rumor that the United States had sent a communication to Japan either requesting some assurance as to the integrity of China or paving the way for intervention by the United States. Officials were kept busy denying such rumors, but these reports gave an opportunity to some sensational newspapers to say things against the United States and voice anger at America's reported attitude. This has entirely disappeared.

Japanese do not regard the reduction of Kiao-Chau as an easy matter. They do not, of course, give it anything of the same importance as they attached to Port Arthur, but they realize that during the long delay the Germans have strongly fortified the port of Tsing-tau. They knew that the Germans have dismantled several warships and have placed several big guns on the heights of the two arms of Kiao-Chau Bay.

ALLIANCE IS UNCHANGED.

Japan Not Affected by the New Compact of Her Ally.

TOKIO, Sept. 9.—The Japanese Government announced today that Great Britain had informed France and Russia that the recent convention signed by the powers of the Triple Entente, in which it was agreed that none of the three would accept terms of peace without the consent of the other two, must not be regarded as modifying the British alliance with Japan, with whom Great Britain acts in common in the conduct of the war or in the making of peace.

The Japanese Diet today adopted the war programme of the Government. It provides for a war appropriation of 53,000,000 yen, ($26,500,000.) The vote was unanimous.

BALLOON AIDS SIEGE GUNS.

Gives Range to Great Cannon Two Miles from Target.

New York Times-London Daily Chronicle War Service.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 9.—A soldier present at the capture of the French fort of Manonville, near Lunéville, describes in a German newspaper the work of the new 16-inch siege guns. These guns, he said, were placed two miles from the fort where the gunners were unable to see their target. They obtained the range and direction from a captive balloon.

The gun is described as being very long and of tremendous weight, and its position when fired is almost upright. The shell is fired by a charge weighing 50 kilos and the noise and concussion are terrific. The shock almost knocks down all who are near.

TIMES EDITORIAL PRAISED.

"The Truth About Germany," Quoted at Length in London Press.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—To-day's London papers quote at length The New York Times's leading article of Monday dealing with "The Truth About Germany."

The Morning Post's Washington correspondent says it is the most outspoken reply to Germany he has yet seen in the American press, adding:

"It is similar in substance to other articles that have appeared in The Times and prominent American papers, but for boldness and vigor and merciless exposure of the German pretensions it has not been equaled, and its literary style is excellent."

HARDY'S WAR POEM.

"Song of the Soldiers"—"Victory Crowns the Just," Writer Declares.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Times publishes the following poem entitled "A Song of the Soldiers," by Thomas Hardy:

What of the faith and fire within us,
 Men who march away,
 Ere the barncocks say
 Night is growing gray,
To hazards whence no tears can win us?
What of the faith and fire within us,
 Men who march way?

Is it a purblind prank, O! think you?
 Friend with the musing eye,
 Who watch us stepping by
 With doubts and dolorous sigh?
Can much pondering so hoodwink you;
Is it a purblind prank, O! think you?
 Friend with the musing eye.

Nay, we see well what we are doing,
 Though some may not see—
 Dalliers as they may be England's need are we,
Her distress would set us rueing;
Nay, we see well what we're doing,
 Though some may not see.

In our heart of hearts believing
 Victory crowns the just,
 And that braggarts must
 Surely bite the dust,
March we to the field ungrieving,
In our heart of hearts believing
 Victory crowns the just.

Hence the faith and fire within us,
 Men who march away,
 Ere the barncocks say
 Night is growing gray,
To hazards whence no tears can win us,
Hence the faith and fire within us,

RETAILER IS TOOL, FOOD WITNESS SAYS

Butcher Offers Suggestions to Government Which, He Asserts, Will Stop Monopoly.

PACKERS IN A COMBINE

Jacob Bloch Wants Federal Authorities to Supervise Raising of Cattle.

According to the testimony of Jacob Bloch, owner of several retail markets, before Chief Magistrate McAdoo, in the Criminal Courts Building, yesterday, at the food inquiry, being conducted by Assistant District Attorney William A. De Ford, the retail butcher is the unwilling tool of the packer in the sense that he assumes all the risks and earns only enough to make a meagre living.

The witness submitted seven suggestions for the Government which he thought would bring bout better conditions in the meat producing industry. He would have the Government put an export duty on meat, open Government lands for grazing and use 10 per cent. of the income tax for fostering the raising of cattle and maintaining the public pasture lands. Mr. Bloch believes that Government slaughter houses should be authorized by law, for he points out that even the Government pays tribute to the alleged packers' trust, which sells the Government 90 per cent. of meats used by the army and navy and for State and Federal institutions.

As indicating there is a combination of packers, Mr. Bloch mentioned beef livers, which are now sold for from $1.25 to $1.50 each to the butchers, though a few years ago they could be bought for twenty-five cents each. There are few fresh livers on the market, he said, and those that are in the storage plants are held for an advance and sold at a uniform price by all packers. Mr. De Ford asked Mr. Bloch how he knew they were kept in storage. He replied that he had gone to the packers on some days to purchase the livers and had been assured there were none on the market. In visiting the plants to buy beef he said he has seen livers in storage on the days he had been told there were none to be had.

Pork loins, he said, will sometimes change in price several times in a day, and in every case all packers change the same, while there is a uniform rise every time there is a snowstorm early in the day, or when a strike, like the railroad strike, is threatened.

"In small towns," he testified, "one packer opens a plant. If another opens it is not long before they come to an agreement, and one of the plants closes down. Butchers are afraid to complain. They fear that prices will be raised on them, credits cut or the packers refuse to supply them. If a butcher complains of short weight or bad goods the process of rectifying the mistake is a long drawn out affair. Where goods are put up in barrels and boxes, short weighing is not infrequent. Where the packer is forced finally to make good on a short weight or poor grade the butcher suffers in the end."

Mr. Bloch charged that the packers, through companies formed for the purpose, supply hotels, clubs, large boarding houses and steamship companies with meats, thus depriving the butchers of the cream of the business. They are able to do this by offering long credit, while the butcher is compelled to pay weekly.

Other witnesses were Edward P. Davis, Secretary of the Association of Manufacturers' Representatives; Carl Herschman, Secretary of the Wholesale Bakers' Association; H. K. Kloefkorn of the Retail Grocers' Association, and Benjamin Chavinsky of the Kosher Butchers' Retail Association. The inquiry will be continued on Monday.

FOOD BUREAU PLANNED.

New City Department Will Be Suggested to Mayor Mitchel.

A City Department of Commerce, headed by a Commissioner and having the same voice in affairs as the heads of other departments, is the plan now advocated by Borough President Marks, Commissioner Joseph Hartigan of the Bureau of Weights and Measures, and others who have been active in investigating food conditions. Commissioner Hartigan will probably talk the matter over with Mayor Mitchel today. The Commissioner said yesterday that the work done by the Borough President in establishing the new markets and the results of the Mayor's Committee on Food Investigation show the need of some administrative bureau that will encourage the bringing of supplies into the city and give dealer, producer, and consumer a square deal.

It is reported that the four new markets are growing so rapidly that the question of furnishing space for all who want to sell is now a problem. At the Queensboro Bridge market on Saturday one farmer disposed of three wagonloads of produce. It is the intention of Mr. Marks to perfect the system by expelling those who sell under grade or over price and punish offenders.

"In the main," said Mr. Marks, "the products sold in the markets have been of first-class quality. The standards have been comparatively high and there have been few swindlers. Up to this time we have not had enough farmers to meet the demands of the markets. A tour of the markets today shows a doubling of business in the last four days."

Here are some of yesteray's prices in the Fort Lee Ferry Market: String beans, 5 cents a quart; beets, three bunches for 5 cents; cabbage, 5 cents a head; corn, 20 cents a dozen; carrots, two and three bunches for 5 cents; cucumbers, three and four for 5 cents; egg plant, 8 cents each; lettuce, three small heads for 5 cents; peaches, $1 per basket; potatoes, eight pounds for 10 cents; sweet potatoes, three pounds for 5 cents; pineapples, 8 cents each, two for 15 cents; radishes, three bunches for 5 cents; spinach, 10 cents a basket; tomatoes, 5 cents a quart.

Meats.—Pork loins, 18 cents; pork chops, 22 cents; lamb, storage, shoulder, 14 cents; lamb, fresh, hindquarter, 20 cents; chicken, fresh killed, boilers, 22 cents a pound; chicken, roasting, 20 cents a pound.

SUGAR EXPORTS STRONG.

Large Shipments of Rice Will Be Made to England and France.

The demand for sugar from Europe continues, and it is estimated that the sales for export last week amounted to from 100,000 to 150,000 barrels at an equivalent of 7.18 cents a pound. The prices for raw and refined sugar remain unchanged. The refiners quote 7.50 cents, except the American Sugar Refining Company and H. B. H. Howell Sons & Co., who continue to quote at 7.25 cents. Sales of raw sugar in the afternoon aggregated 35,000 bags, at 6.27 cents a pound. The new beet crop is expected to appear upon the market in about a month.

Large shipments of rice to England and France will soon be made, it is expected. The crop of Louisiana, Texas, and Arkansas this season is estimated at 6,400,000 bags of 162 pounds each. Rice is now quoted about 5½ cents a pound.

BRITISH IN NEW YORK TO AID MEN IN FIELD

Imperial Club Women Plan Matinee with English Play and English Actors.

ORGANIZED FOR THE WORK

"Treasure Sale" of Laces, Jewels, and Personal Tokens a Proposed Source of Revenue.

There was a large attendance of women with a scattering of men at the meeting at the British Imperial Club, 108 East Thirtieth Street, yesterday afternoon, called by a committee of women of the club to concentrate the efforts of the British in this city to help their countrymen in the war.

Mrs. John T. Muir, Chairman of the committee, presided. The other members are Mrs. Oliver Herford, Mrs. Percy Derbyshire, and Mrs. Randall Hargreaves. Mrs. Herford is in charge of a big matinée to be given at the Lyceum Theatre the second or third Friday in November, at which the English actors in New York and vicinity at that time will take part. Miss Beatrice Herford will be among the number, as well as Cyril Maude, if he is in the city, and the Robertsons may be here. Other names are not known definitely.

At the matinée a play in three acts by three different writers. Anthony Hope, Comyns Carr, and Capt. Robert Marshall, the latter now at the front will be given. Another play, "What Do You Think About that?" is by Clare Kummer. Tickets will be $2.

Saturday afternoon, Oct., 24, a concert will be given at the headquarters, at which Randall Hargreaves, baritone, will sing English, Scotch, Irish, and Welsh songs. Tickets, $3, to be obtained of Mrs. Hargreaves, 160 Claremont Avenue. Many of those present gave their names for tickets yesterday and there were contributions for advertising.

John Kenna Lawson, 257 West Ninety-ninth Street, volunteered to organize all the Scotch clans of New York and the large cities of the State for relief work. Mr. Lawson had already collected $50. A meeting is called by another Scotchman, William C. Johnstone of the Holland House and 118 East Twenty-eighth Street, to be held at the British Imperial Club at 4 P. M. today, to which the men are invited to come that a volunteer ambulance corps to be sent to the front may be organized. Mrs. Muir informed the meeting that this had been a great lack in the South African war, many wounded men having been left on the field for lack of means for removal.

Dr. Theodosia M. Spring-Rice is a committee of one to look after nurses to be sent to the front. Four nurses who were present yesterday volunteered to go and guaranteed to remain six months, their expenses to be paid and they to receive $40 a month.

Volunteers to do practical work immediately were Mrs. Sidney Smith, Mrs. Sivell, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. William M. Thallon, Miss Elizabeth Byrne, and Miss Bridges, who form a clothing committee to handle warm clothes, which people are invited to send to the club. A rear room on the main floor of the clubhouse is to be given up to the work of the Relief Committee in the mornings. Meetings and rehearsals will be held afternoons and evenings. Other women are asked to do secretarial work, sell tickets for the dances, bridge and other parties which the committee proposes to give for the benefit of the relief work.

A letter was read from a self-supporting woman, who said that she, with others like her, had given all the ready money she could, and proposed a "treasure sale," people to contribute laces, jewelry, and other valuables to be sold for the benefit of British people suffering from the war.

HEAVY FIGHTING AROUND PUEBLA

Three Cars of Wounded Have Arrived in Mexico City, Vera Cruz Hears.

EX-FEDERALS AGGRESSIVE

Zapata Said to be Concentrating His Forces for an Attack on the Capital.

EMBARGO ON ARMS LIFTED

Border Patrols at Once Removed to Garrisons—Hailed as Virtual Recognition of New Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 9.—Heavy fighting has been going on between Constitutionalists and ex-Federals in the vicinity of Puebla and three carloads of wounded have already arrived in Mexico City, where they are filling all available hospital space. Fighting is reported still progressing, with the ex-Federals assuming the aggressive.

Definite confirmation was received here tonight that Zapatistas entered the capital through Peñon, making their escape before the troops could be mustered. The waterworks remain cut. It is reported that Zapata has ordered concentration for an attack.

Reports of ex-Federal activity continue to arrive from the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, but not details are given.

Gén. Carranza's decree forbidding individuals to have more than 100 pesos silver ($50) in their possession is expected here momentarily. It is officially explained that such a decree may be demanded by the financial conditions. However, it is interpreted as an efort to force Constitutionalist paper into circulation.

Conditions bordering on famine are reported in many places in the republic due to the suspension of railway traffic for many months. Land is uncultivated and crops are not harvested due to long armed activity. This is expected to precipitate even greater disorder momentarily.

Alexander de Stralewsky, the Russian Minister, is protesting, it is understood, because of the confiscation of property of Vice Consul Rath in Puebla some days ago and the violation and confiscation of the consular archives and code. The Minister sails aboard the Ward liner on Friday.

EL PASO, Sept. 9.—Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding the border patrol, received orders today from Washington to lift the embargo on arms, which has been in effect since the occupation of Vera Cruz by American troops.

The order was executed immediately. American soldiers who have been patroling the international line east and west of El Paso were removed to their garrisons. The inspection of international traffic on the bridges spanning the Rio Grande was stopped. This act by the War Department was hailed by agents of the Constitutionalist Government as a virtual recognition of Mexico's new Government.

HENNESSY'S NEW CHARGES.

Says Gov. Glynn Is Now Dealing Secretly with Fitzpatrick.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 9.—John A. Hennessy tonight added many new charges against the Murphy administration in New York in his campaign to wrest the nomination from Gov. Glynn, whom he designated as a tool of the Tammany leader. Attacking the assertion of Gov. Glynn that he had saved money for the State, Mr. Hennessy declared that he had cut appropriations by deferring debts that the next administration must pay. He cited debts left by the Dix administration and paid by Gov. Sulzer to illustrate Murphy control in Albany. He said that ex-Gov. Dix had used napkins costing $144 a dozen, pillowslips at $12 each, sheets at $30 each, and bedspreads costing $200, $175, and $150 each. He charged that former Gov. Dix had left unpaid bills of $80,000, which the Sulzer administration had to pay. Continuing, he said:

"Mr. Glynn, who says he harmonizes Democrats, who is so ethical, is now betraying the Democrats of Erie County. I am going to Buffalo on Friday. A trial is coming off there, and if Mr. Fitzpatrick, the Tammany boss there, does not get the witnesses over to Ohio or Canada, as was the case last Spring, I promise you that I will indict him. The story is too long to tell here, but the nub of it is that he was interested in a contract through a dummy, and I will connect Mr. Fitzpatrick with that transaction if some bank checks have not disappeared. Gov. Glynn is now dealing secretly with this man Fitzpatrick. Gov. Glynn met Mr. Fitzpatrick recently in the Vanderbilt Hotel in New York City. He took him into a private room, and by a distribution of patronage is planning to betray the voters of Erie County, who threw Mr. Fitzpatrick out of their organization."

LAYS OFF 68 MORE TRAINS.

Total Curtailment of 209 Since Spring by the Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—In pursuance of its retrenchment policy, inaugurated earlier in the year, the Pennsylvania Railroad today announced that sixty-eight trains would be discontinued on the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie, beginning Sept. 15. This annulment is in addition to the usual reductions in the seashore schedules, which are always made in the Fall. Usually the changes in the general schedule are made in November.

The company on April 1 annulled 118 passenger trains, and some weeks previously twenty-three trains were discontinued on the Pennsylvania lines west and in the suburban service in the vicinity of Pittsburgh. The curtailment made earlier in the year, it was estimated, would effect a saving of $2,000,000 a year.

Charged With Swindling Hotels.

Don L. Persch, thirty-one years old, known also as Don Loomis, was arrested last night by Detectives Reed and Sloan of theh Hotel Protection Department of the Burns Detective Agency just as he had finished dinner with a woman companion. Th Burns agents took Persch to Headquarters, where he was locked up on a charge of passing worthless checks. Accirding to the detectives, Persch posed as the son of a Director of a paper match concern, and, after making the acquaintance of the hotel clerks by trying to get orders for the matches, asked them to cash the checks.

OPENS WIRELESS TODAY.

Government Takes Over Tuckerton Station—Rules for Messages.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The big German-owned and German-operated radio station at Tuckerton, N. J., which has been an international bone of contention since the first gun was fired in the European war, was taken over entirely today by the United States Government, which has settled all arguments by opening its lines of communication to all the world. The work of transmitting messages will be begun tomorrow.

Three officers and nine expert wireless men from the United States Navy Department are now in charge of the plant, and they have been instructed to enforce the strictest neutrality. The station and all its appliances will be held by the Government till the close of the war, when, with such money as has been collected for the transmission of messages, it will be turned back to its owners.

Commercial messages, as well as news and diplomatic communications, will be handled by the naval men at Tuckerton, who will use their own discretion in shutting out messages which might form a breach of the neutrality laws. Lieutenant Felix X. Gygax, one of the best linguists in the navy and formerly in command of the submarine G-3, is in direct charge. He is assisted by Ensign George B. Jenkin and Ensign C. B. Platt. Nine enlisted men, trained as wireless operators, have been assigned as his assistants.

Under one of the Government rules the censors must rewrite every message to be sent and every message received. The messages will be rewritten in paraphrase. The purpose of this is to prevent the sending of messages in so-called "plain language code." This is a code which is concealed in the message, despite the fact that the dispatch as written appears to contain no code symbols. There are several subtle and clever ways in which this can be done. The paraphrasing of every message will, of course, completely foil any attempt to fool the censor with a plain-language, concealed-code arrangement of the messages. The rewriting of the messages, however will not alter the sense of the dispatches.

The official announcement of the rules under which the Tuckerton station will be operated from tonight on by the Government was made today. Lieut. Felix X. Gygax, U. S. N., is the senior officer in charge, and the letter of instructions from the Secretary of the Navy contains the following regulations:

The station shall be used only for transmission to or receiving from shore stations in Europe and the United Kingdom.

Censors must assure themselves that the messages handled are strictly neutral in character. No unneutral messages will be handled.

No messages in cipher or code shall be transmitted or received for delivery unless the United States official censors are furnished with a key to such messages.

No messages in foreign languages, or in unintelligible terms, shall be transmitted or received for delivery unless the United States official censors are supplied with translations of such messages in the English language and the official censors are satisfied of the bona fides of the translations.

No messages shall be transmitted or delivered until they have been first paraphrased by the censors, whether they are received or are to be sent in plain language or in code, cipher, or foreign language.

No messages shall be sent or delivered until countersigned by the censor.

The station charges of the Tuckerton station will be 17 cents a word cable count, with a ten-word minimum.

Accounting returns will be made monthly on the regular forms to the office of the Superintendent of radio service, Radio, Va.

Cipher and code books furnished as well as the contents of all messages handled will be considered as confidential.

The call letters of the Tuckerton station will be WGG.

You are authorized to make such arrangements for schedules with radio stations in Europe or the United Kingdom as will serve best to clear the radio traffic involved.

DROP INCOME LEVY TO MEET WAR LOSS

President's Opposition to Ways and Means Plan Forces New Expedients.

MAY DRAW ON AMUSEMENT

To Consider Moving Picture Tickets and Films—Discuss Further Increase of Beer Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Their plans upset by an objection from the White House, the Democrats of the House Ways and Means Committee will start anew tomorrow the task of framing a war-revenue-tax bill which will yield $100,000,000 in the present fiscal year. The President to-day summoned Representative Underwood, Chairman of the committee, and suggested that the income-tax feature of the proposed legislation be eliminated. The President's wishes will be heeded.

In making this request the President was prompted by the same desire which he expressed in his message read before Congress, that "such sources of revenue be chosen as will begin to yield at once, and yield with a certain and constant flow."

An increase of income taxes would not produce revenue until July 1 of next year. The tentative plan of the Ways and Means majority was to increase the income tax rate to 1½ per cent. and make incomes in excess of $2,000 in the case of unmarried persons and $3,000 in the case of married persons liable.

While there has been no meeting of the Ways and Means Committee since the President expressed his wishes, there is little doubt that the bill will be changed to meet the new conditions. In consequence the committee will take up anew the consideration of articles which may be taxed. The committee had voted to eliminate gasoline and railroad tickets, but it is likely that both will be considered again when the majority members of the committee meet tomorrow. Consideration also will be given to amusement tickets, including tickets for moving picture exhibitions, moving picture films, freight bills, automobiles, so-called "soft" drinks, proprietary medicines, and playing cards.

The tentative plan put an additional tax of 50 cents a barrel on beer. This, it was said may be increased to 60 cents a barrel. The lower tax would produce revenue of about $32,000,000, while the larger tax would bring in $42,000,000. About $9,000,000, it is expected, will be raised by the proposed tax of 2 cents a gallon on domestic wines.

The committee may reconsider its decision not to levy an additional tax on distilled spirits. At the last meeting, after proposed taxes of 25 cents and 15 cents a gallon on distilled spirits had been voted down, a compromise was determined upon in the shape of a tax of 2 cents a gallon on rectified spirits, which would produce $2,000,000 in revenue.

SEARCH FOR KARLUK'S CREW

Two Vessels Now Trying to Reach Marooned Sailors.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—Two relief ships are now in the arctic trying to reach the twenty members of the Stefansson expedition who were left on the ice when the exploring ship Karluk was crushed, and are thought to be either on Wrangel or Herald Island. The vessels are the United States revenue cutter Bear and the trading boat Corwin. The latter was chartered for this purpose by Jafet Linderburg, the founder of Nome.

The Bear, which had been seeking the missing men, returned to Nome the first of this month, and reported that owing to fog and shortage of coal it had been unable to reach Wrangel Island. The United States Government ordered the Bear to coal and return at once. With Capt. Bartlett of the Karluk on board, the Bear again turned north on Sept. 4, and on the next day the Corwin departed on the same mission. The Corwin took, in addition to a first class crew a party of hunters, dogs, skin boats, and provisions sufficient to last forty men a year.

The schooner Mary Sachs, which was one of the Stefansson fleet of exploring vessels, is reported to have left Herschel Island on Aug. 11 for Banks Land with the intention of establishing depots for Stefansson's use if he succeeds in crossing the ice to Bank's Land this Fall.

MRS. WALDO'S WILL FILED.

Deficit Expected in the Estate of ex-Police Commissioner's Mother.

The will of Mrs. Gertrude Rhinelander Waldo, mother of ex-Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, who died of apoplexy in the Hotel Netherland in May, was filed for probate yesterday. She left no real estate and the value of her personal estate was said to be more than $500. The will provides for the payment of $100,000 to Mrs. Waldo's sister, Miss Laura V. Rhinelander, in settlement of a debt. The only bequest was one of $1,000 to Elizabeth Glenn of 358 West Forty-eight Street. Miss Rhinelander also receives the residue of the estate. The will provides that if she died before Mr. Waldo the residue is to pass to him and that if both die it is to go to Columbia University.

Percival S. Jones, Mrs. Waldo's lawyer, said that after the debts and the bequest were paid there would probably be a deficit. He was quite certain there would be no residue. The will made on Aug. 21, 1902.

Mrs. Waldo lived with her sister for a number of years prior to taking up her residence in the Hotel Netherland. A strong affection existed between them. Mrs. Waldo was supposed to be very rich. In February, 1911, a judgment for $6,908 was obtained against her by the County Holding Company, and her failure to pay led to an application for the appointment of a receiver for her property. The statement was made then that she had transferred all of her property to her sister, Miss Rhinelander, to avoid paying.

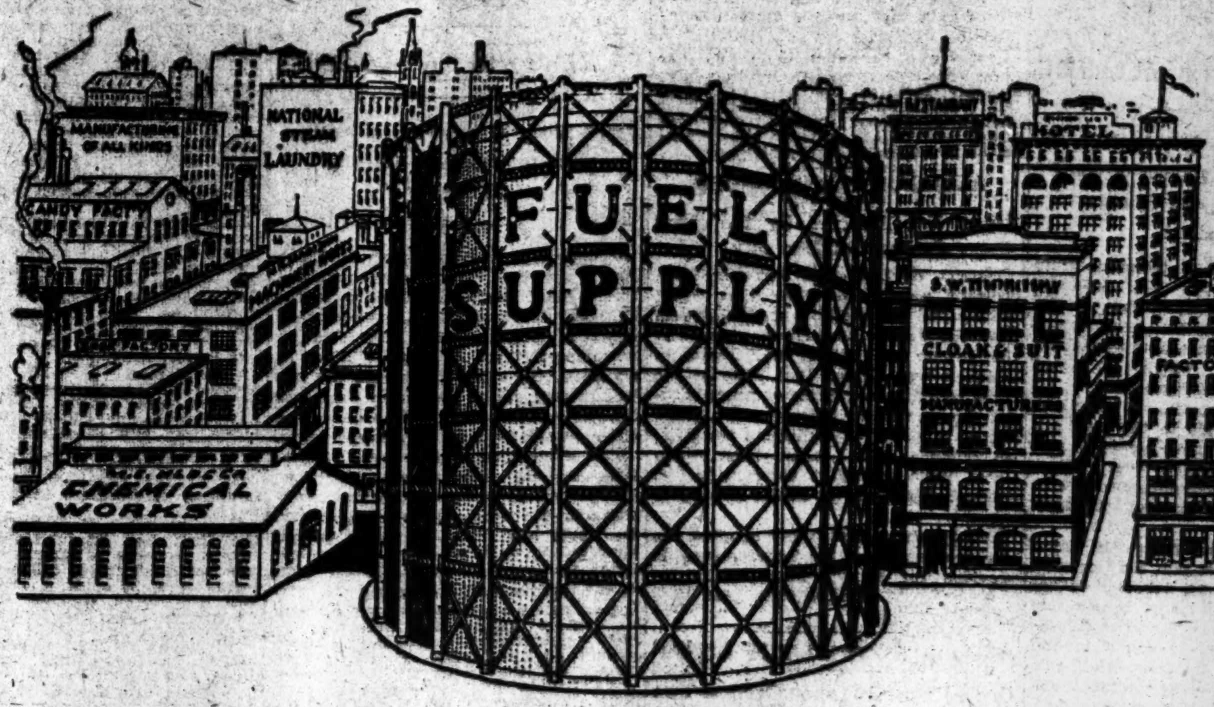
A National Relief Fund to alleviate the acute distress of families, widows and orphans in Great Britain and Ireland caused by the War, has been started by the Prince of Wales. The response to this appeal has been gratifying, but a greater sum of money is needed, because, in the Prince's own words: "There will be considerable distress among the people of Great Britain and Ireland least able to bear it."

There must be a large number of people in the United States with British affiliations, who are anxious to relieve this destitution and distress. For this purpose an American Branch has been formed to collect subscriptions and transmit same to the Central Fund.

The Committee will welcome any subscriptions, however small, and particularly suggest the offer of subscriptions payable weekly during the continuance of the War.

Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company have been kind enough to act as depositary. Subscriptions should be sent to them, designated for the above fund, or to Mr. R. M. STUART WORTLEY, Treasurer, 25 Broad Street.



On the Eve of Industrial Prosperity.

With one accord the newspapers proclaim that never was the outlook brighter for domestic manufacturing than at the present time. 'Tis true that in the past we have been absolutely dependent in many ways. From now on we shall be more self-reliant. Let us enter into this new era with you. We can be of great assistance. It matters not what line of industry you may wish to develop in which fuel plays, or will play, an important part. There is no cheaper fuel to-day than GAS for the CHEMIST, for the MACHINIST, for the CLOTHING MANUFACTURER, or for those who are interested in other industrial pursuits. GAS is an economical fuel. There is no waste in heaps of ashes or in the energy that is lost in chimneys and smoke-stacks.

To Increase Sales and Reduce Expense—Telephone

UNSETTLED conditions should not discourage the efficient sales manager. His problem is to increase sales and reduce selling costs, but the telephone helps solve the problem. For example:

A large wholesale house recently felt the necessity of reducing the cost of marketing their goods. The Telephone Company suggested selling by telephone. It pointed out the fact that the salesmen who secure the best results when they call upon the buyer personally will also secure the best results over the telephone. It showed how these expert salesmen could interview at least twenty times as many buyers by telephone as they could see in person. A campaign was started early in August. It was at once successful and is being continued this fall with increasing results.

You can fit the telephone into your sales campaign in such a way that you can increase your sales and reduce your selling expense.

Information will be gladly furnished at any of our business offices as to the best way to adapt the telephone to your selling campaign.

AUTO SMASH KILLS 4; DR. BORDEN A VICTIM

Son of Late Cotton Manufacturer Drives Car Into Speeding Locomotive.

J. H. WOOD AND WIFE DEAD

Only One Member of Party Escapes—Were Trying to Cross Reading Tracks.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 9.—Four persons were killed and one injured when the touring car of Dr. Matthew S. Borden, son of the late M. C. D. Borden, the cotton goods manufacturer, struck the side of a fast moving freight train early this morning near Palermo, a hamlet near Ocean City. The dead are:

BORDEN, Dr. MATTHEW S., of 316 West Seventy-ninth Street, New York.
GUTFREUND, LEO, chauffeur for Dr. Borden, New York.
WOOD, J. HARVEY, 610 West 115th Street, New York, a bond salesman for the Spitzer-Rorich Company, at 5 Nassau Street.
WOOD, Mrs. J. HARVEY.

The man who escaped is John N. Ryan of 102 West Eightieth Street, New York, who was associated with Dr. Borden in an agency for the Equitable Life Assurance Society at 149 Broadway. He is under treatment at the Oceanic House, at Ocean City.

Dr. Borden was at the wheel, and was driving to Cape May, where members of the party were to attend a convention. He was driving along the State Boulevard, which parallels the tracks of the Reading Railroad before it crosses them near Palermo. Evidently Dr. Borden miscalculated the speed of the freight train, and attempted to cross in front of it. The automobile was an instant too late, and crashed into the side of the locomotive.

Dr. Borden fell on the track and his body was cut to pieces under the wheels. The automobile, its front crushed, was thrown into the air. Mr. and Mrs. Wood and the chauffeur were pitched against the train with such force that they were killed instantly. Ryan was thrown thirty feet to the platform of the station at Palermo.

Evidently no one on the locomotive knew of the accident, for the train kept on its way. As soon as Ryan recovered consciousness he went to the telephone booth on the station platform and telephoned to the exchange at Ocean City for help.

John Stratton, the first man to reach the scene, found Ryan, who had again become unconscious, lying on the platform. County Physician R. M. Griscom took charge of the bodies. The body of Dr. Borden and his chauffeur were sent to New York tonight. Those of Mr. and Mrs. Wood are held at Ocean City pending the arrival of relatives. Mrs. Borden and her three daughters have been spending the Summer at Deal Beach, N. J.

On July 15 last, Dr. Borden, driving his automobile, with two friends, ran into Mounted Policeman John Mee in a fog at Broadway and Fifteenth Street, Flushing, knocking Mee from his horse and inflicting injuries from which he died the same day. Dr. Borden was held in $5,000 bail on a charge of homicide.

Mrs. Borden was Mildred Negbauer, daughter of a New Haven tailor, whom Dr. Borden married in 1892 while he was a student at Yale. Both families opposed the marriage, and Mrs. Borden sued in South Dakota and obtained a divorce. Young Borden was sent abroad with a tutor, but on his return he wooed his divorced wife again and remarried her in 1894.

M. C. D. Borden, who had threatened to disinherit his son upon his first marriage, added a codicil to his will after the second marriage, providing that Dr. Borden should receive no share of his estate while he remained the husband of Mrs. Mildred N. Borden, and that no child by the marriage should receive any part of the estate. The will remained unchanged at the death of M. C. D. Borden in 1912. He divided his estate between his two other sons, Bertram H. Borden and Howard S. Borden, with the provision that one-third of the estate should go to Dr. Borden should he cease to be the husband of his present wife. Representatives of the family said, however, that M. C. D. Borden had in his last days become reconciled with Dr. Borden and had settled $1,000,000 upon him.

J. Harvey Wood formerly was President of the New York Urban Real Estate Company. He was the son of James H. Wood of Bristol, Va. In July, 1910, he married Mojeska R. Clarke of 980 Bergen Street, Brooklyn. Before the marriage Mr. Wood called up the newspapers and announced that the wedding would take place. Later he telephoned to deny that there was to be any wedding. It took place, however, and he explained that the announcement and denial had been made to throw the newspapers off the track. Mr. Wood resigned a year ago as President of the New York Urban Real Estate Company. Mr. and Mrs. Wood leave no children.

AUTO ACCIDENTS.

Brooklyn the Scene of Collisions and Rundowns.

There were four automobile accidents in Brooklyn yesterday. Jessie Grayson, 9 years old, of 248 High Street, was struck by a car owned and operated by Clarence G. Baar of 807 East 175th Street, Bronx, near her home. She was taken to the Brooklyn Hospital with two broken ribs.

A truck of the Remsen Company, 410 Bedford Avenue, operated by Terence Smith of 223 Spencer Street, hit a hay truck driven by Joseph Monroe of 95 Knickerbocker Avenue, at Bedford and Atlantic Avenues. Monroe and William Wenck of 387 Nostrand Avenue, riding on the rear of the hay truck, sustained injuries of the face and hands.

Charles H. Keller of 75 Aetna Street, while riding on a motor cycle at Lafayette and Washington Avenues, was struck by an automobile truck operated by Gus Silvis of 894 Kent Avenue and owned by A. H. Ziegler of 270 Haywood Street. He suffered bad scalp wounds.

Dominick Rogers of 31 Downing Street, Manhattan, was struck by an automobile while crossing Eastern Parkway, at Washington Avenue. The automobile did not stop. Rogers suffered only a scalp wound and went home.

HUSSEY REINSTATED.

But Is Suspended Two Minutes After Getting Police Captain's Badge.

Ex-Police Inspector James E. Hussey, who was found guilty with ex-Inspectors Thompson, Murtha and Sweeney of conspiring to keep George A. Sipp, a Harlem hotel keeper, from the jurisdiction of the New York courts, and served one year in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island, was reinstated as a Police Captain yesterday morning and wore his badge at Police Headquarters for two minutes. He was then suspended by order of Commissioner Woods on charges of neglect of duty and violation of the Police Department regulations.

Hussey's reinstatement followed the setting aside of his conviction by the Appellate Division on March 6, and it means that he will receive all back pay from May 7, 1913, when he was dismissed from the department because of the conviction. He will, however, have to establish his innocence on the new charges against him before he can again become a Police Captain. These charges are based, it is said, on evidence given before the Curran Aldermanic Investigation Committee by James Dougherty and Ashley Shea, who swore that they had paid graft to Hussey while he was an Inspector. The evidence was produced by Third Deputy Police Commissioner Godley, who will have charge of Hussey's examination, which will begin Sept. 15.

ALDRICH WANTS TAXES BACK

Asks Providence to Remit Money He Paid on Personal Property.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. Sept. 9.—Ex-United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich today asked for the remission by the city of taxes on $1,000,000 worth of intangible personal property.

Mr. Aldrich maintains that he was not a resident of Providence in the year preceding April 1 and that for this reason his intangible personal property is not taxable here.

Wards for "Twilight Sleep."

It was said yesterday at Lebanon Hospital, Westchester and Cauldwell Avenues, the Bronx, that "Twilight Sleep" in cases of childbirth had been used there with success during the last two weeks. Two wards in the hospital, which is the first in the Bronx to try the new method, have been set aside for "Twilight Sleep" patients, and fifty have been treated with no fatalities either to babies or mothers.

Marion Shea Missing.

Marion Shea, twenty years old, of 370 East 138th Street, the Bronx, was reported missing last night. She was last seen at 8:30 o'clock Monday night, when she left her home without telling her mother and sister, with whom she lived, where she was going. Miss Shea is 5 feet 2 inches in height, weighs 120 pounds, and has black hair and brown eyes. She wore a pink dress, green coat, black stockings and pumps, and a black hat and plume. She was employed as a saleswoman by Best & Co.

NEW CARMAN WITNESSES.

One Tells of Seeing Man Disguised as a Woman Near Doctor's Office.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 9.—The October Grand Jury, which is in session here, took up the Bailey murder case today. It is thought that District Attorney Lewis J. Smith will try to have the new Grand Jury find a stronger indictment against Mrs. Carman than manslaughter, the charge found by the last Grand Jury against the wife of the physician in whose office Mrs. Bailey was killed.

Those who appeared before the jury today were Mrs. Elizabeth Varrance, the trained nurse whose face Mrs. Carman is said to have slapped after having seen Dr. Carman hand her a $20 bill; Dr. Carman; Walter Cozzens, the first policeman to reach the Carman home in Freeport after the shooting on the night of June 30, and Mrs. Edith Larkin of 15 Thorne Avenue, Hempstead, a neighbor of Mrs. Lulu Bailey, who was killed.

Neither Mrs. Varrance nor Mrs. Larkin testified at the Coroner's inquest or at the previous Grand Jury hearing. Mrs. Larkin, it is understood, was called today to throw light on whether a friendship existed between Dr. Carman and Mrs. Bailey before the shooting. Dr. Carman, it is reported, was asked as to why there was such a long delay after the shooting before the police were notified. It is also reported that the District Attorney has discovered the identity of the two women patients who were seen in the physician's waiting room before the shooting and who fled at the sound of the shot, presumably to avoid publicity. They will be called as witnesses.

Another witness is Celia Coleman, the colored servant who worked in the Carman home and who has been questioned by detectives since she testified at the Coroner's inquest.

George M. Levy, the Carman lawyer, made public an affidavit yesterday dated Aug. 4 and signed by John G. Haberle, a drug broker with an office at 100 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan, which Mr. Levy hopes will help remove suspicion from Mrs. Carman. In his affidavit Mr. Haberle said that on the night of June 1 he went to Dr. Carman's home to collect a bill and get a new order and that his curiosity was aroused by a person in woman's clothes who crossed the lawn and peered through the window through which Mrs. Bailey was shot nearly a month later. He followed the person to an automobile waiting at the corner, he said, and as the visitor was stepping into the machine noticed that there were trousers beneath the skirt.

CONGRESSIONAL ASSISTANCE TO SHIPPING.

"Next week" a great many ships will be registered under the United States flag. The prediction is almost as familiar as the similar prediction regarding the completion of our rapid transit system. It was "next week" for years. The prediction regarding shipping registration was first made when it was desired to pass the permission to register. That being accomplished and the register remaining still almost empty, the next step looked forward to was the President's repeal of the profit-preventing regulations of the old law. The President's proclamation having been barren of result, it was discovered that what was wanted was war insurance. That was provided, and there was nothing done. Now, again, it is predicted that soon registry will be in demand. Congress thinks the delay is a call for its activities, and yesterday there was hurried out a favorable report on the bill putting the Government into the steamship business. Now "next week" surely will see the rush to the register.

In the words of the report:

> However much enterprising citizens and corporations may wish to meet the demands in the present emergency, they seem to be powerless to do so without Government aid. Hence the rational course is to utilize Government resources to inure to the benefit of all the people.

The argument is alluring. Nobody is capable of opposing Government activities for the benefit of all. But is this action of that character? That depends upon whether the Government provides fair or unfair competition. If the Government proposes to run ships at a loss, providing the deficit from tax money for the relief of the shippers, it is more clear where some shippers will benefit than where the nation at large will benefit. It is plain that the Government cannot hope to accommodate all shippers, not even by the investment of a hundredfold any sum now mentioned. Even among shippers, therefore, there must be discrimination. If the Government should accommodate all shippers or none the Government scheme is impossible. Moreover, it is probable that with the threat of Government competition more private capital will retire from the unequal competition than will be induced to enter it. In that case the Government facilities will be rather a subtraction than an addition to the facilities of commerce, and the general interests will be prejudiced rather than promoted. Is it possible that the shipping trade, which is almost as well informed about its interests as Congressmen, is waiting for the activities of Congress to be discontinued rather than for them to be speeded up?

The sum Congress proposes to venture is clearly only an entering wedge. Millions of tons of shipping would be necessary, if the tonnage now carried in foreign ships is to be transferred to Government ships. The cost would be hundreds of millions, instead of tens of millions. That is for ships alone. There would be need of docks for repairs and piers for terminals. Cargoes would not come without solicitation, unless the rates were made so attractive as to repel private competition. Consequently there would be need of a great investment and operating staff on land, apart from the crews. Government wages, of course, would be on a liberal scale, and the crews would be as ample in number as those required by Federal and State laws in the case of the railways. Our Government practice is to make no allowance for interest upon capital, or for depreciation of plant. Undeniably that method has advantages when it is desired to make a balance to credit of profit and loss. There can be no doubt that the Government ship lines would show a profit by Government bookkeeping, but there would be a balancing entry in the General Deficiency bill each year, as in the case of the Post Office "profits." No doubt the Government would carry some freight at a profit to some shippers. Per contra there would be debit entries of the burden upon the taxpayers, of dissatisfaction created by favoritism to some shippers and some wage earners over those not favored, and of repulsion of private capital.

Chairman ALEXANDER eloquently asks how much longer must the country wait for private capital to register its ships. A plain answer is that the country must wait until private capital is allowed to earn a profit satisfactory to itself. The repeal of laws prohibiting profits in the shipping industry is what is needed rather than new laws making costly the ownership and operation of ships.

ADMIRAL MAHAN'S LETTER.

We agree with Admiral MAHAN, whose letter to THE TIMES appears elsewhere, that wars do not spring merely from huge armaments—that they may, even, arise during a state of unpreparedness for war on both sides—and that in every case the motives of war are to be found in popular and national or dynastic interests and emotions. Nevertheless, borders mutually undefended, like the three thousand miles between the United States and Canada, excite no suspicions. Without their great navies and vast armies, and their frontiers heavily defended with forts, it is not difficult to see that the crisis which turned the European nations to war might easily have been avoided. With these instruments, and with the reliance which they inspired, it is difficult to see how the belligerent nations avoided conflict so long. Admiral MAHAN does not attempt to show that the armaments never cause war. Yet that the European armament actually assured peace was long the doctrine proclaimed by the armament makers.

As for the examples of wars unprovoked by arms, we should say that unpreparedness tends to make them few and ineffectual. Civil wars are rare for this and for other reasons. The fact that they do occur, and that they may be as long and bloody as the American civil war, argues nothing against the inherent advantages of States confederated by strong bonds of language and intercourse, by common customs and institutions, and by the resolve not to make warlike preparations against each other. The wars with Great Britain in 1812, with Mexico, and with Spain were none of them very terrible, precisely for the reason that they were not largely prepared for. Men who drop their work to pummel each other with their fists may shake hands again on the morrow. But when they go about with pistols in their holsters, bought to use against each other, the likelihood of killings is increased.

THE MOOSE AS A FACTOR.

Col. ROOSEVELT's visit to Louisiana is timely; Louisiana is the only State in which the Progressive Party has apparently any chance to make a gain. A factional fight which has broken out in the party there may cool the ardor of some of its members, but in any case it seems certain to make a positive advance, and Louisiana is counted upon to add at least one, possibly more, to the slim Bull Moose membership in the House.

But outside of Louisiana it is already evident that the Progressives will not increase their strength anywhere, that in most places it will be decreased, and that in some it will be wiped out. They will not carry any State and, despite the probable addition of from one to three seats in Louisiana, their Congressional membership will almost certainly be reduced. The only question for politicians now is to how great an extent the Progressive vote will affect the Republican prospects.

In New York State the fact that the Bull Moose cast nearly 200,000 votes for Judge of the Court of Appeals, in an election wherein there were no party issues, indicates that it is strong enough to prevent the election of a Republican Governor unless there is a landslide. When the Republicans refused Col. ROOSEVELT's offers for harmony they arrayed this vote against them. In Illinois they are reported strong enough to elect the Democratic candidate, which seems likely to have the unpleasant result of putting ROGER SULLIVAN in the Senate. In Indiana they have gone to pieces, but Mr. BEVERIDGE is admittedly much stronger than his party, and his candidacy will probably return SHIVELY to Washington. Gov. JOHNSON's following in California is apparently strong enough to prevent a Republican victory there There may be a few other places where their vote will decide the general result, but they will not include the great Bull Moose States of 1912, Pennsylvania and Minnesota.

Their principal value to the Democratic Party will come in the deciding of Congressional elections. The leaders of both the principal parties confidently expect that a considerable number of Congressional seats will be swung to the Democrats by the Progressive vote. It is principally upon the showing they make in this respect that the question of their future will depend. If they can demonstrate that they are strong enough to prevent the Republicans from carrying the House they will remain such a menace to that party that they will have to be reckoned with in the preparations for 1916, even though they do lose some of their own Congressmen and fail to carry any State. If, in addition, they can throw the State elections to the Democrats in such States as New York, Illinois, Indiana, and California, the Republicans will not be much cheered by all the tables showing the falling-off in Bull Moose strength since 1912.

A NEW WAY WITH THIS CRISIS.

For the first time within the memory of this generation the banks of the interior are being brought to an appreciation of what New York has done for them in previous crises. Other crises have been met by buying gold abroad with proceeds of sacrifice sales of securities on the New York Stock Exchange. Now the Stock Exchange is closed, and the interior banks are being asked to contribute gold for export from their reserves. New York, for its part, already has financed New York City in troubles like those from which the local banks rescued the city in 1907. That is the greater part of the gold needed for export. The rest of the country is left to take the smaller part. It is a Western banker who makes this proposal to his associates, but the proposal itself is in the Eastern manner. The mobilization of the country's gold is being extemporized almost as though the Federal reserve system were in operation. Its brain already is active, although its hands have not yet gained their force.

Nothing of this sort has been possible heretofore. That it is occurring now is an evidence of growth in banking knowledge and practice. As the interior takes up its share of the burden it may come to a better appreciation of its responsibility for the conditions needing remedy. The loans and reserves of the interior will be observed by the bankers there with less exclusive attention to those of New York, once the lesson is learned that New York may sometimes become weary of financing the country and getting abused for its pains. It is a good lesson in the principle of the Federal Reserve System, which decentralizes reserves, and centralizes control. The interior is under control it never has felt before, and New York's responsibility and burdens are shared. New York has no regrets. The interior is being checked in its attempt to pay its debits in emergency currency, and is called upon to find gold for the use of the country, in the New York manner.

It is clear what the country ought to think about it. For the first time it is being spared necessitous sales of securities, and is seeing the burden spread over the entire volume of loans of all banks, instead of being put solely upon the call loans of New York. The tendency is toward a liquidation of commodities held by everybody, instead of securities held by a few to whom the process of painful extraction could be applied. The provision of the moderate amount of gold required is small in proportion to the volume of trade affected by all bank business. The effect ought to be dissipated so as to be almost negligible instead of being as concentrated, conspicuous, and destructive as possible. The change is all for the better.

OUR SCHOOL ARMY.

Within a few days there will be gathered in camps of concentration and training the school army of the United States, the largest, strongest, most important for the protection and extension of our institutions and the principle of our national life that can be conceived. The rank and file of this immense army number over 20,000,000 and include about 80 per cent. of the population between 6 years and 20. The great body of students, about 90 per cent., are in the public schools, and of these about 94 per cent. are in the primary and elementary schools. Perhaps the most significant fact in connection with this vast educational organization is that it is formed to meet the needs of a people more than one-third of whom are of foreign birth or foreign parentage.

The fact that the students of all our universities and colleges,—public and private, are less than 1 per cent. of those receiving instruction cannot be ignored in estimating the value of our educational system. It is true that numbers alone are not a reasonable basis of comparison, and it is of great consequence that the higher education—the teaching of the teachers and of the professions—shall be the best attainable. But the training of the taught, of the mighty mass who are to be the workers and the voters throughout our land, is directly and indirectly of still greater consequence. It is so directly because upon it depends the development of our industrial and political interests. It is so indirectly because the more highly educated class will be greatly hampered in the work that they can do if the average school training of the population is inferior.

We have noted the fact that not only do our colleges and universities take within their walls less than 1 per cent. of the student population, but a little less than 10 per cent. of that population are in the high schools and academies. It is the children below the age of about 12 years who substantially make up our school army that will "join the colors" next week. Our readers are aware that we have steadfastly advocated the claims of this great army to much more attention, expenditure, and care than has usually been bestowed upon its relatively helpless recruits. Today we ask recognition for the great importance that this army possesses with regard to our social and civil life. It is in the schools that they first enter on the common national life. The proportion among them of the foreign born or born of foreign parents, is considerably greater than in the population at large, for reasons that are extremely encouraging as to the future. It is not from instruction only, perhaps not chiefly, that pupils of this class receive most effectively the subtle influence of nationality. It is from daily association with their teachers, with each other, and with other pupils. Pursuing a common course of occupation, having common aims and duties, their minds and feelings stirred by common impulses, they acquire the inestimable habit of living together. The counter-influence of their families, with foreign customs and points of view, is steadily undermined. The ties that bind are gradually strengthened; those that tend to separate and segregate are weakened; the essentials of American citizenship are developed. The process is complex and often confused, but its general tendency is clear.

In such times as these the incalculable value of that tendency is obvious. Countries from which great numbers of our school children come are at war, and among their adult citizens or subjects, even those in this country, passionate predilections exist. But with those who have passed through our schools passions of this sort are softened and moderated, if not prevented by the acquired instinct of Americanism. To encourage and instill this sentiment is one of the chief tasks of our schools, one of the most necessary and beneficent.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Such Woes Largely Unavoidable.

Not a few of the American refugees arriving in this port make more or less bitter complaint against the owners of the vessels bringing them over. Most often voiced, perhaps, is resentment of the fact that the travelers have been made to pay increased rates in the second and third cabins, receiving in return only the privilege of mingling with those with whom in calmer times association is rigorously forbidden—a privilege that obviously costs the companies nothing. Much dissatisfaction, however, has also been expressed as to the quality of the food served and with the manners of the stewards and other employés with whom the passengers are brought into immediate contact. For a good many of these complaints there is a basis of fact; that is, the rates have been raised and in many cases the food and the service have been bad. But the complainants might be a little more mindful of the unquestionably large and numerous difficulties with which the managers of the ships still in operation are now contending.

For one thing, the travel is practically all one way, the return voyage being made with almost empty cabins. That explains and in a business sense justifies the advanced rates. Explanation of the deteriorated service is at hand in the inexperience of a majority of the servitors, many of the trained men being no longer available and their places having been taken by those whom the recruiting officers have rejected. These substitutes, too, are often severely overworked at their unaccustomed duties on the western voyage, and weariness does not tend to produce suavity of manner.

Our investigations of this matter have convinced us that the steamship companies are doing for their patrons about the best they can and about as much as could reasonably be expected in the circumstances. The annoyances and hardships reported are real, but the sufferers should remember, and the more thoughtful of them do, that most of the responsibility for what they endure rests where does so much of vastly heavier responsibility—on those who brought on the war. Opinions vary as to the identity of the guilty ones, but nobody says or thinks that the steamship companies did it.

Knighthood Asked for Aviators.

H. G. WELLS, in a dispatch to The World, expresses firm belief in the great importance of the aeroplane as an implement of war, and deep regret that the Germans, in spite of their faith in Zeppelins, are better provided with the smaller and more agile machines than are either the English or the French. The result is, he says, that the German armies have better eyes than the Allies, and to this more than to their size he ascribes the efficiency of the Teutonic forces.

That being his opinion, it is not surprising that he urges the immediate building of a great number of the best aeroplanes, but what is rather unexpected is that a man of Mr. WELLS's well-known views should suggest the granting of knighthood to every aviator who, not confining his activities to mere scouting, succeeds in destroying hostile airship. He defends his plea fairly well, however, by saying that if this were done people would be reminded that titles were originally bestowed as reward for true public service, and that thus the word "knight," instead of suggesting, as now, a party worker or a provincial Mayor, would become again a real honorific.

And such conflicts in the air as Mr. WELLS foresees are well within the realm of probability. Men bold enough to undertake them, in spite of their terrible risks, could be found easily enough, and, as he says, single combats between aviators, watched by opposing armies, would be merely a modern version of those in which the knights of old earned distinction.

A Smuggler Comes to Grief.

People with enough of "heart" to understand how warm and deep is the affection which a dog, even though a Pekingese, can win and keep will not be too critical of the woman who is reported to have made a lot of trouble at the English port of Weymouth this week by trying to smuggle ashore a little beast of that breed.

She had come over from France on the Tennessee, and so had been through war experiences presumably more or less exciting, if not perilous. But in spite of them all she had clung to her dog, and she was fiercely determined that the stern British regulations which subject all canine immigrants to a long and strict quarantine before giving them the freedom of the insular realm should not separate her from her pet. Illustrating the moral obtuseness said to be a feminine characteristic when customs laws are concerned, she concealed the dog in her dress before starting down the gangplank, but before that he had been glimpsed by an official eye, and a demand for his surrender was made with an accompanying threat that if this were not done there would be (1) a thorough search of the ship and its passengers, and (2) a withdrawal of the landing privileges, exceptional in war time, hitherto enjoyed by the Tennessee as a transporter of refugees.

Only after an eloquent appeal by the representative of the American Relief Committee to the better nature of the passengers and a strong reminder of the grateful obedience they all owed to the laws of the country they were so glad and fortunate to reach, was the dog's owner moved to admit his existence and possession, and even then she long and vehemently vowed by this and by that her determination not to be separated from him. She did submit after a while, however, and the serio-comic incident ended in the little dog's characteristically stolid departure from his grieving mistress and his deposition in the appointed pound.

There, as England is a land of dog lovers, his treatment will doubtless be kind, but doubtless, too, he is in for some surprises as to diet and attention. The Britons did quite right in sticking to their rules. To the enforcement of those rules they owe the banishment of rabies from the British Isles, and though their system has cost them the profits that could have been derived from not a few visitors who elided England from their itinerary because of inability to endure separation from their dogs, safety from one of the most terrible of diseases is cheaply purchased at that price.

Something Like Last Appearances.

There is something rather amusing in the frequency with which "first ships through the Panama Canal" are reaching this and other ports. That there can be so many of them has its explanation, however. By tacit consent there are, it seems, to be as many of these "first ships" as there are trade routes, and as these are almost as many as there are ports on both sides of both the Atlantic and the Pacific, we can expect to see the arrival of vessels claiming and receiving here a special welcome as earliest users of the new waterway.

As the months go by, perhaps congratulatory tootings of the river craft will become rather brief and perfunctory, but they will not be withheld till the geographic knowledge of the men on the tugboats has been exhausted.

It's all right. "First" is not the only word that has several meanings.

UNGUARDED FRONTIERS

Not Factors in Preventing War, Admiral Mahan Says.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial of Aug. 29, "The American Example," you urge that "the unguarded frontier between the United States and Canada suggests the real reason why the United States has for a century maintained peace with Great Britain." As developed, the argument runs that preparation for war leads to war.

The statement is one that is running trippingly from hundreds of pens at the present moment. Let us examine it in the light of history.

In the last century the most protracted war, the one consequently most expensive in blood and treasure, was the war of secession between the North and South of our own country. In what way did "guarded frontiers" or other preparation for war contribute to the outbreak? What trained soldiery, what fortifications on either side, that in any way affected the determination to fight? The remote cause of the war was slavery; the immediate occasion popular emotion; fervid nationalism, patriotism, truly or falsely so-called, aroused on either side.

In 1812 the United States declared war against Great Britain. To what extent did preparations for war affect this decision? Our unpreparation was notorious, so that our own performance, except a few naval successes, was ludicrous, even grotesque, as an exhibition of military inadequacy. I know that war.

In 1846 we went to war with Mexico. Were the determining causes then in any sense preparation for war? During the past Winter I had the pleasure of reading twice George L. Rives's exhaustive and instructive work, "Relations of the United States with Mexico." If any one will read the same and find therein that sustained military armaments, beyond those originating with the immediate menace of war, had anything to do with bringing on that conflict, he will be more acute than I can flatter myself with being.

The war with Spain, which resulted in the liberation of Cuba, is of recent memory. In what sense, with any truth, can it be alleged that preparations for war—armaments—were an influential motive to that collision?

These instances are from our own history, and, naturally, unpreparedness for war is the American tradition and, to some extent, the American boast. In every instance the causes were of the class we call "moral," which, of course, includes immoral. That is, the motives which led to war were popular and national interests, convictions, emotions, and sympathies, although they may have been bad or good, wise or unwise, in any particular instance.

Per contra, the State whose name is the synonym for systematic preparation for war, Germany, has had sustained peace for forty-three years—nearly a half century—despite her huge armament. Though armed to the teeth, the European Continent during the same period until 1912 did not see war, except between Russia and Turkey in 1877. Those who remember that war, and the antecedent occurrences which led to it, will have difficulty in assigning preparation for war as a principal cause. I myself have always believed that not the reluctant Czar, but the passionate Russian people, in that instance forced hostilities on behalf of their persecuted co-religionists; men, too, of their own blood.

I am not prepared to maintain that armaments never cause war; but, if space permitted, I should be prepared to argue that they do so only when some other exciting cause, of either interest or national feeling, comes into play. The hackneyed phrase, "Vital interests or national honor," really sums up the motives that lead nations to war. Armament is simply the instrument of which such motives avail themselves. If there be no armament, there is war all the same.

A. T. MAHAN.

AUSTRIA'S WEAKNESS

Called the Underlying Cause of the European Struggle.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mustapha Pasha, the Turkish Ambassador at Vienna, was teased about Turkey losing the war against Russia. He became so angry that he forgot being a diplomat and spoke the plain truth. He said: "Whenever the powers of Europe shall have finished with Turkey, Austria will be the next football."

The weakness of Austria is the underlying cause of Europe's struggle, and Russia is the prime mover in the game. Waiting for the death of Franz Josef to start the campaign, she prepared the way for many years by instigating in Austria dissensions and Slavonic uprisings.

For the sake of Austria, none of the diplomats acquainted with the utterance of Mustapha Pasha has mentioned the occurrence, but I hope it will give a clearer view of the whole matter than so far presented to the people of the United States.

ALBERT ADLER.

A GERMAN DECLARATION.

[The following statement has been published by Rudolf Eucken and Ernst Haeckel, two leading philosophical writers of Germany.]

The whole German world of letters is today filled with deep indignation and strong moral indignation at the present behavior of England. Both of us, for many years bound to England by numerous scientific and personal ties, believe ourselves prepared to give open expression to this inward revulsion. In close co-operation with like-minded English investigators we have zealously exerted ourselves to bring the two great peoples closer together in spirit and to promote a mutual understanding. A fruitful reciprocal interchange of English and German culture seemed to us worth while, indeed necessary, for the spiritual advance of mankind, which today confronts such great problems. Gratefully we recall in this connection the friendly reception which our efforts received in England. So great and noble were the traits of English character which revealed themselves to us that we were permitted to hope that in their sure growth they would come to be superior to the pitfalls and seamy sides of this character. And now they have proved inferior, inferior to the old evil of a brutal national egoism which recognizes no rights on the part of others, which, unconcerned about morality or unmorality, pursues only its own advantage.

History furnishes in abundance examples of such an unscrupulous egoism; we need recall here only the destruction of the Danish fleet (1807) and the theft of the Dutch colonies in the Napoleonic wars. But what is taking place today is the worst of all; it will be forever pointed at in the annals of world history as England's indelible shame. England fights in behalf of a Slavic, half-Asiatic power against Germanism; she fights on the side not only of barbarism but also of moral injustice, for it is indeed not forgotten that Russia began the war because she would permit no radical reparation for a shameful murder.

It is England whose fault has extended the present war into a world war, and has thereby endangered our joint culture. And all this for what reason? Because she was jealous of Germany's greatness, because she wanted to hinder at any price a further growth of this greatness. For there cannot be the least doubt on this point that England was determined in advance to cast as many obstacles as possible in the way of Germany's existence in this struggle of the giants, and to hinder her as much as possible in the full development of her powers. She (England) was watching only for a favorable opportunity when she could break out suddenly against Germany, and she therefore promptly seized on the invasion of Belgium, so necessary to Germany, in order that she might cover with a small cloak of decency her brutal national egoism. Or is there in the whole wide world any one so simple as to believe that England would have declared war on France also if the latter had invaded Belgium? In that event she would have wept hypocritical tears over the unavoidable violation of international law; but as for the rest she would have laughed in her sleeve with great satisfaction. This hypocritical Pharisaism is the most repugnant feature of the whole matter; it deserves nothing but contempt.

The history of the world shows that such sentiments lead the nations not upward but downward. For the present, however, we trust firmly in our just cause, in the superior strength and the unyielding victorious spirit of the German people. Yet we must at the same time lament deeply that that boundless egoism has disturbed for an immeasurable period of time the spiritual co-operation of the two peoples which promised so much good for the development of mankind. But they wished it so there—on England alone falls the monstrous guilt and the historical responsibility.

The Times's War Comment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want you to know that I think the case for humanity and civilization has nowhere been more tellingly put than in THE TIMES's editorial articles of Sunday and Monday. Your reply to Germany is complete, and, in truth, unanswerable.

STEPHEN S. WISE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Nothing stronger or finer has ever been printed in a great crisis than THE TIMES's editorials in reply to the German appeal to American opinion. Marked throughout by restraint and avoidance of irritating phrase, they are unanswerable and convincing.

FRANKLIN H. GIDDINGS.

Columbia University, Sept. 8, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You are so splendidly right in your editorial this morning, "The Truth About Germany," that I must voice my thanks and that of a group of friends who have been enjoying it with me.

All along the Massachusetts Coast this Summer I have found THE TIMES in the hands of thoughtful men and women, and never a dissenting voice to your view of this war and its causes.

B. B. S.

Brooklyn, Sept. 7, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a constant reader of THE TIMES for over fifteen years past, I desire to convey to you my hearty thanks for the editorial in your issue of Sept. 7, entitled, "The Truth About Germany."

I have had occasion many times to admire the clear-cut, forcible, and vigorous English of your editorial columns, but in the article under discussion you have surpassed yourself and are entitled to the gratitude of all fair-minded men for the eloquent and convincing manner in which you have disposed of the German appeal for sympathy and support to which your editorial refers.

J. G.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 8, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If great occasions produce great men, it is equally true that great crises produce great newspaper—or at least enable newspapers already great to become more conspicuous in their greatness. You have contributed so signally to the public need in the publication of the "White Papers" that THE TIMES has become more than a mere newspaper in the character of the service it has rendered; it takes on the almost quasi-official character of the old Gazettes.

You have now published in Dr. Eliot's letter a contribution that any monthly review might well have been glad to get. For simple, direct, unimpassioned, illuminating exposition the letter is a masterpiece. I want to urge that you print this for your readers as you have the "White Papers."

A Widowed Mother's Struggle.

When her husband died from taking poison while intoxicated, the mother of two little girls, six and two years of age, was left absolutely destitute. For many years her husband had been an intemperate man, and during the five months preceding his death had been drinking unusually heavily. The constant worry and strain had depleted her strength. When she came to us for assistance she was given a physical examination and placed under treatment to build up her health and strength. She has responded satisfactorily and is steadily improving. Recently she secured a position as chambermaid in the dormitory of one of the colleges. As she lives in the same apartment house with her mother, the latter cares for the children during her absence at work. Relatives and friends help as they can with clothing for the children. Her income, however, is not adequate, and if she is to keep the children with her the rent must be paid. The Charity Organization Society asks for $68 to meet this expense for the next six months.

Gifts may be sent to the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions sent in response to previous appeals in THE TIMES: "Mrs. E. S. S.," $1; Henry R. Clark, $1; "C. A. J.," $1; R. E. Young, $10; "M. K.," $1; Mrs. Pauline Siegler, $5.

ELECTION BOARD SWAMPED.

Force of Clerks Doubled to Handle Designating Petitions.

The Board of Elections was swamped by the number of designating petitions deposited in the hour preceding midnight on Tuesday, when the period for filing them expired. The work of entering the names of candidates had not been completed by midnight last night, although a double force of clerks was employed. Commission of Elections Moses M. McKee said last night that it would take about twenty clerks a week to tabulate the candidates for nominations on whose behalf petitions had been filed.

In addition to the six contests against Tammany candidates for places on the Democratic State Committee, which were started by the Democratic Association, an anti-Tammany organization, the Jefferson Alliance, which is made up of Wilson Democrats, has started similar contests. Bert Hanson, Assistant Attorney General and Chairman of the alliance, issued this statement today:

"We have nominated complete local tickets in six Manhattan districts and a number of County Committeemen in other districts, displaying an activity and strength unparalleled by any reform Democratic organization ticket. We also furnished nearly one-seventh of the signatures from the whole State for the Hennessy-Roosevelt nomination."

The designation of Justice Samuel Seabury by the Democratic organization as a candidate for the nomination for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals was not received with the resentment which had been expected among leaders of the Progressive Party. Bull Moose leaders said yesterday that in their opinion Justice Seabury ought to accept the Tammany nomination.

"If Tammany would nominate more men of his type we might be able to get along very well with them," said William H. Hotchkiss, former State Chairman of the Progressive Party. "I think Justice Seabury should accept the nomination. It will not involve him in the necessity to make a campaign for the rest of the ticket."

ASSAILS WILSON'S POLICIES

Brandegee Opens Connecticut Convention with Criticism of the Administration.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 9.—With a "keynote" address by United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee, in which he strongly criticised the Democratic National Administration, the Republican State Convention was formally opened tonight.

The convention will meet tomorrow morning to adopt a platform and nominate a full State ticket, including a United States Senator. Senator Brandegee is unopposed for renomination.

Senator Brandegee maintained that the Democratic Party has not kept its promises as to the tariff and trust questions. Discussing President Wilson's tariff message and tariff legislation, the Senator said: "No business man can look back over the period of restricted business, of shrinking value, of doubt, apprehension, and distraction without feeling that he has been living in a nightmare.

"Business men feel," he said, "that the policies of the Administration are uncongenial, and will not be productive of prosperity; that the Interstate Commerce Commission is hostile to our great transportation interests; that the banking system is an experiment, and that the Government has become a critic and adversary of the business interests of the country."

The President's Mexican policy of "watchful waiting," the Senator said, was nothing more than "an impotent and imbecile drift."

Of the President's relations with Democratic members of Congress Mr. Brandegee said "they are in such mortal fear of quarrelling among themselves that they no longer assert their individual opinions, but obediently do the will of the President."

WEATHER CONDITIONS IN WARS

Their Publication Would Make Clearer the Military Operations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a military man, and as the instructor in our Army Service Schools in Military History, I desire to invite your attention to a defect in your reporting of the European war news in that you give nothing of the weather conditions, which have everything to do with military operations.

To the army officers, of whom you have hundreds of subscribers, the daily temperatures, rainfall, direction and velocity of the wind in all parts of the theatre of war, are of an importance and interest surpassing columns of the material you give regarding skirmishes, reconnoissance, &c.

These data are also extremely difficult to get after the occurrence, and your paper would become of permanent historical value if it gave these, if for no other reason. I might also suggest that the student of war would appreciate, for convenience of reference, a daily statement, along with the other, of the time of sunrise, sunset, moonrise, and moonset, and, in the case of night operations, whether the moon were clouded or visible.

American Food Prices Highest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have stayed over in New York for a few days after having spent the previous weeks in the war zone of Europe. I want to tell you that food of all kinds is higher in America than anywhere in Europe, and it is harder to collect money here than in the war zone. This is a bad showing for the United States masses of people.

BENEDICT XV.

His trembling hand takes up the mystic keys,
So lately dropped by one whose strength had waned
From grief and horror, that, in war-lust wild,
Brother his hand in brother's blood had stained.

The heavy crozier humbly now he grasps—
He, shepherd of two hundred million souls!
They hail him "Father!" Listen for his voice.
His fold's world-circling—bounded by the poles.

Now on his finger the symbolic ring
Is placed. His mystic spouse, the Church, he weds.
Ring of the Fisherman! Two thousand years
Are visioned in the lustre which it sheds!

Though noble, as the world esteems man's birth,
His head bows to accept the triple crown,
Prefiguring no splendor vain of earth,
But cares which weigh his humble spirit down.

He stands alone for Peace, where monarchs war,
His gentle Model, One heart-rent at strife.
"My peace be unto you"—the Saviour's words—
The keynote of his will, his work, his life.

Fisher of men, as Peter first was sent,
Heav'n grant his bark o'er troublous seas may bring,
Through mystic-net of prayer, high aims, sage deeds,
A worthy fare of souls to Christ, his King!

OSBORN TO RESIGN AS STATE CHAIRMAN

Democratic Leader Said to Feel That Wilson's Men Have Hampered Him.

WANTED TAMMANY TRUCE

President's Agents Have Thwarted His Efforts to Bring About Harmony, Chairman's Friends Say.

William Church Osborn, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee announced yesterday that he would resign on Primary Day and that he would not consent to serve again in the same capacity. Mr. Osborn has been Democratic State Chairman since February. He said that the task he assumed when he took office would be completed, when the primary ballots were counted.

Mr. Osborn asserted that, according to his conception, a State Chairman under the present political system was an arbiter named to see that the direct primaries were conducted fairly. The designations filed by candidates in the primaries he said, showed two or three candidates for almost every nomination. The Democratic voters therefore would be handicapped by an embarrassment of riches.

According to persons who have talked with him, Mr. Osborn has made no secret of the fact that he has found his place as head of the Democratic State Committee a thankless task. It was said yesterday that Mr. Osborn felt he had been hampered in his efforts to build up and strengthen the Democratic organization in this State so as to make it an effective factor in the State and Congressional elections this Fall by the attitude of the Wilson Administration.

Not only has Mr. Osborn, it was said, been deprived of all support from that quarter, but he has even been singled out as a target for attack by some Democrats who say they have the President's backing and represent the Administration in Washington.

One incident mentioned by Mr. Osborn's friends involves Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is an anti-Murphy candidate for United States Senator in the Democratic primaries. While the Democratic conference was in progress at Saratoga, Mr. Roosevelt, who was at Eastport, Me., sent a telegram to Mr. Osborn which he urged Mr. Osborn to submit to the conference. This message was sent while there were reports that Tammany would oppose any indorsement of President Wilson and his Administration in the Democratic State platform. In his message Mr. Roosevelt voiced the opinion that "Murphy in opposing the indorsement of Wilson had showed himself unfit even to be a ward leader."

By the time the Roosevelt message reached Mr. Osborn a generous indorsement of President Wilson, his policies, and his Administration had been written into the platform with the cordial assent of Tammany Leader Murphy's spokesmen on the Platform Committee. Mr. Osborn did not submit Mr. Roosevelt's message to the conference therefore, and he informed Mr. Roosevelt of this in a telegram in which he said that he was prompted to withhold the message by a feeling that it had been written by Mr. Roosevelt under a misapprehension.

A week later Mr. Osborn found not only the Roosevelt telegram, but his own reply published in a Dutchess County publication which is under control friendly to Mr. Roosevelt. Coupled with the publication of the missives was a bitter attack on Mr. Osborn, who was accused of suppressing the Roosevelt telegram in order to "save Murphy's skin."

Mr. Osborne is said to believe that the struggle between the organization and the anti-organization element in the Democratic organization is bound to increase in bitterness, and that the anti-Murphy Democrats, if they are defeated in the primaries, will bend every effort toward defeating the Democratic candidates at the polls. Some time ago Chairman Osborn and William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, foreseeing this urged President Wilson to adopt a conciliatory policy, until after election at least. To this plea Mr. Osborn received only an acknowledgment that his communication had been received at the White House. Later came the more direct answer in the form of the rival candidacies of John A. Hennessy and Franklin D. Roosevelt and the selection of Secretary of the Treasury William G McAdoo as the dispenser of Federal patronage in this State.

"The Democratic Party has a very good platform and has made important progress in initiating department reforms," said Mr. Osborn. "The party has been lifted out of the realm of personal politics and scandals and has been set in the path of larger constructive policies."

Charles E. Treman of Ithaca, who was State Superintendent of Public Works in the Dix administration, and George E. Van Kennen of Ogdensburg, head of the Conservation Commission, were mentioned last night as possible successors to Mr. Osborn.

"When will you call the State Committee together to choose your successor?" Mr. Osborn was asked.

"As soon after the primaries as the Lord and my stenographer will permit," said Mr. Osborn with a laugh.

MAIL COSTS CONWAY'S PLACE

Petition Received Too Late to Put Him on Primary Ballot.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Because it was registered instead of being sent by special delivery, the letter which contained 640 signatures for former Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Conway of Plattsburg was not received in time to put his name on the Democratic primary ballot for delegate at large to the Constitutional Convention.

Walter J. Rathbone of 1,482 Broadway, New York, filed a protest with the Secretary of State to the receipt of the petition of Frederick M. Davenport as the Progressive candidate for Governor, alleging that it was not signed by enrolled Progressives, but by voters of other parties, and that the signatures were "obtained by fraud, bribery, and deceit."

Jeremiah D. Toomey of Westchester, Progressive candidate for Secretary of State, filed a declination today.

White, in Jail, Runs for Congress.

Bouck White, the minister who is serving a sentence of six moths for creating a disturbance in the Calvary Baptist Church, sent out a formal announcement yesterday of his independent candidacy for election to Congress from the Thirteenth Manhattan District. His attorney, Solomon Fieldman, has filed his nomination petition with the Bureau of Elections. White will not be released from the Queens County Jail until Nov. 12.

Ex-Senator Patterson Wins.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 9.—Incomplete returns today indicate that ex-Senator Thomas M. Patterson was selected as Democratic candidate for Governor in yesterday's primary, defeating Barnette T. Napier. The Republican nomination was still in doubt.

Senator Dillingham Renominated.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 9.—State Highway Commissioner Charles W. Gates was nominated for Governor by the Republicans at the State Convention today on the second ballot. W. P. Dillingham was renominated for United States Senator without opposition.

GET NEW SEAMEN FOR THE RED CROSS

War Relief Liner Will Probably Not Be Able to Sail Until Saturday.

American Ambulance Hospital in Paris to Get Nearly $30,000—British Women Unite.

The American Red Cross relief steamship Red Cross, which was prevented from sailing on Tuesday because of the discovery that among the crew were many German seamen and stewards, some of whom were members of the German Naval Reserve, will not depart today, as the Red Cross officials had hoped, and it is likely that it will be Saturday before the big white liner gets under way.

The Germans of the old crew have all been discharged, and yesterday every shipping agency along the waterfront, both in New York and in New Jersey, was engaged in the work of filling the places of the discharged men with seamen and stewards of American or other neutral citizenship. There were plenty of candidates for the vacancies, but only reliable and trustworthy men are being taken, and so another day will be required. In order that there might be no more hitches at the last moment to embarrass the Red Cross management, Capt. Armistead Rust, U. S. N., retired, who commands the Red Cross, went to Washington to get all questions of an international nature connected with the voyage of the ship settled once and for all. He is expected to rejoin the ship this morning.

Capt. Rust, in giving instructions for engaging men to supplant the Germans, said that he wanted men with deep-sea papers, who were familiar with large ocean-going passenger vessels, and who, above all else, could be depended upon in an emergency. Capt. Rust said he considered it his duty to see to it that when the Red Cross sailed out of New York Harbor she was as efficiently manned as she was when she was running in the transatlantic trade.

The fund being raised by the New York branch of the Red Cross for the Red Cross National European Fund passed the $100,000 mark yesterday. This announcement was made late in the afternoon at the Red Cross offices, 130 East Twenty-second Street, when the list of the day's subscription was made public by Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer. The total amount received yesterday was $8,989.37, which brings the grand total up to $101,675.74. The new subscriptions acknowledged were:

Fifty British men and women answered the call of Mrs. Maude L. Muir and met at the British Imperial Club, 108 East Thirtieth Street, yesterday. As a result of the meeting a committee was formed to collect money and clothing for the relief of British war sufferers. It was stated that benefits, recitals, and entertainments would be given to aid in increasing the fund. The committee will also endeavor to send one doctor and six nurses to the front with the British forces.

As a contribution to the war relief fund of the American Red Cross a $65 check from the members of the Alfred L. Simon & Co. Mutual Benefit Association has been received by THE TIMES.

$8,478 FOR BELGIAN RELIEF.

Committee Issues Another Appeal for American Help.

More than $1,600 was added yesterday to the relief fund for Belgian non-combatants, and the fund now totals $8,478. The committee, of which Henry W. de Forest is Chairman, issued a statement, in which all Americans are asked to contribute.

"We seek only," the committee says, "to bring forcefully to attention that Belgium, mindful of her obligation to observe strict neutrality, is today in a state of immeasurable destitution and misery, and to ask your co-operation in relief.

"Prosperous Belgian cities have been practically destroyed. Belgium's industries have been paralyzed, hundreds if not thousands of her wage earners have been killed, many thousand homes have been obliterated, and unnumbered wives and children have been made utterly destitute. It would scracely be possible to exaggerate the calamity which with overwhelming suddenness has fallen upon this peaceful, thrifty, self-reliant people. America, comparatively unharmed by this world catastrophe, certainly will not ignore the appeal of the Belgian non-combatants for relief."

MRS. ROCKEFELLER IS 75.

John D. Has a Brass Band Play on Lawn on Her Birthday.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 9.—These are days of celebration at the Rockefeller home in Pocantico Hills. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller observed their golden wedding anniversary, and today Mrs. Rockefeller was seventy-five years old. Mr. Rockefeller gave her a surprise. He engaged a brass band from New York to come out to Pocantico Hills to give a concert on the lawn. As Mrs. Rockefeller was carried out on the porch by two attendants the band struck up Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

She was completely surprised. She stood on the porch during four selections and then had to retire to the house, as she is in very poor health. Mr. Rockefeller was as tickled as a boy over the surprise.

At 1 o'clock dinner was served and a birthday cake of special design and containing seventy-five lighted candles stood in the centre of the table. All the children and grandchildren were present. Mrs. Rockefeller bore up well until after the dinner, when she had to retire. She received many beautiful presents, and the house was decorated with her favorite flower.

Glaenzer, married Miss Anita Gibson, a daughter of Rear Admiral Gibson, and he has a younger brother, G. Brette Glaenzer.

Miss Adams made her début in last December at a large theatre party followed by a supper and dancing at Sherry's. She has a younger brother, Robert J. Adams. No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

Mr. Glaenzer was in France at the time war was declared and arrived here on Aug. 20. Miss Adams is with her parents at Prescourt, Greenwich, Conn.

MISS GAYNOR'S WEDDING.

Daughter of Late Mayor and E. T. Bedford, 2d, to Wed on Sept. 16.

Miss Helen Deborah Gaynor, daughter of the late Mayor Gaynor, and Edward Thomas Bedford, 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bedford of Brooklyn, visited the Municipal Building yesterday and took out a marriage license. They will be married on Wednesday, Sept. 16, at the Gaynor Summer home, St. James, L. I., by the Rev. John Holden, who will be assisted by the Rev. Frank Page of Fairfax, Va., whose daughter, Miss Elizabeth Page, married Norman Gaynor last April.

Mr. Bedford gave his age as twenty-six, and said he was a manufacturer. Miss Gaynor said she was nineteen. Deputy City Clerk Frank J. Goodwin telephoned to the Brooklyn Bureau and got a license number so that the young couple would not have to go to the Borough Hall, Brooklyn.

Mr. Bedford is the grandson of Edward Thomas Bedford, who is head of several of the largest manufacturing concerns in this country. The Bedford residence in Clinton Avenue is one of the handsomest in Brooklyn. Miss Gaynor's married sisters are Mrs. Harry K. Vingut, Mrs. William Seward Webb, Jr., and Mrs. Ralph H. Isham. Their engagement was announced last February.

The wedding of Miss Frances Louisa Marks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Edwin Marks of Riverside, Conn., and the Rev. Harold Baxter Liebler, rector of St. Matthias's Episcopal Church in Waukesha, Wis., will take place this morning in St. Paul's Church, Riverside. The Rev. Bishop Webb of Milwaukee will perform the ceremony, and will be assisted by the Rev. Charles E. Marks, uncle of the bride; Rev. L. C. Rich, rector of Corpus Christi Church, this city, and the Rev. Charles Boyleston, rector of St. Paul's.

Miss Grace Marks is to be her sister's only attendant. Frederick Barnes is to be best man.

Horace Irving	Julian L'Estrange

From the Hungarian of Arpad Pasztor, George Broadhurst, the author of many plays of many sorts, has written a tragedy and called it "Innocent." It came last evening to the Eltinge Theatre. It has a big if by no means an exalted theme, and it holds the interest measurably and with increasing success, because it tells a story. But the story and the theme make only the faintest impression because the people of the play are not real people, and they speak as real people never spoke since the world began.

"Innocent" is a dramatization of the sins of the father in their visitation. A girl of radiant beauty is, from her cradle and by the very lives and qualities of her father and mother, destined to meretriciousness. The man to whose care she is intrusted at her father's death is a man of good intention, but one weak in the face of all temptation. From the day of their meeting his destruction is written in the books. Lest the audiences trained by the enormously successful melodramas which the Eltinge has sheltered since its opening two years ago and by such plays as Mr. Broadhurst himself has written in "Bought and Pair For," should look forward to a happy ending achieved at whatever cost, he lets it be understood from the start that there is to be no escape.

The destruction, the suicide, of the man is staged in the prologue, and what follows is what had gone before. It must be for this purpose of pointing the nature of his play and conjuring up the presence of Fate that Mr. Broadhurst has used a device which for an entirely different reason appealed to Edward Sheldon when he came to write "Romance."

And if the playgoer at the Eltinge is never greatly concerned whether in the end the man is to meet destruction it is not because the word has gone forth at the beginning, but because the man himself and all the other persons of the play are not real for a moment. They bear no more semblance to human beings than the characters in some of the old moralities. For the most part they are not characters at all, but characteristics which people the scenes of "Innocent."

Innocent herself is Meretriciousness or Temptation, as you read the moral. Her guardian and lover, who falls before her seductions, is not complex of qualities, good, bad, and indifferent. He is just Weakness. And the seducer, a rôle assigned to the gifted Mr. Probert, is no human seducer, but the common factor of all the men of his sort that have ever trod the boards. This is so conspicuous in places that there were moments last evening when the house shook with laughter at speeches which one suspects neither Mr. Broadhurst nor Mr. Probert had intended should be amusing. Mr. Lewis plays Suavity, and Mr. L'Estrange is a familiar figure as Good Advice.

This curious effect is not produced by the players, and it is not easy to see just how they could have lessened it. It is produced by the ruthless singleness of Mr. Broadhurst's purpose and the nature of the lines he has put on the lips of the persons in "Innocent." They are apt to talk in abstractions and rather more floridly than people ever do.

The effect of unreality is emphasized by the play's liberal intermingling of matter-of-fact dialogue and the shift of the scene from Manchuria to Hungary. Speeches that fit in more easily among the flowers of distant Mukden come strangely to the ear over the white shirt fronts and under the electric lights of Budapest. In the course of one act the members of the audience attune their ears to such a casual utterance as this from the lips of Miss Frederick:

"It came into my mind as love comes on a Summer eve."

And so it is jolting to hear the same lips shift later to a conversation involving such a sentiment as:

"Pay the girl and get a receipt."

It is this uneven pace which makes it difficult for the audience to adjust its mood to Mr. Broadhurst's unquestionably serious intentions and makes none too easy the task of the players. It doubtless explains why they shift often from matter-of-fact tones to declamation and why from time to time they actually feel driven to intone. Miss Frederick, herself, Mr. Miltern and Mr. Kirkland acquit themselves honorably, but each of them must feel that "Innocent" is largely, if not consistently, fabulous.

Tottering, and even staggering at times, under the weight of a dreadfully poor and disconnected book, but bubbling over with youth and high spirits and pretty girls, "Miss Daisy" made its appearance at the Shubert Theatre last night under the chaperonage of Philip Bartholomae, who was also responsible for the play. An exceedingly friendly audience received the new piece, which, although described on the bills as a play in three acts with music, is in reality nothing but a very Summery musical comedy, lacking just one good "punch" somewhere to make it a genuine success.

Silvio Hein wrote the music. Mr. Hein did better than Mr. Bartholomae, and although he was in a very reminiscent mood when he composed the score, his memory harked back to some very pretty tunes. As is customary with all of the plays produced by Mr. Bartholomae, the keynote of the whole affair was youth, and there perhaps was the one chief fault of the entertainment, always excepting, of course, the book. An actor or two of weight and established ability would have worked wonders in the cast and made more attractive the work of the young men and young women who danced very prettily and sang very sweetly.

There are several novelties in the piece, but after inventing them Mr. Bartholomae was somewhat at a loss what to do with them, with the result that the things which stood out above the rest of the show seemed to be simply pitchforked into the performance without rhyme or reason. In the first act a girl comes home with a lot of young women friends from a ball, retires, and then dreams about the good time she had at the dance. The dream is shown on the stage, and the dream-guests at the ball all make their entrances from out of the orchestra pit.

In the second act there is a song with a shadow effect, which is new and pleasing, and there are really delightful spots throughout the entire performance, but somewhere, somehow "Miss Daisy" just misses being really good and consistently entertaining.

If the piece did nothing else, however, it established the reputations of some young women heretofore not intimately known to Broadway. Florence Mackie, as Daisy; Helen Lee, Gwennilyan Jocely, who was big enough to carry her name without trouble, and who was most charming; Elsie Hitz, Mollie Chrysty, and Gladys Zell all scored, and Rae Bowdin played a comedy housemaid most successfully. The men, all of them young and good looking, did almost as well. Late in the evening Mae Murray, well known as a ballroom dancer, appeared and executed a solo dance which was not exactly in line with the work she is best fitted for.

FIRE IN TWILIGHT INN.

Bucket Brigade Fights Blaze at Famous Catskill Resort.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The guests of Twilight Inn, the largest clubhouse in Twilight Park, were thrown into a panic this afternoon when a fire, caused by crossed electric wires, started in the upper part of the house. For some time the fire threatened to destroy the house.

There is no fire department at Haines Falls, and the cottages and inns are dependent on their own water supply, which is stored in large tanks. The cottagers, the guests of the hotels, and the people of Haines Falls were therefore compelled to fight the fire themselves. A volunteer bucket brigade was started, and, after an hour of hard work, finally had the fire under control. It had eaten its way through the roof. The house, which had a capacity of 250 guests, was filled. The flames did not reach the visitors' rooms. The damage by water, however, will reach several thousand dollars. The guests who were registered included many prominent New Yorkers, who are being entertained tonight at the other inn.

AUTHOR GETS INJUNCTION.

L. E. Miller Stops Adler from Continuing His Play, "The Informer."

Judge Lacombe granted yesterday in the Federal District Court an injunction restraining Jacob P. Adler, actor and theatrical manager, from producing during the pendency of a suit for breach of lease a play entitled "Der Mosser," or "The Informer." The injunction was granted on the application of the author, Louis E. Miller.

In his complaint Mr. Miller stated that in an agreement he had made on Jan. 20 to lease the play to Mr. Adler it was stipulated that it should be produced "word by word and line by line." It was produced first at the Dewey Theatre in March, and the plaintiff asserted that it proved to be "the greatest and most sensational success in the history of the Jewish stage."

Since then, however, in order to save expense, Mr. Miller complained, Mr. Adler had cut out certain scenes, thereby destroying the artistic harmony of the play and imposing an irreparable loss on his literary and professional standing.

Mr. Miller further alleged that Mr. Adler still owed him some of the royalties agreed upon, and had been continuing to play "Der Mosser" at the People's Theatre without authority, despite the fact that the term of the lease had expired.

SOCIALIST POET ON STAGE.

Jane Burr Is the Daughter of Leopold Guggenheim of St. Louis.

Behind the announcement from the offices of Selwyn & Co., the theatrical managers, that a Miss Jane Burr has been engaged for the cast of Owen Johnson's play, "The Salamander," lies the fact that a daughter of the Guggenheim family is about to take up the stage as a profession, for Jane Burr in private life is Mrs. Horace G. Winslow, formerly Miss Rosalind Guggenheim, daughter of Leopold Guggenheim of St. Louis.

Mrs. Winslow, who is the divorced wife of Jack Punch, a St. Louis manufacturer, and the present wife of Horatio G. Winslow, editor of The Masses, a Socialistic publication, came to New York from St. Louis a year ago to devote herself to poetry and sociology. Since then she has devoted herself to writing, mainly for Socialist papers.

"My family struggled for years to get me contented with money, clothes, and society," said Mrs. Winslow.

"They always rebelled against my way of looking at life. I ran away. I went to Europe and remained a year. I absorbed plenty of socialism over there. I saw it. I breathed it and I lived it.

"My husband does not object to my going on the stage, therefore I'm doing what I'd rather do than any other thing on earth. Maybe I won't like it, but that remains to be seen. I'd like to make up as the ugliest woman in the world, because I know that I have more talent for character acting than for being just a society person."

TEST STREET DECORATION.

Device Requires No Special Poles or Digging Up of Pavement.

Persons in Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-first and Fifty-third Streets, last night were interested in a string of lights the length of the two blocks, strung by the Tercentenary Commission to test a new decorative system that may be used in the celebration next month.

About 1,000 eight-candle bulbs were in use and, at intervals of about ten feet, pennants of orange, white and blue, were suspended.

A feature of the plan is that it requires no special poles or street digging. Slender poles are attached to the regular light poles and from them a wire is stretched.

CITY BREVITIES.

Thomas Burns, four years old, was run over and killed yesterday afternoon by a team and wagon in front of his home at 33 Lewis Street. Samuel Gordon of 57 Hester Street, the driver of the team, who, the police say, attempted to escape after the accident, was arrested and charged with homicide.

Pending the erection of a building for the new Twelfth District Magistrates' Court, the sessions of the court, beginning Oct. 1, will be held in the building in 121st Street, west of Third Avenue, where the Fifth District Court of Harlem now sits. The new building will be in Washington Heights.

Walker Reisinger, nineteen years old, of 993 Fifth Avenue, who said he was a student at Yale University, was fined $100 in the West Farms Police Court yesterday for speeding in an automobile in Pelham Parkway. It was testified that he had been arrested for the same offense five times in the last fourteen months.

Despondent because his savings of $300 had, as he thought, been lost in the closing of the Max Kobre banks, Jacob Barea, thirty-one years old, of 219 Madison Street, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling gas at his home.

Richard McNamara, twenty-five years old, who escaped from the State Hospital for the Insane at Central Islip, L. I., on Tuesday, was found yesterday by Patrolman Gray trying to climb a pillar of the elevated at Broadway and Whipple Street, Williamsburg. The man had walked from the asylum to Williamsburg.

Frank Sombriski, twenty-one years old, of 614 Manhattan Avenue, was arrested early yesterday morning for a burglary committed in the automobile supply factory of Frederick Trautwein at 587 Manhattan Avenue, Williamsburg. According to the police, he had obtained 42 cents from a cash register and was attempting to open a safe containing $3,000 when the barking of dogs frightened him away.

GIANTS LOSE--BOSTON LEADS BY GAME AND A HALF--YANKEES SHUT OUT--TURF--GOLF

SUPERBAS FEAST OFF O'TOOLE'S PITCHING

Fourteen Hits and Nine Runs Brooklyn's Harvest at Polo Grounds.

Somewhat fricasseed by the recent friendly call in Boston, the Giants camped at the Polo Grounds yesterday and took a good sound beating from the Dodgers, with a score of something like 9 to 3. Just why any team should be beaten by the Brooklyns is a question you could argue all night and not get anywhere.

That Boston visit left the Giants low in the mind, and they had about as much enthusiasm for playing yesterday as a rheumatic has for running to catch a car.

When they returned from the Hub, McGraw called the Giants' roll, and no one was missing. Snodgrass lost what little prestige he had left, and Larry Doyle will never be able to live down the crime of calling the Mayor of Boston a "nut." These two players may not be able to play the season out, because if there is any possible way to do it, Mayor Curley is going to have them shot at runrise some morning.

Marty O'Toole was back in fine form—his Pittsburgh form. If Marty keeps on letting teams bruise out fourteen hits per game, he will cost Mr. McGraw as much in regrets as he did Pittsburgh in dollars. The Dodgers smacked Martin here and there and back again. In two innings they mobilized hits in clusters of five. The third and ninth innings saw O'Toole pitching in his favorite Smoky City style.

Big Ed Pfeffer fooled the Giants right along during the game, but, not subtracting any credit from Big Ed, most any pitcher would have been able to fool the Giants yesterday. The morning after that last kind of a visit to Boston has much the same effect as the morning after something else.

The Dodgers got plenty of runs to win in the third inning. Pfeffer singled and was sacrificed by Dalton. Daubert got an infield hit, and when Stengel got a scratch hit Pfeffer scored. Zack Wheat opened up a heavy attack on O'Toole and crashed a triple to deep centre, scoring Daubert and Stengel. Wheat scored on Cutshaw's single.

Another pair of Brooklyn counts were hammered in by Jack Dalton in the sixth, when his single to centre scored Getz and Kid Elberfeld.

The only bright spot in the Giants' efforts came in the fifth inning, when Fred Merkle whacked a home run into the left-field steerage section. In the sixth Burns singled and stole, went to third on Fletcher's out at first, and scored on Dave Robertson's infield hit. The last Giant tally showed itself in the seventh inning. O'Toole got as far as second, when Getz made a bad throw to first after scooping up the red-haired pitcher's grounder. Marty scored on a two-base smash to right by Snodgrass.

The Dodgers waited until the ninth inning to rub the humiliation of defeat in hard. Dalton singled and so did Daubert, both hits being somewhat scratchy. Stengel grounded to Merkle, who forced Dalton at third. Wheat flied to centre. Cutshaw's single, which Fletcher and Doyle got mixed up on back of second, scored Daubert, and a single by Getz sent Stengel home.

Elberfeld then defied old Pop Time and cracked out a single, scoring Cutshaw. The Tobasco Kid was caught hobbling down to second. The score:

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 9.—McQuillan held Chicago to four hits today and Pittsburgh won, 5 to 1. Cheney gave seven bases on balls in five innings. In the fifth inning Corriden's wild throw over the plate with the bases full netted three runs for Pittsburgh and placed Kelly on third. He scored on a single by Viox. Chicago's only run came in the seventh on singles by Zimmerman and Schulte and Sweeney's sacrifice fly. Archer was put out of the game in the third inning for disputing a decision. The score:

LUCKY HOMER TURNS TIDE.

Anderson's Hit Gives Brookfeds 2-to-1 Victory Over Fielder Jones's Team

Anderson's lucky home run in the fifth inning made possible the Brookfeds' 2-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Feds yesterday on their first appearance here since Fielder Jones took up the managerial reins. The game was a pitchers' battle between Tom Seaton and Bob Groom, the former Washington twirler, and would have been an even break except for Anderson's long hit. Under ordinary circumstances this hit would only have been a single, but it took a peculiar bound and went over Drake's head, rolling to the fence.

Before the game Ernest Herbert, one of the St. Louis pitchers, was hit on the head by a batted ball and was taken to the Methodist Episcopal Hospital with what is believed to be a fractured skull. Herbert was pitching in practice to the St. Louis players and Hugh Miller, the team's first baseman, hit a line drive directly at Herbert. The pitcher was unable to dodge, owing to the speed of the hit, and was struck on the head. He fell like he was shot and was still unconscious when carried off the field.

It was reported at the hospital last night that it may be several days before it can be said certainly just how serious are his injuries.

The single run scored by St. Louis was made in the first inning, when Seaton was a trifle wild. Tobin started with a base on balls and was sacrificed to second by Al Bridwell. He scored on Drake's double to centre field. A base on balls to Crandall and a scratch single by Kirby filled the bases, but Miller forced Drake at the plate and Boucher popped up, ending the suspense.

Cooper's single and steal, followed by Hofman's single, gave the Brookfeds a run in their half of the first, which, coupled with Anderson's homer, gave them the game. The score:

NO-HIT GAME FOR YANKEE CAST-OFF

Young Davis Helps to Keep Braves in First Place by Beating Phillies.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 9.—Thanks to the Giants' downfall before Brooklyn and their own ability to split even with the Phillies, the Braves were able to hold their lead in the National League race today. Stallings's club was roundly beaten in the curtain-raiser, but came back strong in the second session, in which, after having previously seen the small end of a 10 to 3 score, the leaders returned with a 7 to 0 victory.

The Phillies broke up the first game by scoring seven runs against Cocreham and Crutcher in the first two innings, but later in the afternoon they were totally unable to do any execution against Boston's youngest boxman, George Davis, formerly at Williams College and now a student at the Harvard Law School. He was at one time with the New York Yankees.

Davis did more than shut the Quakers out. He retired them without the semblance of a base hit, and this without making his fielders do much extraordinary work behind him. Two visitors reached first base on errors by "Red" Smith, the Braves' thirdbaseman, and five others received bases on balls. But no hits were forthcoming. The nearest thing to a single happened in the eighth, when Burns lifted a short fly to right field. The wind bothered Whitted, who came in fast, but who, by superb sprinting and a clever one-hand stab at his shoe-tops, was able to get the ball into his glove.

Davis had one bad scare, however. In the fifth, when Boston was in the lead, 4 to 0, Davis passed Byrne, Paskert and Martin before anybody was out, butg he then settled down, fannin Burns and then getting pinch-hitter Cravath to hit straight to little Maranville and for a double play.

The first game found Cocreham, who did so well at Philadelphia last week, facing the Quakers for the Braves. He was not right, however, leaving the game after a pass and a double had provided the Quakers with a run and two more tickets had filled the bases. Crutcher then was pressed into service, but Paskert landed on him for a double and Martin got a triple on a ball that Moran lost in the sun. The product of all this was five runs, more than enough to win. Then two more hits were put in, with a pass in the second inning, for another brace of runs, and three visitors tallied in the sixth, when the Boston outfield fell down on a high lift by Magee, made with the bases full.

Alexander allowed only two hits until his team had a 10-to-1 lead; then taking things easily. In the first game the Braves were upset by the start made by their opponents, and were not very well together, but later they were in fine fettle behind Davis.

Early in the second game Umpire Quigley, who was behind the plate, was hit on the jaw by a foul tip. He was knocked unconscious, and for a time he was thought to be seriously hurt. He was unable to move for half an hour, but midway through the game appeared on the field and finished out the afternoon on the bases. The scores:

Title for New York Boys.

The intercity amateur baseball championship for the 120-pound division will remain in New York for another year, for at Jasper Oval yesterday the Thomas Jefferson Park team defeated the Boston Y. M. C. A. by a score of 8 to 7, giving them two straight victories in a series that was scheduled for three games. The defeat of the Boston team gives the local champions of the Interpark Baseball League a clean slate for the year, as they did not suffer a single defeat in the many games they played during the tournament season. The William J. Lee Trophy, which goes with the victory, will be put into competition again next year, when New York will visit Boston.

Rallying in the ninth inning, after the Boston youngsters had forged into a two-run lead, the metropolitan titleholders drove in three runs with the assistance of two bases on balls and an error on Boston's part. It was not until the sixth inning that the Jefferson Park team found the offerings of Madden to their liking, and from then until the ninth inning, when a two-base blow by Manfredi with the bases full tied the score and drove Madden from the mound, they found him rather easy. Twice in the seventh they crossed the plate, and again in the eighth they registered a run. Pellegrini succeeded Madden, and it was off him Keogh got the winning hit. The score:

RED SOX CLIMBING, TOO.

Champion Athletics Shut Out in an Eleven-Inning Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Battery and fielding misplays gave Boston the victory in an eleven-inning game with Philadelphia today by 2 to 0. Plank and Ray Collins battled with honors even for ten innings, during which the former fanned eleven batsmen. In the eleventh Murphy muffed Hooper's fly and Scott sacrificed. Speaker beat out a grounder to Barry, Hooper taking third. Plank then purposely passed Lewis, filling the bases. Hoblitzel also drew four balls, forcing in Hooper. After Speaker was retired at the plate on Janvrin's grounder to Baker, a base on balls to Gardner forced in Lewis. Speaker, the entire Philadelphia infield and Strunk figured in sensational plays. PRINCETON'S GOLF TITLE.

Tigers Beat Harvard and Win Championship for First Time.

Defeating Harvard by the narrow margin of one match, Princeton won the intercollegiate team championship over the links of the Garden City Golf Club yesterday for the first time since these contests were inaugurated, nineteen years ago. Princeton won two of the four-ball matches, and three of the singles for a total of five points.

The issue was in doubt throughout the day. Two of the four-ball contests were carried to extra holes, R. M. Baker, Jr., and S. P. Griffitts finding it necessary to go the twenty-first to defeat W. A. Barber, Jr., and William A. Lowrie. In the afternoon, with the matches standing 3 to 2 in favor of Harvard, J. B. Rose, the Princeton Captain, and J. G. Heyburn carried what proved to be the decisive match to the eighteenth green. Summary:

KEEN RACES AT HARTFORD.

New Zell Victorious in Capital City Stakes, Decided in Six Heats.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 9.—Despite the fact that there were only two classes on the card, the third day of the Grand Circuit at Charter Oak Park developed the finest racing and the most exciting finishes thus far. The Capital City Stake, for 2:08 trotters, went to New Zell, but it required six heats to decide a winner. Andrews won easily with New Zell in the first two, but tired in the third, and Atlantic Express came first under the wire, while in the fourth Dickerman's horse in a driving finish just failed by a head to beat out Oakdale. Atlantic Express took the fifth, and New Zell, after resting up for three heats, took the lead in the sixth and won easily when Atlantic Express broke in the stretch, Oakdale being distanced, and New Zell winning first and third money.

The 2:16 pace was won by Zaida in straight heats, both of the first two finishes being very close. The summary:

YANKEES GET TWO HITS OFF BENTLEY

Young Washington Pitcher Shuts Out Chancemen and Proves to be a "Find."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 9.—So successful was Jack Bentley, the Senators' young southpaw, against the Athletics on Monday that Manager Griffith decided to pitch him against the New Yorks today. Bentley repeated his former triumph, holding the visitors to a couple of hits and blanking them handily, 1 to 0.

The work of Bentley these days is the talk of the town. Only one regular hit was New York's portion, and it came in the sixth inning, Leslie Nunamaker's bat producing the swat, a healthy triple to the left-field bleachers. Nunamaker started the inning with this slam, and almost any kind of a hit or an error would have tied the score, but Bentley refused to be rattled, and retired the side almost in order.

Midget Jack Warhop, with his mystifying subway ball, opposed Bentley, and gave a really brilliant exhibition in the face of poor support. He was frequently in holes, but with the exception of one inning pulled himself out of them in clever fashion. Warhop allowed six hits, but the Griffmen huddled half of these into the third chapter, scoring the only run of the game.

Only twenty-eight batters faced Bentley. Not a New Yorker reached first base until the sixth inning, when Nunemaker blasted open the chapter with a three-base hit. Boone fouled to Henry, Warhop popped to Gandil, and Maisel walked. An attempted double steal squashed Nunamaker at the plate, and New York's one opportunity to sew up the game went glimmering.

The other New York hit charged against Bentley was very much of a fluke. Mullin started the eighth by sending up a short fly, the ball landing safely between McBride and Milan, either of whom could have caught the ball had one of them yelled for the other to get out of the way.

Mullin's life was of short duration, for he attempted to steal second on a third called strike against Capt. Peckinpaugh, and was snuffed out.

The Senators missed many chances to score runs for lack of hits, little Warhop putting on the screws when danger threatened, but Bentley led the victorious procession which resulted in a run by slashing a hot one through Mullin for a single. Moeller followed with a swat to centre, Pete Daley fumbling the ball, and putting Bentley on third base. Foster flied to Daley, and Milan unloaded a single to left, scoring the young pitcher. Score:

FORMER CHAMPION LOSES.

Miss Carrington Defeats Mrs. Beard in Jersey Tennis Tourney.

Miss A. Carrington of New Haven showed excellent form in the tennis tournament for the women's championship of New Jersey yesterday on the clay contests of the Morristown Field Club at Morristown, N. J., when she defeated Mrs. C. N. Beard, the former title holder, two sets to one by the score of 4—6, 6—3, 6—2. The match was the feature of the day's play, and furnished many thrills for the big gallery. Mrs. Beard won the first set after a hard contest, but Miss Carrington overwhelmed her in the next two sets, and won the match. The New Haven player was very effective from the back court, and made a number of clever placement shots.

In the women's doubles Mrs. L. D. Murray and Miss A. M. Doyle were forced to the limit to win from Miss Margaret Foote and Miss Anne Bradley in an interesting match. The latter pair won the first set, but could not maintain the pace, and lost the next two after a hard struggle. The summary:

Cornell Football Men Out.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Twenty-five candidates reported for Cornell's first football practice of the season today. Coach Al Sharpe expects the number to increase daily as registration and class work does not begin until two weeks. An important member of the squad is Eddie Hill, star full back in 1912, who was absent from college last year. Art Gilman, Commodore of this year's 'Varsity crew, is a candidate for one of the tackle positions. The coaching staff this year will be the same as in 1913—Dr. Sharpe, Dan Reed, and Ray Van Orman.

COMELY EASY VICTOR IN AUTUMN HANDICAP

Comely's easy victory in the Autumn High-weight Handicap at the Belmont Park track yesterday afternoon went far toward proving the contention of the most competent critics among owners and trainers that the defeats of this sturdy filly in several of her stake engagements have been due to racing accidents and slovenly riding rather than to any fault of her racing qualities. Early in the season she was pronounced by these same critics to be one of the best thoroughbreds of her sex ever foaled, and they have ever since found excuse for her defeats in the fact that she had been badly ridden or a victim of racing interferences that had destroyed her chances in races.

Yesterday she gave sixteen pounds and a beating to such a good three-year-old as Harry Payne Whitney's Forum. The pair had the race between them from the start, getting away together in the centre of the track and running alongside one another to the end. In the fourth and fifth furlongs of the run there was considerable bumping against one another as they ran stride for stride, but in the final furlong the filly was so much the better of the pair that she shook off the Whitney colt and actually romped past the judges with only a hand ride a length and a half in front of Forum. As this was a test at the longest distance a two-year-old is asked to go, and against a horse a year older, it stamps her as a wonderful filly, particularly as at the end of the run she showed no signs of distress, and could apparently have run at least a furlong, and perhaps a quarter of a mile further, had it been necessary. While the time made was anything but remarkable—1:12—the race was nevertheless a good one, for the track was deep, the weather cool, and a stiff wind was blowing in the face of the racers all through the running, all of which prevented fast time being made.

Syosset, Bac, and Montrosa, in their respective races, had hard fights to beat Amalfi, Blue Thistle, and Luxury, in each case by fractions of a length. The beaten horses were all favorites in the speculation, and the finishes therefore made under conditions that kept the witnesses in a constant fever of excitement and uproar.

Striker, away last in his race, beat his field in true race-horse style, for on the far turn he was a half-dozen lengths in the rear of the field, and literally fought his way to victory.

Ballet's success in the steeplechase was easy, as two of the starters threw their riders, and Zellwood, which finished second, was never really a factor in the running. Summary:

McKAY OUT IN THIRD.

Canadian Boxer Takes His Customary Knockout from Reich.

Fred McKay, the Winnepeg giant, spent his customary ten seconds on the convas at the Stadium Athletic Club last night, being knocked out, more by his own exertions than by punches he received, in the third round of the main bout with Al Reich, former amateur heavyweight champion, who has won his last six contests by knockouts.

McKay presaged the usual outcome of every bout in which he is a factor by falling through the ropes in the early part of the third chapter after receiving a light blow on the jaw. It took at least a minute to get him back into action again, but it required Reich only five seconds to drop him for the first of his two falls to the floor of the ring.

The Canadian remained down nine seconds the first time and was in no condition to continue much longer when he arose, so when Reich poked his left into his rival's stomach the ex-policeman dropped again, this time being unable to rise inside the alloted ten seconds. McKay weighed 208¼ pounds, and Reich tipped the beam at 212½.

For the first two rounds the Canadian surpassed himself by attempting to exchange blows with Reich. He could not land effectively, but he tried, and placed several light punches on Reich's head. Reich simply let McKay, who was far from being in condition, fight himself out, and timed his assault so exactly that McKay had no reserve power to check his rushes.

The bout attracted a large crowd to St. Nicholas Rink, and while the main event was not of a high standard, the first ten-round exhibition between Mike Mazie of Staten Island and Johnny Harvery of Harlem made up for the deficiency. For the entire distance Mazie and Harvey fought at top speed, and at the finish neither had a decided advantage. A draw decision would be fair to both.

In the first round Mazie knocked down his opponent for a count of nine, and for the next four rounds had much the better of the boxing. But Harvey's heavy stomach punches wore him down, and in the last rounds the Harlem man discounted the extra points registered by Mazie in the earlier stages. The weights were: Mazie, 141½; Harvey, 137.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS.

Few Killings by Motors in Chicago —Demand for Autos for War.

More persons were killed in Chicago and the rest of Cook County, Ill., by falls in their homes last year than were killed in the streets by motor cars, according to the biennial report of Peter M. Hoffman, the Coroner of that county, which has just been received by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce here. As compared with automobile killings, more persons died of accidental asphyxiation, the report continues; more were killed by street cars, more were drowned, nearly twice as many died of burns and scalds, and nearly three-quarters as many died from falls from wagons and horses.

There is much interest on "Automobile Row" in the taking over of the Mitchell line in New York and Philadelphia by Harry S. Houpt, distributor of the Lozier, which he will continue to represent in the same territory. Under the new arrangement, which was closed by Otis Friend, general sales manager of the Mitchell-Lewis Motor Company, Mr. Houpt will have under his control seventy-five counties in New York, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland, having a population of 15,000,000.

⁂

On his return from Europe John A. Willys, President of the Willys-Overland Company, gave a vivid description of the eagerness of the contending nations for motor cars. He says that there are practically no motor cars operated by private individuals in Europe today. "While I was in London our branch there sold and delivered twenty-two cars to the English War Department to be used for patrolling and defending the coast. Immediately upon receipt of the cars the Territorials chopped off the tonneaus and mounted Maxim guns on the rear of the chasses."

CARMEN 50-MILE CYCLE CHAMPION

Jamaica Pedalist Takes Lead at Start and Is Never Overtaken at Brighton.

Clarence Carmen of Jamaica got an early lead of two laps and was never caught in the fifty-mile motor-paced bicycle championship at the Brighton Beach Motordrome last night. Carmen's victory carries with it the world's championship. This race was to have been run at Stockholm, but was transferred to Brighton Beach because of the war, and all the foreign motor-paced riders are in this country.

Carmen's only real opponent was Bobby Walthour, the "Dixie Flier," who made a game effort to catch him toward the end, but failed. He took second place, with the veteran, Jimmy Moran third. The time was 1 hour 5 minutes 23 1-5 seconds, which is about three minutes slower than the world's record, made by Walthour in the second heat of the race last Wednesday.

Carmen set a terrific pace from the start and had secured a lap on all the riders except Walthour inside of five miles. Four riders started—Carmen, Walthour, Moran, and George Wiley, the American champion. Vincenzo Madonna and Menus Bedell had qualified for the final heat, but motor trouble prevented them from starting on time, and they were declared out of the race. Wiley was forced to drop out in the ninth mile when the chain of his motorcycle broke, leaving only Carmen, Walthour, and Moran.

Carmen did not succeed in lapping Walthour until the eighth mile. He continued to maintain his heartbreaking pace after this and lapped Walthour again in the fifteenth mile. Walthour started a spurt in the thirty-fifth mile, but lost his pace and Carmen got another lap on him.

Walthour kept up his sprint, however, and gained back one of the laps, and was going well when he lost his pacemaker again. A short time later both Moran's and Walthour's motors "went bad," and made it a runaway race for the Long Islander, who finished four laps in the lead.

Arthur Chapple made an unsuccessful attempt to break the track motorcycle record for a mile. He did the mile in 44 4-5 seconds. The record is 37 1-5 seconds.

Chapple won the six-mile handicap, in which he gave Pete Cronin, Bert Sayer, and John Ungerland each two laps.

R. B. Smith of the Empire City Wheelmen won the feature amateur event of the night, the two-thirds-mile handicap. Smith started with a handicap of 80 yards. He rode a pretty race and had a couple of yards to spare at the finish. Gus Wohlrab of Jersey City won the unknown distance race, which was allowed to go only two-thirds of a mile. All the riders were bunched when the bell announcing the final lap as rung, and it was a wild sprint to the finish line.

Six thousand persons saw the races, which were the last events to be held in the evening this season.

WORLD'S CYCLE RECORD.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 9.—Winning his heat of the one-third mile handicap from scratch, Donald McDougall of the New York Athletic Club, former amateur champion cyclist, broke the world's record for the distance, held by himself, by four-fifths of a second, when he was timed in 36 1-5 seconds at the Newark Velodrome tonight. The new mark is a world's record not only for amateur, but for professional competition as well.

In the final neither McDougall nor Harry Kaiser, the scratch men, were able to get around the other starters with the handicaps, the winner being F. Drobach, who had thirty-five yards.

Oscar Egg of Switzerland, who holds the world's unpaced record for one hour, made his first appearance in this country in an Australian pursuit race against Alfred Grenda. The latter proved superior to Egg and caught him after traveling 2 5-6 miles. The time was 6:13 3-5.

Caesar Moretti, the Italian cyclist, secured revenge in a re-running of the world's sprint derby by defeating champion Frank L. Kramer and Alfred Goullet in his heat. Moretti nosed out the title holder by a close margin at the tape. In the final of the race, however, Robert Spears of Australia showed the best form and beat both Moretti and Walter Rutt, who had also qualified, in the order named. The last eighth of a mile was timed in 11 4-5 seconds.

NEW YORK ATHLETES LOSE.

Kiviat and Sheppard Outrun in Races at New England Fair.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 9.—Abel Kiviat and Melvin Sheppard were defeated tonight at the fourth annual electric light athletic meet of the New England fair, held at Greendale, the latter failing to make any kind of a showing, while the former managed to land second place in his event. The 100-yard dash was taken by Howard Drew, the negro short-distance runner, who, wearing the University of California colors, easily outclassed a field of thirty-five contestants.

Halfenstine of the Brookline Gym, with a small handicap, took the 440-yard event, Melvin Sheppard, scratch man, failing to overcome the high-class field of runners and crossing the line about tenth. James Powers of the Boston A. A., one of New England's best sprinters, was the only other star besides Drew that won his event, the Bostonian taking the 880-yard run in the good time of 2:06 2-5.

The former Brown University runner, Norman Taber, wearing the Boston A. A. colors, with a twenty-yard handicap, defeated a large field in the mile race, covering the eight laps in the excellent time of 4:35 1-5, while Kiviat of New York, scratch man, crossed the tape several lengths behind and landed second place, with Doney of Brookline close on his heels for third.

Johnstone, the former Worcester Academy and Dartmouth jumper, with one inch handicap defeated Barwise of the Boston Athletic Association, scratch man, by clearing the cross piece at a height of 5 feet 11 inches.

Patrick McDonald of the Irish-American A. C. of New York, slated as scratch man in the 16-pound shot event, failed to appear, and this number on the programme was easily taken by Frank Williamson of Worcester with a distance of 46 feet 10 inches to his credit.

Yamada Gets Out of Germany.

Koji Yamada, the Japanese billiard player, after four weeks of effort, has been able to get out of Germany, and is now on his way to this country on the Potsdam, which sailed from Rotterdam on Sept. 7. Yamada was in Berlin, participating in a billiard tournament, when war was declared. At that time he was leading in the contest for the championship of Europe. For the last few weeks Yamada has been unable to communicate with his friends here, and it was through the offices of the Japanese Counsel General in this city, Takashi Nakamura, that he was finally located. Yamada will have two weeks' practice here before the opening games of the Champion Billiard Players' League early in October.

Cockran Wins Twice with Cue.

Welker Cockran of Chicago contested in two games of 14.1 balk-line billiards yesterday at Doyle's, where he is playing exhibitions, and won both matches. In the afternoon the Chicagoan's opponent was Cyril Sloan, a youth of Cockran's age, but the latter had little trouble in defeating him in sixteen innings by the score of 200 to 34. Cockran won in the evening, in his match with Paul Anthony, without being forced to extend himself, by the score of 200 to 45.

Tie in Preliminary Shoots.

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 9.—With scores of 96 out of a possible 100, C. F. Riffle of Kenova, West Va., and A. R. Chezik of Portal, N. D., tied for first honors in the preliminary event of the Grand American handicap shoot here today. A shoot-off to determine the winner will be held tomorrow. C. E. Demitt of Morrow, Ohio, and H. E. Wiedbusch of Fairmont, West Va., also tied for second place with marks of 95. F. M. Mellus of Los Angeles, Cal.; M. H. Williams of Bremerton, Wash.; Joseph Grey of Farber, Mo.; J. A. Blunt of Greensboro, Ala.; C. B. Homer of Krebs, Okla., and J. D. Platt, Jr., of Dayton broke 94 targets each.

Amateur Boxing at N. Y. A. C.

Entry blanks are now ready for the amateur boxing tournament to be held under the auspices of the New York Athletic Club at their city clubhouse, Fifty-ninth Street and Eighth Avenue, on Oct. 8 and 10, and one on Oct. 22 and 24, 1914. The prizes for these tournaments will be the best ever given for any amateur tournament held in this district. The weights for Oct. 8 and 10 will be 108, 115, 125, and 135 pound classes; for Oct. 22 and 24, 110, 120, 130, and 140 pound class. Entry blanks and other information can be had from M. P. Halpin, Chairman Athletic Committee, New York Athletic Club.

Crack Athletes Off for Baltimore.

Over 120 athletes of championship calibre will leave here early this afternoon for Baltimore, where the thirty-eighth annual track and field championships of America will be held in connection with the National Star-Spangled Banner Centennial on Friday and Saturday. About 20 of the metropolitan district officials will also make the trip.

A more representative entry was never received for a national outdoor championship. The New York Athletic Club leads in the number of entries with 78. The Irish-American A. C. is second with 70; Boston, 56; Chicago, 44; Philadelphia, 33; Baltimore, 20; New Orleans, 6; St. Louis, 6; Cleveland, 5, and Omaha, 1. This list includes all of the best athletes east of the Mississippi.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Widespread Support for New York City Financing Plan —Payment of Our Debts Abroad.

Highly gratifying results are attending the invitation extended to the banks throughout the city to participate in the financing of the city's obligations. The entire amount of the proposed loan has already been provided, for the practical unanimous assent of the banks so far heard from indicate very clearly appreciation on their part of the favorable influence to be exerted by the signal success of this important financial undertaking. Although it is entirely independent of the proposals to form a country-wide syndicate of banks to provide a fund of $150,000,000 for use in the exchange market, this city plan affords a similar measure of relief, for it gives assurance that all of the city's obligations abroad will be promptly paid in funds acceptable to those holding the city's debt.

Another conference is to be held today between the Secretary of the Treasury and bankers, and it was expected yesterday that something practical would come of the proposal which was lately laid before the Federal Reserve Board. Meanwhile reference in Washington dispatches to negotiations with the Bank of England, the result of which is awaited by the Federal Reserve Board, are understood to have to do with the plan proposed two weeks ago looking to the establishment of a fund partly in gold and partly in bank obligations to be used in settlement of our obligations to Europe as they mature from time to time.

The two proposals are closely related, but not necessarily dependent one upon the other. The feeling yesterday was that, with the paying off of the New York City obligations on the other side already definitely assured, and with at least two suggestions under consideration for the handling of the balance of our obligations on the other side, the whole matter of international exchanges between this country and Europe was in a fair way toward satisfactory settlement. Sterling exchange rates were higher yesterday, however, because of the quick absorption of the supply of exchange which had been coming into the market the last few days, and the sale of which had carried the price of demand sterling from $5.06 down close to $4.96. Sterling cables sold yesterday as high as $5, and closed probably a cent under that price.

Within the last couple of days there has been some marking up of standing loans by the banks, but there has been no general advance in rates. Many banking institutions would be glad to have the amount of their Stock Exchange loans reduced, and some feel that this could be done quite readily, particularly in cases in which brokerage houses are carrying unusually large balances with the banks. Such a reduction of loans would have the effect of decreasing reserve requirements, making it just so much easier for the banks to handle the cash demands of the present time, including such contributions as they may have to make to the gold fund out of which to make payments abroad to what extent may be necessary.

A good deal of attention was given to the conference which a committee of railroad Presidents had with President Wilson on the present needs of the railways. It is believed that the occasion is opportune for putting the railways in a better position to meet the specific problems raised by the war situation, and at the same time to strengthen their position generally to a sufficient extent to facilitate the financing which they will have to do later.

I. A. SHEPPARD & CO. FAILS.

Receiver Appointed for Big Philadelphia Concern—Could Not Collect Debts.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—The United States District Court appointed a receiver today for Isaac A. Sheppard & Co., manufacturers of heaters and steam boilers. The assets are placed at $1,000,000, and the liabilities at $500,000. The failure, it was stated, was due to the inability of the company to collect outstanding bills because of financial conditions brought about by the European war.

The company, which was established fifty-four years ago, has plants in various parts of the country.

Stock Exchange Governors Meet.

The first meeting of the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange after the Summer recess was held yesterday, and aroused a great deal of interest in the financial district owing to speculation over possible action looking to the reopening of the Exchange. The meeting lasted only seven minutes, and only routine matters were considered. It was said afterward that the special committee named to act for the board during the suspension of trading had made no recommendations, and that no time was spent in discussing the possibilities of an early resumption of business.

Morgan and Schiff to Washington.

At the request of the committee of bankers headed by James B. Forgan of Chicago and appointed at the conference of bankers with the Federal Reserve Board last Friday J. P. Morgan and Jacob H. Schiff left last night for Washington, where they will meet the committee today. It was proposed at the Washington conference that the foreign exchange difficulties of this country be met by the formation of a gold pool, subscribers to which would raise $150,000,000 for the payment of American obligations abroad.

STEEL MARKET FALLS OFF.

Export Trade Does Not Take Up Losses in Domestic Field.

The Iron Age says today:

The falling off in new business at home has been more marked in September, and export trade does not develop fast enough to make up the loss. Sentiment is not as hopeful as it was ten days ago. There is more tendency to the view that a quiet market is to be looked for during the remainder of the year.

Inquiries for export continue, and England is asking for billets, sheet bars, wire rods, and skelp to replace semi-finished steel that has been coming from Germany; but sales are not heavy, and the Steel Corporation is making the most of them.

An agitation has begun for British duties on steel imports. Should they come there is the possibility of American makers having to absorb them in part, as British production would be stimulated and competition increased.

The Iron Trade Review says:

The enlarged field for export trade in American steel products presented as the result of the realignment of European sources of supply still is developing substantial results very slowly. The inquiry from abroad remains good, and in different directions policies are being shaped which eventually will redound to the benefit of the domestic manufacturers, but the uncertainty over foreign exchange and credits remain a deterrent factor. Some foreign orders continue to be booked, but the total of these has not been heavy proportionately. On the side of domestic trade conditions are quieter. New business apparently is being held back by the financial situation.

NORFOLK & WESTERN GAINS.

Operating Revenues Show an Increase of $730,000 Over 1913.

The Norfolk & Western Railway reports for the fiscal year ended June 30 last gross operating revenues of $44,470,000, which is an increase of $730,000, or 1.6 per cent. over 1913. At the same time, operating costs increased $1,370,000, or 4.8 per cent., making the net revenue of $14,534,000 show a decrease from the preceding year of $639,000, or 4.2 per cent. The net income for dividends was $10,268,000, of which $920,000 was paid on the adjustment preferred stock and $6,240,000 on the common.

President Johnson announces that the work of electrifying the line between Bluefield and Vivian, W. Va., a distance of thirty miles, has made satisfactory progress and will be completed for operation in January, 1915. Regarding the rate application, he says that believing that the company's application was right and reasonable, the commission's decision was a disappointment. It cost the Norfolk & Western $30,000 for printing alone in making up the new tariffs, and the annual revenue increase expected to be derived from the changes allowed will add only about $65,000 a year to revenues.

WIRELESS 'PHONES FOR UNION PACIFIC

Railroad Ready to Install Complete System for Line and Overland Trains.

WILL HAVE 100-MILE RADIUS

Dr. Millener Tells of New Apparatus—Trains Always Under Control of Dispatcher.

Dr. F. H. Millener, experimental engineer of the Union Pacific Railway, who for nine years has been conducting experiments for the railway at Omaha, Neb., in composite wireless and wire telephony, announced yesterday at the Holland House that he had developed his apparatus so that it was now commercially practicable in all respects, and that a complete system of communication was ready to be installed on Union Pacific and overland trains.

Dr. Millener's plans contemplate the establishment of wireless stations at Grand Island and North Platte, Neb.; Cheyenne and Green River, Wyo., and Ogden, Utah. Atmospheric, static and magnetic conditions have been studied in that territory for nine years. At Green River a tower 200 feet tall will be placed on the high butte just back of the station, and with a five-kilowatt generator at Cheyenne and a ten-kilowatt generator at Green River, the difficulties of the Rockies will be overcome.

"With our apparatus, which is protected by nineteen patents, we can talk to a moving train 100 miles away from a station," said Dr. Millener yesterday at the Holland House. "We can call to a moving train and hit it every time; we can talk back from the train; we can talk from car to car—this by wire, of course—and when a train is in a station we can talk to and from it by long distance; moreover, when the train moves out, we can keep up the long distance conversation with it.

"The Union Pacific anticipates tremendous transcontinental travel next year, and the installation of the composite apparatus insures safety in travel. Trains will be under control of the dispatcher at all times, instead of merely when they are receiving orders at a station.

"By careful investigation and experimentation we have avoided the mistakes which might be made in trying to put an ordinary ship apparatus on a train. Our apparatus has been carefully worked out in every detail. The antenna consist of two wires running the full length of each car, with connections with other cars at the ends. Our system is made workable by the fact that we do not have to depend upon storage batteries for our electricity, for the illumination of trains on the Union Pacific is supplied by a generator in the baggage car.

"Some advantages the installation will give are that we shall be able to reach a whole right of way at any time, whether the wires are down or not; we shall be able to talk to a passenger train at any time, whether it is in motion or not; we shall do away with the 'bread line' on trains; and I may tell you that people who travel on transcontinental trains will appreciate the advantage of simply ordering reservations in the dining car from their own cars instead of having to travel the whole length of a train two or three times before they can get seats. Besides, the cost of equipping a train will be merely nominal. In case of a bad washout a repair outfit can be quickly equipped with a small set of apparatus and run from either side of the washout and keep in communication with stations, thus avoiding the necessity of putting up a special wire, which is necessary at present."

Guggenheim Dividend Fully Earned.

With the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share on the stock of the Guggenheim Exploration Company yesterday the company issued a statement calling attention to the fact that notwithstanding the dividend increase in the second quarter of this year, the payment just declared would be made from current earnings and not from surplus. This is true of other Guggenheim companies which have declared dividends recently.

Coat and Suit Trade Busy.

Predictions made earlier in the season concerning a possible shortage of merchandise have good chances now to be fulfilled in the coat and suit trade. Operations were so much delayed by the style uncertainty and initial buying was so light that manufacturers are rushed with orders at present and expect to be busy for some time to come. Those who were fortunate enough to prepare for a large season by placing more than their usual orders for dress goods report that the outlook was never better. Some sections of the country are not purchasing as freely as in the past, but this falling off is made up by the larger bills obtained from other districts. It is the prevailing opinion in the trade that there will be enough fabric to go around, even though higher prices indicate a possible shortage.

Knit Goods Business Behind.

According to reports from jobbers, there is considerable difference between the amount of business done in Fall and Winter knit goods this year and last at this time, and it is on the wrong side of the books. Last year a big spot business was being done, but little activity was visible yesterday. This applied as much to hosiery as to underwear. The only sort of hose that is selling at all well just now is a novelty Persian stripe effect for use with street and dancing dresses. These hose have a single vari-colored stripe about an inch wide running around them at the calf. Most of the road men have left for their territories with Spring lines, but little has been heard from them as yet.

Export Situation Improves.

At least so far as transportation is concerned, the local export situation has improved materially. One of the large cotton goods houses reported yesterday that it had in the last week sent goods to all of the regular trading countries save Germany. In other words, this trade is now in as nearly normal condition as it can be in view of the chaotic state of credit. There are still some nibbles being made at cotton duck suitable for war purposes, but inquiries are usually from other than Governmental interests and nothing has yet come of any of them. Business on the whole is not active, the only bright spot at the moment being Cuba. Some South American buyers, who usually go to Manchester about this time of the year, have been here in the last few days for goods, but the financial situation has put a temporary quietus on all this kind of business.

Silk Troubles Exaggerated.

Belief was expressed in silk circles yesterday that some of the difficulties brought about by the European war have been exaggerated in the trade. A man who is in close touch with all phases of the situation gave it as his opinion that shortly shipments out of Japan of the raw material will be resumed in practically a normal manner so far as this country is concerned. The trouble over the rate of exchange also will be solved before long, this man said. He added that the cutting off of the market in Europe for Japan's chief export product will have the effect of arousing the Japanese to the necessity of getting raw supplies into this country. The trade is also said to be in a much better condition to meet the present situation than would have been the case last year, when the silk business was agitated by tariff revision and the Paterson strike.

Bad for Delicatessen.

The troubles of importers of canned goods, which have been many since the start of the European war, took a new turn yesterday when several of the big firms in this city received cable advices that consignments of French, Belgian, and English goods had been confiscated by the military authorities for the immediate needs of the armies. One house here representing the only factory in Belgium packing sardines received word that the entire production of the concern has been requisitioned by the Belgian Government, while a consignment of Portuguese sardines transshipped via England has been taken over by the Government there. German firms supplying local importers with food products have notified their connections here that they will be unable during the continuance of the war to fill orders they have on hand or contract for future deliveries.

Crockery Buying Eases Off.

After several weeks of much activity in the line of buying, quiet has again descended on the wholesale crockery and glassware trade. The potters have been found to be doing a much better business than the glass men, but the latter expect to do well when the duplicates begin to come in. Business taken by the potters for immediate delivery is large, as they refuse to book forward orders at current prices, and the buyers do not want to hold off and have to pay the required advances. Some good business has been done in cut glass, but the best part of it has been on high-class goods. Imports are slacking up under the first effects of the war, but this is not expected to continue on English and French ware. Japanese business is not expected to be interrupted by the entrance of that country into the European conflict. A peculiar feature of the situation is the broken condition of certain lines of tea ware, many of which cannot be replaced for some little time.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Operations in wheat were very light yesterday, owing to a holiday at Chicago and at several of the other interior markets. Local quotations were nominally unchanged, while in Minneapolis and Duluth prices advanced 1⅛ to 1⅜c; the Southwestern markets were 1 to 1⅜c higher, and Winnipeg gained 1⅝ to 2⅛c. Bradstreet's visible supply showed a decrease east of the Rockies of 1,596,000 bushels, but other points showed good increases, and world stocks gained 6,975,000 bushels for the week, compared with an increase of 8,516,000 bushels last year. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.19¾; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.18½; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.20¼, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.22, all nominal, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo.

NEW YORK PRICES.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
September....	..	..	1.24¼	1.24¼	96⅝
December....	..	..	1.26⅝	1.26⅝	99⅛

CORN.

Prices in the corn market were largely nominal owing to the holiday in Chicago, but in the Southwest quotations were ⅛ to ¼c lower. Bradstreet's visible increased 1,030,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 471,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 87½c, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive, and strictly prime Argentine at 92c nominal, delivered.

OATS.

Underlying conditions in the oats market remained practically unchanged. Bradstreet's visible increased 1,677,000 bushels. The local cash market was steady; standard white quoted at 57@57½c; No. 2, 57½@58c; No. 3, 56¼@57c; No. 4, 56@56½c; ordinary clipped white, 58¼@59c; fancy clipped white, 59@61c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was inactive, and prices were largely nominal, owing to the holiday in Chicago, although the advance in hog markets gave prices a steady tone. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 12,000; estimated for Thursday, 16,000. Kansas City received 6,000 and Omaha 4,500.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil showed a steadier tone, owing to less pressure to sell, and influenced by a show of steadiness in the crude position. September closed 3 points net lower, while the other months were 2 to 4 points higher.

The range of prices was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
Spot	..	..	5.75@5.87	5.80
September	5.90	5.85	5.82@5.85	5.85

COFFEE.

The local coffee market was dull and very unsettled. Prices on the spot are very irregular and sales are being made entirely on a basis of description and grade. In the local spot market Rio 7s were quoted at 7¼c.

COTTON.

A further improvement was reported in the general tone of the spot cotton situation yesterday. There appears to have been no material improvement in the immediate volume of trade demand, but advices received here from the South suggest that the panicky feeling caused by the closing of the Exchanges and the demoralization of international trade at the very time when the South was preparing to market its crop has partially subsided.

No material change was reported in the situation here with reference to the liquidation of old contracts. Liverpool cabled that there had been a sale of 100 bales there on Sept. 8, which under the plan of the Conference Committee released 100 bales of December here at 10.30c, but the cable stated that there had been no balloting for orders since that date. Several local firms have not yet signified their intention of participating in the plan for the liquidation of the international interest, but it is believed that the scheme has been generally enough accepted to insure a gradual closing out of the bulk of the outstanding contracts.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 18,850 packages. Prices were advanced ½c on top grades of fresh creamery, and at the higher rates there is moderate trading. Plenty of the secondary qualities, and they are not moving very freely. Process, ladles, and packing stock rather slow.

Creamery, extras, 32@32½c; firsts, 28¼@31½c; seconds, 26@28c; thirds, 24@25½c; State, dairy, finest, 30@31c; good to prime, 27½@29c; common to fair, 23½@27c; process, extras, 26@26½c; firsts, 24¼@25½c; lower grades, 22½@24c; imitation creamery, firsts, 24@25c; ladles, current make, firsts, 23½@24c; seconds, 22½@23c; lower grades, 21@22c; packing stock, current make, No. 2, 21@22c; lower grades, 19@20½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 28,403 cases. The weather is favorable for the use of storage stock and more of the trade is shifting to these. High grades of fresh eggs are scarce and fully sustained in value, and there is continued good demand for good value cheap eggs. Middle grades are quiet. Near-by eggs in light supply and firm. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 30@32c; extra firsts, 28@29c; firsts, 26@27c; seconds, 24@25c; thirds and poorer, 21@23c; dirties, No. 1, 22½@23c; No. 2 and poorer, 18@22c; checks, good to prime, dry, 21@21½c; undergrades, 15@20c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 27c; firsts, charges paid, 26@26½c; seconds, charges paid, 24½@25½c; undergrades, 21@24c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, hennery whites, fancy, large, new laid, 37@38c; hennery whites, defective, 32@36c; gathered whites, as to size and quality, 28@36c; Western, gathered whites, 26@31c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, hennery browns, 32@33c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 26@30c.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Compound Seven-eighths Fish Pays Duty as Vegetables.

Larini & Co. have been upheld by the Board of General Appraisers in a controversy as to the component material of chief value in preparations of vegetables and tunny fish. The vegetable portion of the product consists of capers, olives, and vinegar. The Collector held that the vegetables predominated in value, and took duty at the rate of 40 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 252 of the old tariff, as prepared vegetables. The importers were able to convince the board that seven-eighths of the value of the preparations was fish, carrying duty at only 30 per cent., under Paragraph 270.

It was decided that snap fasteners set with imitation precious stones and imported by B. E. Levy were properly assessed under the old law at 85 per cent. ad valorem as millinery ornaments. The goods were claimed dutiable at 50 per cent., as snaps by whatever name known. Judge Sullivan, in overruling the protest, denies that the articles are snaps, as they consist of two pieces, the one fitting into the other, but without snapping.

Several importers asked for a rebate of 5 per cent. on their importations on the ground that the merchandise came to this country in ships of American registry. The evidence failed to support the contention.

Duplicate Dress Business Good.

A good duplicate business is being placed on Fall dresses. The buying at the opening of the season was very light, and there was rather a pessimistic tone to conditions in the trade, but prospects now have brightened up considerably, and the manufacturers are looking forward to a healthy increase over past seasons in the amount of business done. Filling in orders have more than made up for any discrepancy that existed in initial purchases.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A good attendance of buyers from this city and out-of-town marked the sale yesterday by Burling & Dole of a large quantity of heavy and medium weight merchandise for the American Woolen Company. Bidding was active, and a good percentage of the regular wholesale value of the goods was received. Several hundred lots of similar merchandise from other concerns was also offered, but it was found necessary to hold over about 200 lots of these goods until today, when the sale will start at 10:30.

The Dinner Committee of the Silk Association of America will meet today in the rooms of the association, 354 Fourth Avenue, to make plans for the forty-third annual dinner of that body. As a rule, the dinner is held on the eve of Lincoln's birthday, and it is probable that this date will be selected for the 1915 gathering.

Upon reading the annexed petition of Theodore H. Price, Arthur R. Marsh, and Joseph M. Ordered that all creditors of the above-named bankrupts, and all other persons, firms and corporations either claiming specific stocks, bonds, securities, sums of money or other assets, or the proceeds thereof, or asserting any alleged preferential claim against the general assets of the estate herein, which are or may be in the possession, custody or control of the petitioners herein, are hereby required to show cause before me or any one of the Judges of this Court, at a stated term of said Court, to be held in Room 433, at the Post Office Building in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on September 17, 1914, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why an order should not be made and entered herein directing said creditors, persons, firms or corporations to file within such time as the Court may direct, verified statements of any and all claims which they or any of them may have against specific stocks, bonds, securities, sums of money or other assets, or the proceeds thereof, and of any and all preferential claims which they may have against the general assets of the estate herein, such claims to be filed with a Special Master to be appointed for such purpose, and why the claims so filed, if any, should not be referred to said Special Master for hearing testimony and report, and why in default of the filing and proving such claims at a time and place, and in a manner in which this Court may direct, said creditors, persons, firms or corporations, and any and all of them, should not be barred, foreclosed and enjoined from making and asserting any such claim or claims, and sufficient reason appearing therefor, it is Ordered that service of this order, together with the petition upon which it is granted, be made upon each of the creditors or other persons interested herein, whether or not such persons have appeared herein by attorney, or have instituted reclamation or other proceedings against the Receivers herein, by mailing a copy to each of them at their respective addresses, as the same may appear upon the schedules herein, and by publishing a copy thereof in The New York "Times" once a week for two successive weeks, which shall be and hereby is declared to be sufficient service thereof.

U. S. District Judge.

August 31st, 1914.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of STEPHEN H. P. PELL, HOWLAND H. PELL and CHARLES A. KITTLE, co-partners doing business under the firm name and style of S. H. P. PELL & COMPANY, Bankrupts.—Petition.

To the Honorable Judges of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York:

The petition of Theodore H. Price, Arthur R. Marsh and Joseph M. Hartfield, respectfully shows to this Court, and alleges:

I. That heretofore and on August 3d, 1914, a petition praying that the above-named Stephen H. P. Pell, Howland H. Pell and Charles A. Kittle be adjudged bankrupts both individually and as members of the firm of S. H. P. Pell & Company, was filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

II. That thereafter and on August 4th, 1914, by order of this Court the petitioners herein were duly appointed Receivers of the above-mentioned alleged bankrupts, and thereafter duly qualified, and have since which time and are now acting as such Receivers.

III. That the said alleged bankrupts on the 31st day of July, 1914, made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors to Theodore H. Price and J. Edwards Wyckoff as Assignees, and said Assignees have since the appointment of your petitioners as Receivers, transferred and turned over to your petitioners as such Receivers the assets which came into their hands as Assignees. That the petitioners herein have received the certain stocks, bonds, securities, sums of money, choses in action and other assets belonging to the firm of S. H. P. Pell & Co., and to the individual partners composing said firm.

IV. That in the administration of the estate herein it is desirable and necessary that such stocks, bonds, securities and other assets belonging to the estate herein be sold so that the proceeds may be available for distribution among the creditors in accordance with the statutes in bankruptcy herein.

V. That your petitioners are informed and believe that various persons, firms and corporations alleged to have certain claims against certain of said stocks, bonds, securities, sums of money or other assets, or the proceeds thereof, and that other persons, firms or corporations claim to have certain alleged preferential claims against the general funds now in the possession of your petitioners, and that your petitioners believe it will be inadvisable and improper to sell or distribute such stocks, bonds, securities, sums of money, general funds and other assets so received by them until all the rights in and claims to the same shall have been ascertained and determined.

VI. That your petitioners are unable to determine the nature, validity or extent of such claims, and that it is necessary that in order that a just, equitable and complete disposition of all such claims be made, that all such claims be cited into Court in one proceeding.

VII. That the bankrupts herein have filed schedules in bankruptcy in this Court in which are set forth in detail the names and addresses of all their creditors, either against them individually or as members of the firm of S. H. P. Pell & Company.

VIII. No previous application for the annexed order to show cause has been made to any Court or Judge, and the reason the same is now asked for is that it is desired to have the Court specify a time in which all claims, stocks, bonds, securities, sums of money or other assets, or the proceeds thereof, and all alleged preferential claims against the assets of the estate herein shall be presented. And that it shall determine the nature, extent and validity of all such claims when the same are presented.

To the end that this Court shall determine the method of the service of the order to show cause, your petitioner respectfully suggests that service thereof be made by publication and mailing, for the following reasons:

(a) The bankrupts herein have creditors as appears by their schedules herein in excess of four hundred in number.

(b) The said creditors are located in many other States of the United States, as appears by their respective addresses as set forth in said schedules, and service other than by publication and mailing is impracticable.

Wherefore your petitioner prays for an order to show cause directing all creditors of the above-named bankrupts, and all persons, firms and corporations interested herein to show cause before this Court why an order should not be made and entered herein,

1. Directing said creditors, persons, firms and corporations to file any claim or claims they may assert, either against any specific stock, bond, security, sums of money or other asset, or the proceeds thereof, or any preferential claim that they may have against the general assets of the estate herein, and why such claims should not be filed at such time and place as the Court may direct.

2. Directing that said claims so made, if any, be referred to a Special Master for the hearing of testimony and report.

3. Directing that any and all creditors, persons, firms and corporations having or asserting any such claim or claims, who shall not file the same at such time and place as the Court may direct, be forever barred from making any such claim or claims, and why the petitioner herein should not have such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just and proper.

THEODORE H. PRICE,
ARTHUR R. MARSH,
JOSEPH M. HARTFIELD,
Petitioners.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:

THEODORE H. PRICE, ARTHUR R. MARSH and JOSEPH M. HARTFIELD, being duly sworn, depose and say that they are the petitioners above named, that they have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof, and that the same is true except as to the matters therein stated to be alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters they believe them to be true.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Carrolton Apartment on Upper Broadway Sold to H. H. Dreyer—Daughters of Israel Buy Home in East Harlem—Musical Mutual Protective Union Increases Its East Side Holdings.

Two apartment house sales to investors, one on the upper west side and the other in the Bronx, augmented by several minor transactions, gave a little better tone to the realty market yesterday than has been prevalent for several days past.

There was also a report in circulation to the effect that a Sixth Avenue corner in the vicinity of Thirty-fourth Street had been sold as a site for a twelve-story store and loft building, but it could not be verified.

The west side deal involved the Carrolton, a six-story apartment house, occupying a plot, 90 by 150 feet, on the northwest corner of 168th Street and Broadway, opposite the old American League baseball field. It was sold by the James Livingston Company to Henry H. Dwyer for about $325,000. There is a first mortgage on the property of $225,000, held by the Germania Life Insurance Company. Walter D. Rusher negotiated the sale. The property was reported sold several months ago, but the transaction was never consummated.

Musical Union Increases Holdings.

The Musical Mutual Protective Association of 210 East Eighty-sixth Street, which last week purchased the six-story apartment house at 211 to 215 East Eighty-fifth Street, has increased its holdings by taking title to 209 East Eighty-fifth Street. The property, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 25.8 by 100 feet, was sold by Michael Naughton.

The union now controls a plot 200 feet deep, fronting 75 feet on both Eighty-fifth and Eighty-sixth Streets. Although no definite plans have been made, it is understood that the union, which is rapidly increasing in membership, intends to improve the entire plot with a modern clubhouse in the near future.

Daughters of Israel Buy Home.

The Directors of the Harlem Home of the Daughters of Israel have purchased the premises at 32 and 34 East 119th Street, which will be remodeled to accommodate seventy-five aged and needy inmates. The property consists of two four-story private dwellings, occupying a plot 31.4 by 100 feet, adjoining the corner of Madison Avenue.

Investor Buys Bronx Apartment.

An investing client of McLernon Brothers has purchased from the Mellwin Realty and Construction Company, of which Robert A. Winter is President, the recently completed apartment house at 1,692 and 1,694 Clay Avenue, extending through to Anthony Avenue, about 250 feet north of 173d Street.

The structure, which is five stories high on Clay Avenue and seven stories high on Anthony Avenue, occupies a plot 46.7 by 83 by 52 by 95. It was held at about $60,000.

Deal in Hunts Point Section.

Samuel Cowen has sold in the Hunts Point section of the Bronx a three-story two-family brick dwelling known as 891 Irvine Street for M. Lowy to an investor for occupancy.

$200,000 Brooklyn Hotel.

Plans for the construction of a $200,000 family hotel to be erected on the corner of Dean Street and Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, were filed yesterday. Louis F. Seitz, owner of the Chatelaine in Dean Street is to erect the new structure, which will be an improvement on the apartment house in Dean Street.

The plans call for a six-story fireproof structure of stone and brick. It will have a frontage on Bedford Avenue of 150 feet, 100 feet on Dean Street, and 100 feet on Pacific Street. It will occupy the large vacant plot just east of the Chatelaine. The architect is Montrose W. Morris.

Long Island.

The Lewis H. May Company has sold for the S. Weiner Realty Company eight lots on the east side of Beach Avenue, Edgemere, to a client for improvement.

The Metropolis Land Company has sold twenty lots to the City of New York for $16,000 for a school site at Richmond Hill. The property has a frontage of 200 feet on the west side of Lefferts Avenue, 100 feet south of Hawtree Avenue, and 200 feet on the east side of Church Street, extending through the block.

New Jersey.

Feist & Feist sold to Louis Rich the three-story dwelling at 275 Clinton Avenue, 195 feet east of Stratford Place, Newark, on a plot 35 by 132; also sold to the Federal Building, Land and Improvement Company, A. H. Hassinger, President, the two three-story and basement stucco apartment houses at 22 and 24 Alpine Street, between Elizabeth and Sherman Avenues, Newark, on a plot 54 by 100.

Bronx Loan Placed.

Van Vliet & Place have placed a loan of $75,000 through the Title Guarantee and Trust Company upon the property 656 to 664 Bergen Avenue and 651 to 661 Brook Avenue.

Private Dwellings Leased.

A. Kane & Co. have rented the three-story and basement dwelling, 503 Manhattan Avenue, for Seymour and Therasson, executors of the H. Louisa Mulford estate, to Benjamin Feld.

Pease & Elliman have leased for H. Seymour Elsman the four-story and basement house, 747 Madison Avenue, 16.8 by 60, to August H. Hilles; also for Arthur J. Taylor, to Miss J. M. Phelan, the three-story and basement house at the southeast corner of Seventy-fourth Street and West End Avenue, 298 West End Avenue.

Shaw & Co. have leased for the estate of Andrew R. Blakely the three-story and basement brick dwelling, 77 West 124th Street, to Sarah A. Hines.

Real Estate Notes.

William Ziegler, Jr., has brought suit to foreclose the mortgage of $129,000 on the six and seven story buildings at 4 and 6 West Thirty-ninth Street, owned since 1910 by the Midville Realty Company.

Wolf Mellis has assigned to the Golconda Realty Company, a Brooklyn corporation, a mortgage for $4,500 affecting premises 14-16 West 118th Street, in payment for equity in property purchased by Mr. Mellis from the Golconda Realty Company, located in Bergen Street, Brooklyn.

The New York Real Estate Security Company lost another of its holdings in foreclosure in the Vesey Street salesroom yesterday. The latest to go is the six-story Regent Hall apartment house, on plot 100.11 by 100, at 3,100 Broadway, northeast corner of 123d Street, which was acquired by Charles M. Rosenthal, as plaintiff, for $194,012. The property was sold to satisfy a judgment of $23,722.

A meeting of the West Side Taxpayers' Association has been called for this evening at Heinebund Hall, 267 West Thirty-fourth Street.

Fair Rentals Uniformly Maintained

Until A. T. Stewart established his policy of one price, uniformly maintained, shoppers in the department stores of this city were under the unpleasant necessity of haggling and bargaining over all their purchases.

The same condition prevails in the apartment house field today, but we believe the time is ripe for a change. We feel that the class of people to whom our apartments will appeal must find this dickering and bargaining over rentals as distasteful as we do. We have therefore based our rentals, which will be uniformly maintained, upon a policy of giving all we can for what we get instead of getting all we can for what we give.

RAILWAYS LAY NEEDS BEFORE PRESIDENT

War Has Confronted Them with "Unparalelled Emergency" Committee Declares at Conference.

MUST HAVE MORE REVENUE

Otherwise Results Will Be Disastrous—No Specific Request Made, but Appeal Made for Sympathetic Public Attitude.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The credit of American railroads, which is declared to have been seriously impaired before the war in Europe began, is now "confronted by an emergency of a magnitude without parallel in our history," according to representations made to President Wilson today by a committee of railroad executives representing all the leading systems of the country.

The committee submitted to the President a formal statement which concluded with the "respectful requests":

First—That the President will call the attention of the country to the pressing necessity for support of railroad credit by the co-operative and sympathetic effort of the public and of all Governmental authorities and that the railroads be relieved as far as possible from immediate burdens involving additional expense.

Second—That the President will urge a practical recognition of the fact that an emergency is upon the railroads which requires, in the public interest, that they have additional revenue and that the appropriate Governmental agencies seek a way by which such additional revenue may be properly and promptly raised.

The committee consisted of Chairman Trumbull of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, who acted as spokesman; President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, President Fairfax Harrison of the Southern, President E. P. Ripley of the Santa Fé, and Vice President Hale Holden of the Burlington. The members of the committee were accompanied to Washington by other representative railroad men, who however, did not go to the White House.

The President received the committeemen cordially and listened intently to what they had to say. Then, after thanking them for coming to the White House with their statement of the situation, he said he would give very careful consideration to the facts presented. Nothing was said by the President indicating what his response would be, but it is thought that in a few days he will indicate his position.

The purpose of the conference was to enable the President fully to realize the gravity of the finacial situation confronting the railroads. The suggestion was made that he urge the Federal Reserve Board to adopt a most liberal attitude toward the acceptance of railroad securities as a basis for the issuance of Aldrich-Vreeland currency and loans. The railroad representatives would also like to hear that the President would urge the conferring upon the Interstate Commerce Commission of additional powers to enable that body to consider the general railroad financial situation in passing upon applications for rate increases. Though no statement was forthcoming from the White House, it is understood that the President has felt all along that he cannot properly or reasonably attempt to influence the Interstate Commerce Commission.

After the conference the committee of railroad Presidents issued this formal statement:

Ask Sympathetic Treatment.

"The purpose of this conference is to lay before the President in brief terms the present situation of the railroads of the United States—250,000 miles of great national highways. That the case of the railroads deserves sympathetic treatment arises from the fact that, although privately owned, their property is devoted to public service. The industrial health of the country depends upon an adequate railroad service; such service cannot be rendered and proper response to public needs cannot be made unless the financial soundness of the railroads is maintained.

"The credit of the railroads, seriously impaired, as we believe, before the war started, is now confronted by an emergency of a magnitude without parallel in history. To understand the full import of the existing crisis it is necessary to consider briefly the antecedent conditions.

"The purpose here is not to complain, but to point out the one paramount fact that by reason of legislation and regulation by the Federal Government and the forty-eight States, acting independently of each other, as well as through the action of a strong public opinion, railroad expenses in recent years have vastly increased. No criticism is here made of the general theory of Governmental regulation, but, on the other hand, no ingenuity can relieve the carriers of the burdens of expense created thereby. However desirable may have been the expenditures which have been forced upon the railroads, no adequate provision has been made to pay the bill.

"This great increase in expenses now coincides with seriously depleted revenues, with no corresponding ability of the railroads to reduce their costs in proportion. Governments can proceed with expenditures of all kinds by taxation, but railroads cannot. While the effect of the European war upon railroad earnings may vary in different sections, it is painfully evident that there will be serious decreases in the total because of the unprecedented difficulty in the marketing of cotton, the great decrease in imports and the general dislocation of trade and industry.

"Even prior to the existing emergency and to meet the antecedent situation, railroad expenditures generally had been reduced to absolute necessities. The difficulty of further contraction is enhanced by existing wage agreements and, in so far as the Western railroads are concerned, by the possibilities involved in the arbitration proceedings to which they have recently agreed.

"The net operating income of the railroads of the United States for the year ended June 30, 1914, was $120,000,000 less than for the previous year, or about 15 per cent. The gross earnings for the year were $44,000,000 less than for 1913; expenses and taxes were $76,000,000 more.

Credit Depends Upon Earnings.

"The maintenance of the credit of the railroads (and the credit of the railroads establishes the standard for all industrial enterprises) depends upon their ability to increase their net earnings. The railroads may have the most perfectly appointed plants in the world, but if the net earnings are not adequate, new capital cannot be attracted.

"In the important Eastern rate case the Interstate Commerce Commission unananimously found that the railroads in the richest section of the country needed more revenue. That finding was based upon the situation prior to the first of July, this year; indeed upon conditions of a year previous.

"No emphasis need at this time be put upon the new railroad capital which has heretofore been required to provide for normal development, but this has been from $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 per annum, and railroads should not only be able to keep abreast of the time, but in this emergency should be in position to anticipate the demands of an expanding commerce.

"Simultaneously with the great impairment of earnings, general credit conditions have broken down, and the absolute and immediate necessities of both public and private borrowers of money here and abroad have already increased interest rates to a level unthought of a few months ago—rates much higher than present net earnings return upon the railroad property of the United States.

"This emergency was not contemplated when the Interstate Commerce Commission rendered its decision in the Eastern rate case, yet the problems now confronting the railroads greatly transcend the seriousness of those which existed then. The menace is now not only to railroad credit but to the transportation service itself, and efficient transportation is inseparably connected with the welfare of our people.

"Securities of United States railroads held abroad are computed at from three to five billion dollars. It is a certainty that bond and note obligations of the railroads maturing before the end of next year aggregate over $520,000,000. In the highest public interest, it is imperative that these obligations shall be met. Yet it is evident that for a long time Europe will not be a lender of money to America. On the contrary, the war will create such enormous debts and involve such a general dislocation of industry and commerce that Europe must realize largely on its holding of American securities regardless of the price obtainable.

"The New York Stock Exchange has now been closed for a longer period than at any time in its history. There is no present market for railroad securities, old or new. The United States is in a condition of financial isolation. If the Stock Exchange were to open (and it must open some time) the pressure of selling would inevitably be greatest against railroad securities. If they go down, industrial issues will fall still more seriously. The public necessity to stem this tide of selling and to reduce to the utmost its destructive effect is one that calls for the exercise of every resource of statesmanship."

The statement ends with the two requests of the President already quoted.

Specific Requests Later.

The railroad men were hopeful after the conference that Mr. Wilson, through a public letter or otherwise, might show that he believed the railroads should be relieved of some burdens. They also believed they had laid the groundwork for the consideration of specific requests to be made later. These requests were understood to include a postponement of consideration of the Railway Securities bill now pending in Congress, legislation allowing the Interstate Commerce Commission to take general conditions into consideration in passing on petitions for rate increases, and the reopening of the recently decided advance freight rate cases.

At the White House tonight it was said the President would give careful consideration to the problem. He indicated his sympathy with the appeal of the railroads, but made no promises.

After the conference the railroad executives met Interstate Commerce Commissioners Clements, McChord, Clark, and Daniels. A copy of an address presented to the President was laid before the Commissioners, and the general railroad situation, as altered by events since the outbreak of the European war, was explained. The railroad executives said they were ready at any time to advise with the commission as to any practical means for affording relief to which the roads might be entitled and which the commission could lawfully grant.

In their talk with members of the Interstate Commerce Commission the railroad representatives found considerable encouragement. While no definite promises were made to them, the committee of the carriers came away with the impression that the commission might be willing to reopen the advance rate case if the presentation of evidence in connection with a readjustment of rates for passenger service and of the free services the commission thought should be discontinued indicated that the situation had so changed that advances in freight rates were justified by the changed conditions due to the war in Europe.

The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted to the Southeastern railroads an extension of time until April 1, 1915, to meet its order for readjustment of class and commodity rates from Eastern cities, Ohio River crossings, and New Orleans to South Atlantic and Gulf ports.

TO SEEK INTRASTATE RISE.

Railroads Satisfied with Present Interstate Passenger Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—With certain mileage-book exceptions, no railroad has filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission schedules increasing passenger rates. So far as the commission has information, there is no intention to file such schedules. Representatives of all the trunk lines repeatedly have stated before the commission that interstate passenger rates were satisfactory.

From sources regarded as well informed, however, it was learned that an advance of rates would be sought generally all over the country on short intrastate routes. The railroads are planning to take up their claims for an increase with the State commissions and the State Legislatures. No particular lines were named, but it was said that the idea was general among passenger experts that the entire system of intrastate rates needed overhauling. This was recognized by the Interstate Commerce Commission in its decision of the 5 per cent. case recently.

It was pointed out that in the Central Freight Association territory, where the greatest need seemed to exist for an increase of revenue, the laws of certain States would make it difficult to get an increase of passenger rates. The States named were Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan. It is in these States that the roads will attempt to make a fight in the Legislatures for what they believe to be their rights, and it is believed by experts in railroad rate-making that they have a very fair chance of success.

INCREASE MILEAGE RATES.

New Tariffs Filed by Eastern Roads Show Advance of Eighth.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Practically all of the principal railroads in the East today completed filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission their new tariffs proposing increases in the price of mileage tickets. The roads sometime ago began giving notice of the new rates to take effect Oct. 1.

The increases approximate 12½ per cent. The roads include the New York Central, Reading, Jersey Central, Lackawanna, West Shore, Lehigh Valley, Erie, Boston & Maine, Boston & Albany, New Haven, Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk, Central of Vermont, Delaware & Hudson, Rutland, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, Western Maryland, and several subsidiary lines.

Many of the lines propose to increase the price of thousand-mile local books from $20 to $22.50. The $5 refund on interchangeable books, which sold for $25, would be reduced to $2.50.

No protests have been filed against the proposed increases.

Senate Passes War Expense Bill.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Senate today passed the bill appropriatng $1,000,000 for extra expenses of diplomatic and consular service occasioned by the European war. The bill passed the House yesterday, and now goes to the President.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED WHILE TAXI BURNS

Crowd of 5,000 on Forty-second St. Watch Firemen's Efforts to Save Automobile.

FEARED AN EXPLOSION

Hotels and Office Building Emptied When an Alarm Was Sent In.

Five thousand people forgot about the war for the space of fifteen minutes yesterday at luncheon time, and crowded the sidewalks and the crossings at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue and watched a taxicab burn. People ran out of the Manhattan and the Belmont, while many others hung out of the windows of those hotels and the Forty-second Street Building. It was almost a quarter of an hour before the fire engines reached the spot.

Many persons carrying a Summer coat of tan and handbags were hurrying out of the Grand Central Terminal. Porters were hanging about the Subway entrances entreating those who emerged from below to be allowed to carry their parcels. Newsboys were doing a thriving business with "extras" just out, and the lunch places were taking in and pouring out steady streams, when suddenly a taxicab, which had just left the Terminal and had got nearly to Madison Avenue on Forty-second Street, stopped. A man and a woman hurried out, grasping several bags and bundles. The chauffeur jumped off the box. Those near by saw a lot of smoke coming from under the vehicle, and as they looked, a tongue of flame lapped out from under one side and licked in at the open door. No one heard a sound of an explosion, but it seemed hardly two seconds before a blaze was roaring merrily.

Somebody turned in an alarm, and then people began to run toward the spot from every direction. Hotel lobbies were emptied. One elderly man who was leaving the Manhattan toppled down the steps in his eagerness to see what was going on. The flames roared on. One man was heard to remark that the taximeter was still working, but as a matter of fact the only detail of the car that was now visible was its number, 8667. The upper part of the glass shield melted. One crosstown car bound west scooted by the blazing vehicle, but the police held up others. When the firemen came up the first of the apparatus proved to be a scaling ladder. However, an engine arrived from the other side almost at the same time, and two minutes after it had stopped the fire seemed to be out, and firemen were using little hand apparatus on the charred framework of the car.

When the fire seemed put out, the firemen shoved the taxicab to one side and traffic was resumed. Then the crowd had another thrill, for just as the cars started up, the taxi blazed again from under the engine.

"Look out for an explosion!" somebody shouted, and there was a rush to widen the open circle about the car, which looked like the beginning of a panic. However, the firemen quickly got the hose out again, and soon fewer than 200 persons were left on the spot to guard the remains and ask questions until the car was removed.

The taxi was the property of Max Ehrlich of 112 West Seventy-sixth Street. The driver was William Dougherty of 416 East Eighty-first Street. He told the police that a backfire had been the cause of the trouble.

TO DISCUSS FORGAN PLAN.

Bankers Will Meet Treasury He d in Conference Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—J. P. Morgan and Jacob H. Schiff will come here tomorrow at the invitation of Secretary McAdoo for a conference on the foreign exchange situation. As international bankers Messrs. Morgan and Schiff have information in regard to present conditions which Secretary McAdoo regards as of the highest value to the Government.

The conferees will discuss the plan worked out by the Forgan committee appointed at the Clearing House conference held here last week. It is not known whether the two New York bankers approve the plan, but the impression prevails among Treasury officials that in a general way they will express satisfaction with the method proposed to meet obligations abroad.

The Forgan plan is to raise a fund of $150,000,000 in gold, of which $25,000,000 is to be available immediately and is to be deposited in the branch of the Bank of England at Ottawa, Canada, as the basis of a transfer of credits in London and Paris. The fund, according to the Forgan plan, is to be raised by a pool of national banks, and a committee of New York bankers will direct operations.

Thus far neither Secretary McAdoo nor any member of the Federal Relief Board has expressed any opinion on the plan. The conference tomorrow, it is expected, will clear up some phases of the situation.

CATCH A CHECK FORGER.

Pinkertons Run Down Man Who Swindled a Trust Company.

A check for $139.50, drawn on the Security Bank at Sixth Avenue and Fourteenth Street, was deposited on July 8 in the East Side Branch of the Transatlantic Trust Company at Thirteenth Street and Second Avenue. It was made payable to "Joseph Deleo," the depositor, and the firm name of Grady & Horrowitz, Sixth Avenue restaurant keepers, who have an account at the Security Bank, was signed to it. The depositor, with his own checks, drew out almost all of the $139.50 from the Transatlantic Trust Company within three days after the bank had accepted the check, and on the fourth day, when the check had reached the Security Bank, it was declared a forgery. "Joseph Deleo" was seen no more at the Transatlantic Trust Company.

The check was turned over to the Pinkerton Detective Agency, and Supt. Graham recognized the forgery as the work of a member of the now scattered George Porrazzo band of forgers. In an investigation lasting more than two months, Mr. Graham learned that the only former member of the band still in New York was a man known as "Flying Jerry." The Superintendent's search for this man led him, yesterday afternoon, to a Fourteenth Street theaatre, where, according to the police, the paying teller of the Transatlantic Trust Company identified the man under surveillance as the "Joseph Deleo" who had deposited the forged check. The man was then arrested by detectives from Police Headquarters. He said he was Nicholas Filangeri, 26 years old, of 220 First Avenue, and denied that he had forged the check.

5 CHILDREN DIE OF BURNS.

Coroner's Physician Pabst Urges Parents to Fireproof Clothing.

Coroner's Physician Dr. Charles F. Pabst of Brooklyn was called yesterday in five cases of children who died as a result of burns suffered while playing with matches in their homes or around bonfires.

Dorothy Mullins, four years old, of 57 Bay Eleventh Street, Bath Beach, died at the Coney Island Hospital of burns sustained while playing with a bonfire near her home.

Marion Yates, five years old, died at the Brooklyn Hospital from burns from a bonfire in the yard of her home, 124 Bridge Street, Brooklyn.

Joseph Scirino, two years old, died at the Methodist Episcopal Hospital from burns suffered while playing with matches at his home, 417 Eighteenth Street. His parents were slightly burned in trying to beat out the flames about him.

Joseph Lungro, five years old, of 2,705 West Fifteenth Street, Coney Island, died at his home from burns sustained there as a result of playing with matches.

Stella Urewich, five years old, of 194 John Street, died at her home from burns suffered while playing with matches.

Dr. Pabst said that deaths of children through burns could largely be prevented by parents by a simple and cheap method of fireproofing the clothing of the little ones.

"I would suggest," he said, "that parents fireproof the cowboy and Indian suits so often worn by the little ones, and the fringes of which are constant sources of danger from fire; also that they fireproof lace curtains and other hangings liable to be ignited by children playing with matches at home.

"Parents need only buy a pound of phosphate of ammonia, for about 25 cents, at the nearest drug store, dissolve it in a gallon of water, and simply dip in this mixture the articles they wish to fireproof. The solution is absolutely harmless, as were it merely water, and can affect neither the child nor the material washed. On the other hand, it makes the goods absolutely proof against flame."

ELEVATED TRAINS COLLIDE.

All Traffic on Third Avenue Suspended an Hour and a Half.

All traffic on the Third Avenue elevated line was tied up for an hour and a half early yesterday morning by a collision between 103d and 102d Streets. Motorman John Emery was bringing an empty train out from the centre tracks, where it had stood all night, when the air brakes failed to work and the train ran into one ahead. Emery jumped in time to save himself, and no one in the front train was injured, but two cars were telescoped and one caught fire.

While the tracks were blocked, trains above 129th Street were shunted to the Second Avenue line, so that the congestion above that point was relieved, but thousands were held up in the stations below.

Arrested for Stealing $1,462.

Detectives Mattola and Kemp arrested Nicholas W. Raditsky of 345 East Ninth Street last night on the charge of stealing $1,462 from his employer, Gregory Kunashezsky, a steamship broker of 330 East Tenth Street. The money was the price of seven steamship tickets sold on Aug. 23 to seven German reservists. Raditsky had $1,462 and 26 cents additional when he was arrested.

RICHARDS DEFENDS HORGAN

Says State Employe Attacked by Hennessy Is Efficient.

State Superintendent of Banks Eugene Lamb Richards replied last night to the attack made on him by John A. Hennessy as a result of his appointment of Matthew T. Horgan to a place in the Banking Department. Mr. Hennessy said that Mr. Horgan had been sent to jail for wife beating.

"I am well aware," said Mr. Richards, "that there was an unfortunate chapter in Mr. Horgan's life ten years ago, caused by marital differences which terminated by a decree of divorce granted by Justice Greenbaum in favor of Mr. Horgan and against his first wife. Mr. Horgan received the custody of his children. I have found Mr. Horgan's present life and character above criticism. I have appointed him to a position in this department, fully warranted by his ability, industry, and honesty. Mr. Horgan is saving more than the amount of his salary every month owing to the adoption of a comprehensive system of audit and verified accounts which he recommended and owing to which the annual expenses of the Liquidation Bureau are about $5,000 less than before.

"If Mr. Hennessy or any one else will make and substantiate a charge against Mr. Horgan for failure to perform his duty or for any dishonest act, no matter how slight, I will remove him immediately."

CITY'S $100,000,000 LOAN.

All Taken and Now Being Apportioned Among the Banks.

The $100,000,000 loan to the City of New York, arranged by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and J. P. Morgan & Co. particularly for the purpose of meeting upward of $80,000,000 in finance bills maturing in London between Sept. 14 and the end of the year, is now being allotted to the banks and trust companies in the proportion of their net deposits.

All of the loan has been subscribed for, and the city is assured of $80,000,000 in gold or foreign exchange on London to meet its needs.

Foreign exchange, which sold down on the completion of arrangements for meeting the city's obligations abroad, strengthened again yesterday. Cables on London were quoted at $4.99½@$5.00, and demand at $4.98½@$4.99.

It's Economy to buy Linens now—

Reg. Trade Mark

THE chief source of supply for Flax, the raw material from which Linens are made, is Russia and Belgium. The war in Europe has made this year's flax crop unavailable.

Naturally, then, the scarcity of raw material from which Linens are made will automatically increase the price of linens.

We have never had a more abundant or better assorted stock of desirable household Linens of all kinds and we suggest to our customers and the public generally that the present time offers a most favorable opportunity to purchase linens at prices materially lower than they are likely to be for a long time to come.

Store open this week 8:30 to 5. Saturday close 12 o'clock.
Thereafter hours will be 8:30 to 6 P. M. daily.

Stetson Hats
"La Salle $3.50"

A GOOD many men have asked us why we feature Stetson Hats so strongly.

We do it because we know from our hat making experience that they are superior to any others produced in America.

The La Salle, for instance, a Wallach-Stetson, is one of the smartest soft hats ever shown in town, made in many different colors with a ribbon that contrasts with the color of the hat—a very fashionable touch. Besides this, we have the largest stock of Stetson Hats in New York—among them the Headease, so called because it is the lightest, most flexible derby that has ever been made—and we alone in New York sell it.

La Salle $3.50.   Stetson Hats $3.50 to $8.
